HOOVER APPEALS FOR SPEED ON TARIFF, DEBATING SENATORS SEE NO HOPE FOR BILL; REPUBLICANS ADMIT COALITION CONTROL

ACCORD URGED ON LEADERS

President Issues Statement After Seeing Party Heads on the Bill.

WANTS VOTE IN TWO WEEKS

BORAH FOR FULL DEBATE

Assailing Demand by Hoover, Democrats and Insurgents Deny Causing Delay.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—It is a long time since such utter confusion prevailed in Congress as was revealed today. A public appeal to the Senate from President Hoover, urging that the tariff bill be passed in the next two weeks, and a heart to heart debate which followed among Senators, brought out forcibly that the tariff legislation situation is chaotic, with the majority at the mercy of a coalition of Democratic and independent and insurgent Republican Senators.

Administration Senators acknowledged that they had lost control of the tariff revision measure, and there was general admission that no hope existed of Senate action within the fortnight fixed by the President in his appeal.

A group of loyal Republican Senators went to the White House last night to talk over the tariff situation with the President. It was revealed in the statement from the President that their views were as wide apart as the Poles.

"Some of the Senators considered the situation hopeless," the President acknowledged.

Others, he revealed, thought that "an understanding should be attempted among Senate leaders," with the object of passing the bill in the Senate and letting a conference committee of the two branches attempt to harmonize their differences.

Hoover Against "Hopeless" View.

What probably was the most important feature of the President's declaration was his contention that the campaign pledges of his party with respect to the tariff should be carried out.

He refused to agree with those who looked upon the tariff situation as hopeless. He held that the interests of the country required that the legislation should be completed during the extra session of Congress, called by him for the explicit purpose of enacting a tariff revision bill.

In the past half century no such state of affairs has existed with respect to an outstanding piece of national legislation. Although swept into the Presidency by an overwhelming majority, Mr. Hoover finds himself powerless to do anything to induce the Senate to follow his wishes.

On paper, the Senatorial control of his party is impressive, but the fact is that those Republicans who now follow his lead have dwindled to a minority so weak in numbers that the party recalcitrants and their Democratic allies are able to do as they please in fixing tariff rates.

The afternoon's hectic discussion in the Senate demonstrated the truth of the frequent assertion that the coalition, and not the administration supporters, constituted the "majority." It was evident that many Senators regard the situation as so hopelessly complicated that they see the tariff legislation cast into the discard.

Reed Admits Coalition Control.

Borah of Idaho, one of the foremost figures in the Republican revolt, told the Senate that the coalition was in control. Reed of Pennsylvania, an outstanding champion of the measure which the coalition is tearing to pieces, admitted the truth of Mr. Borah's statement.

There were some denials that any understanding to work together existed between the Democrats and the insurgent Republicans; but the fact remains that the Republican regulars are being outvoted constantly and are impotent to pass a tariff bill in any way resembling the measure which emerged from the Finance Committee, controlled by the regular contingent.

The current session must come to an end prior to Dec. 2, when Congress will assemble in the regular session prescribed by the Constitution. If the tariff bill is not passed

President Hoover's Declaration on the Tariff Bill, In Response to the Representations of Senators

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—President Hoover's public statement on the tariff bill today was as follows:

The President was visited yesterday by a number of Senators, all of whom called at their own suggestion, and presented to him the grave situation that has arisen by delays in tariff legislation.

They called attention to the fact that the Senate has had the tariff bill since June, with fifteen schedules to work out, and has not yet completed Schedule 1.

It was pointed out that a large amount of important legislation must be undertaken at the regular session which would be prevented by carrying the debate into the next session.

Some of the Senators considered progress hopeless, as it appeared to them that the coalition intended to delay or defeat legislation, or did not intend to give adequate protection to industry. Others felt that some understanding should be attempted among Senate leaders by which the bill could be sent into conference with the House at an early date.

The President said, as he has uniformly stated his position, that campaign promises should be carried out by which adequate protection should be given to agriculture and to the industries where the changes in the economic situation demand their assistance. He stated that he could not believe and therefore would not admit that the United States Senate was unable to legislate and that the interests of the country required that legislation should be completed during the special session.

The President has declined to interfere or express any opinion on the details of rates or any compromise thereof, as it is obvious that, if for no other reason, he could not pretend to have the necessary information in respect to many thousands of different commodities which such determination requires, but he pointed out that the wide differences of opinion and the length of the discussions in the Senate were themselves ample demonstration of the desirability of a real flexible clause in order that injustice in rates could be promptly corrected by scientific and impartial investigation and put in action without such delays as the present discussions give proof.

He urged the Republican leaders to get together and see if they could not expedite the early completion of the schedules and thus send the bill to conference with the House within the next two weeks.

SAYS BINGHAM AIDS 'AIR TRUST LOBBY'

T. L. Hill, in Appealing to Senators for Inquiry, Charges Monopoly Exists.

ATTACKS PLANE CONTRACTS

J. H. Kirby of Southern Tariff Association Frankly Approves Bingham's Tariff Adviser.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—A charge which associates Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut and "the White House itself" with an "air trust lobby" is contained in a letter addressed to Senator T. H. Caraway, Democrat, of Arkansas, chairman of the lobby investigating committee, by Thomas L. Hill, president of the American Society for the Promotion of Aviation, which has headquarters at 522 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

The letter, made public today by Mr. Hill at the office of Senator Caraway, declares that Senator Bingham, who is president of the National Aeronautic Association, is the "mouthpiece" of the "air lobby" and that an inquiry into the activities of the lobby will show it has "political, financial and social connections that will astound the country."

"The work of the 'air trust' and its lobbyists," states Mr. Hill in his letter, "has been so extensive and in many cases so raw that I am convinced that an honest preliminary investigation by your committee will open up leads that not only will involve Senator Bingham and cohorts in the House of Representatives, but will reach the White House itself."

Monopoly Is Charged.

Mr. Hill charges, among other things, that the alleged "air trust" has promoted a monopoly in restraint of trade and asks the committee to give special attention to that aspect of the case.

"Senator Caraway now has under advisement whether the matter I have submitted to him should be turned over to the Department of Justice," Mr. Hall said, as he handed his letter to representatives of the press.

Meanwhile, the lobby committee at its hearing today gave further consideration to the action of Senator Bingham in engaging C. L. Eyanson of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association as a tutor during the consideration of the tariff bill by the Senate Finance Committee.

The Bingham affair came up incident to the examination by the committee of John Henry Kirby of Houston, Texas, president of the Southern Tariff Association, who bluntly declared that he approved

ON THE TRAIL JUST SOUTH OF 80 DEGREES LATITUDE, Oct. 29, via Little America, Oct. 31.—The peaceful Barrier showed its sternest front today when the monotony of 160 miles of unexciting sledging was broken by our efforts to penetrate a maze of crevasses, covered chasms and hollow haycocks eleven miles south of Depot 3.

The tents were pitched tonight between two pitfalls three miles east of the scene of our escapes from whatever is below the countless hollow crusts over which we passed.

The Barrier trembles and roars occasionally as new traps open in this area where the pressure of the ice is equalized.

From latitude 81 southward this morning a long line of knolls, jagged peaks and rolling domes glistened majestically on the crest of a hilltop stretching east and west.

Halt on Roof of Cavern.

We had gone five miles when Jacob Bursey, who was leading the roped caravan, swung his sled to a halt. His dogs were on the roof of a round hollow pit fifty feet in diameter. There were many such invisible caverns on the ascent of the hill, some filled, some bridged with snow, evidently craters of haycocks opened by released pressure.

Soon crevasses, a few open, some filled and most of them roofed, crossed our path. Five miles of dodging and rushing brought us to a stop. To the south and west were graceful domes, fantastic peaks and black shadows, ugly and forbidding lines of upheaved ice. To the east a deep valley was crossed and recrossed by scores of the great depressions we had learned to respect.

Walden Twice Pulled Out of Holes.

Well roped, we planned a short reconnoisance on foot. Arthur Walden, our veteran leader, stepped away from his sled into a crevasse and sank down to his waist. He was pulled out again and went down into a second pitfall. We reached the hilltop ridge running southwest between

Nova Scotia Votes to End Prohibition; Sober Island 35 to 1 for Government Sale

Special to The New York Times.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 31.—By a majority of at least 20,000, Nova Scotia today voted for the sale of liquor under government control. A heavy vote was polled throughout the province.

There were two questions on the ballot: "Are you in favor of the retention of the Nova Scotia temperance act?" and "Are you in favor of the sale of liquor under government control?"

The returns at 10 o'clock tonight showed that 75,000 voted for government control and 55,000 for the temperance act. The vote at that hour was incomplete, but the belated returns coming in from small centres were favorable to government control and those still to come are not likely to have any important bearing on the result.

Sober Island was one of the first to report the result. The vote was 214 for government control to 6 for the temperance act.

All the large districts voted overwhelmingly for government control. At the last plebiscite, ten years ago, 80,000 voted for prohibition and 23,000 against.

Great interest was taken in the campaign, which was the hottest ever waged on the liquor question in this province. Ten thousand miners in Cape Breton received a holiday, and in Halifax many of the large industries closed down for the day.

Halifax City gave a majority of 10,000 for government control. Rum runners and bootleggers were out in force against government control, and to the surprise of many, Lunenburg, the great fishing centre of the province, voted for the temperance act.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 31 (AP).—Definite results of yesterday's general election show that the Ferguson government, which supported government liquor control, will have ninety members in the next House, against twenty-one members of other groups, including two independent Conservatives. The Liberals will have twelve members and the Progressives three.

TARDIEU TAKES TASK OF FORMING CABINET AS CLEMENTEL FAILS

BUT BARS RIGHT MINISTRY

Left Parties Expected to Join in Opposition—Paul-Boncour Mentioned if Plans Fail.

By P. J. PHILIP.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—France's governmental crisis, which has lasted for ten days, became grave this evening when Senator Clementel, the second choice for Premier made by the President of the republic, was forced to abandon the task of forming a Cabinet.

André Tardieu, M. Clemenceau's lieutenant during the peace conference and head of France's war mission to the United States, is tonight the President's third choice. He has undertaken to try to form a new ministry, and tomorrow will consult his friends, but it is already apparent that he faces very serious difficulties. Though he is optimistic, his success is by no means to be counted on yet.

Briand Sets Conditions.

M. Briand has promised his support, as he did to Edouard Daladier and to Senator Clementel, but under the same conditions, namely, that the Cabinet must be really representative and one which will have the support of Parliament during the weeks to come, when the Rhineland evacuation, the application of the Young plan and naval limitation must be discussed.

If M. Tardieu's Cabinet goes too far to the Right, it is very probable that M. Briand will withdraw his support, as he did from M. Daladier when the latter sought to go too far to the Left.

M. Clementel's experience today is a warning to M. Tardieu that he must be prepared to face serious opposition and will have to count carefully the votes he may expect to receive before he faces the Chamber. M. Daladier attempted to form a Left Government. M. Clementel sought to make one of the Centre, with Left support. He was willing to offer the Radicals several important Ministries, including the Vice Presidency of the Cabinet. But the party insisted that it should have the Ministry of the Interior, which post has been held for the past year by M. Tardieu, after it had been occupied for twenty years by a Radical representative.

Radicals Cause Deadlock.

To M. Tardieu was offered the Ministry of the Navy and he declared himself willing to accept the change, though he and several other members of the Centre opposed strongly the allocation of the Ministry of the Interior to M. Daladier on the ground that it would deprive the Cabinet of many Centre votes.

But the Radical leader insisted that the post should be the price of Radical support, and his attitude was supported by his party, several members of which decided to refuse Ministerial posts if their chief could not be included.

In face of the deadlock M. Clementel, after consultation with M. Briand and M. Tardieu at the Quai d'Orsay, decided to inform the President that he had failed to secure the collaboration he had hoped for and withdrew.

There was some uncertainty as to whom the President would next send for. It was thought he would again try for a Left Centre Cabinet, but he sent at once for M. Tardieu. When he announced to the newspaper men at the Elysée that he had accepted the mission M. Tardieu said he would try to make his decisions by tomorrow and have his Cabinet ready by Saturday evening.

His first visit, as were those of M. Daladier and M. Clementel, was to

VICTORY FOR WALKER BY RECORD PLURALITY PREDICTED BY CURRY

Mayor, Berry and McKee Will Better Copeland's Mark of 547,202, He Asserts.

RECENT ESTIMATE RAISED

John F. Curry, leader of Tammany Hall, predicted yesterday that the Democratic city ticket would receive a greater plurality than ever has been received before by a candidate for office in New York City.

This assertion by Mr. Curry indicated that the Tammany leader expected the re-election of Mayor Walker, Controller Berry and Aldermanic President McKee by pluralities of approximately 550,000 at least. The highest plurality ever received by a candidate was that given last year for United States Senator Royal S. Copeland, running for re-election. Senator Copeland's plurality over Alanson B. Houghton, Republican, was 547,202. Four years ago, Mayor Walker received a plurality of 402,123. In 1926, Alfred E. Smith's plurality for Governor over Ogden L. Mills, Republican, was 483,826; in 1924, Mr. Smith's plurality over Theodore Roosevelt, Republican candidate for Governor, was 519,946.

Predicts Record Plurality.

"I think the city ticket will receive a greater plurality than ever given for any candidate," Mr. Curry said when asked to make a forecast.

"Do you mean that Mayor Walker will receive a greater plurality than ever obtained by any other candidate for Mayor?" he was asked.

"I mean any other candidate for any office," he replied.

The Tammany chieftain made his prediction after a busy day during the course of which he talked with most of the Manhattan district leaders and his forecast was based on their reports and upon information received from Democratic leaders of the other boroughs. Mr. Curry, who for years has been regarded as an expert on election predictions, declined to amplify his forecast.

From other sources it was learned that the Tammany reports indicate that Mayor Walker has been making progress during the last week. Tammany, it was learned, does not concede that Representative F. H. La Guardia, Republican-Fusion candidate for Mayor, will carry one of the twenty-three Assembly districts in Manhattan and believes it possible that he will not carry an Assembly district in the city.

Mr. Curry's prediction that the plurality for Mayor Walker will exceed Senator Copeland's plurality of 547,202 indicates that the Tammany forecasters have amplified their esti-

RESERVE BOARD SEES SPECULATION CURBED

TREASURY HEADS HOPEFUL

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—A definite termination of the era of wild speculation and high money rates, which hampered some lines of industry and brought on the collapse of stock market values, was seen today by members of the Federal Reserve Board and other officials in the huge decrease of $1,096,000,000 in brokers' loans as reported by New York member banks, and the reduction, with the approval of the board, of the rediscount rate of the New York Reserve Bank from 6 to 5 per cent.

There was an intimation in one quarter also that while no further reduction of the rate—now at 5 per cent in all of the Reserve districts—was contemplated immediately, such action might be expected as money conditions in various sections of the country eased.

A general air of optimism prevailed among treasury officials, who again said that their latest surveys did not indicate that business had been seriously affected by the stock market crash, and offered the cheering prediction that the Christmas trade would be "very large and satisfactory."

In this connection it was said that incomes derived from stock market profits represented only a small percentage of the incomes that made up the holiday purchasing power.

Satisfaction Over Loan Reports.

Members of the Federal Reserve Board viewed the sharp decline in brokers' loans reported by the New York member banks with much satisfaction, even though the total was still considerably above the figure on the comparable date one year ago.

It is believed that, after the shiftings incident to a more complete stabilization of the stock market values, the total will continue to recede at a more gradual pace, until it is at a level against which the board will have no legitimate complaint.

Some members are said to be opposed to a policy that would have the government advocate further re-

BANK RATE CUT TO 5%, EASING CREDIT MORE

FOLLOWS BANK OF ENGLAND

Move Is Partly to Check Flow of Funds Here After London Rate Is Dropped to 6%.

The rate at which member banks may borrow from the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, raised last Aug. 8 to 6 per cent as a threat against excessive stock market speculation, was put back yesterday to the 5 per cent level which had previously been in force since July 13, 1928.

The move on the part of the local bank of issue followed the action of the Bank of England announced in London earlier in the day which reduced the British bank rate to 6 per cent from 6½ per cent where it had been placed last Sept. 26. The return of the New York rediscount rate to the 5 per cent level marks the recognition by the Federal Reserve authorities of the final collapse of the credit strain caused by the absorption of huge amounts of credit in the stock market. It coincided with the publication of brokers' loan figures showing a record-breaking decline of $1,096,000,000.

Move Was Expected.

The move had been generally expected in banking circles, for the rapid succession of exciting events in the financial world during the past week had clearly indicated that a reduction in the rediscount rate was in order. The speculative bubble had burst. Rates in all branches of credit had declined. In four successive reductions the yield on bankers' bills had been reduced from 5¼ per cent to 4¾ per cent, leaving the 6 per cent rediscount rate distinctly out of line.

The reduction of the local Reserve Bank's rate was the fourth cut by a central bank announced during the day. The Bank of the Netherlands, following the lead of the Bank of England, announced a reduction to 5 per cent from 5½ per cent. The latter rate has been in effect since March 25. The Irish Bank reduced its rate from 7 per cent to 6½ per cent.

The subject of the Federal Reserve rediscount rate has occupied an unusual prominence this year because of the efforts of the Reserve authorities to curb the expansion of credit entailed in the advance of security prices. In February the Federal Reserve Board issued a warning against the absorption of credit by the stock market and threatened to take steps against member banks which resorted to excessive rediscounting to maintain speculative loans. It was expected at that time that a series of advances in the rediscount rate would be effected.

The Federal Reserve Board chose, however, to operate through the manipulation of its portfolio—that is, through open market sales of bankers' bills and United States Government securities rather than through the traditional weapon of the central bank, the rediscount rate. In so doing the board came into sharp conflict with the directors of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. The authorities of the loan institution were strongly in favor of an advance in the rediscount rate as were the directors of the Reserve banks of Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia.

Nevertheless, the Federal Reserve Board clung to its position, and the unusual situation of call money rates fluctuating between 10 and 20 per cent, time money rates in excess of 9 per cent yield, rates on bankers' acceptances at 5% per cent, and a general extreme stringency in all de-

LOANS DROP $1,096,000,000

RUSH TO BUY NATION-WIDE

PRICES STRONG AT CLOSE

Markets to Be Open Only One Day in Next Five—Bank Pool Still on Alert.

Under the impetus of a tremendous volume of orders to buy at the market, the prices of stocks bounded forward vigorously yesterday and established further progress toward complete stabilization. Wide gains, ranging from 2 to more than 30 points, were established in the most active Stock Exchange issues. Curb gains ranged up to 55½ points, while bank and other stocks across the counter responded keenly to the steady buying.

The news of the day was all constructive, including a reduction in the rates of rediscount at New York and London and a $1,096,000,000 shrinkage in the brokers' loan totals. Doubtless, these developments will be of far-reaching importance in stabilizing a badly shattered market, but yesterday's real influence was the steady inflow of orders, ranging in size from 50,000 shares down to a single share, which reached the markets from men and women of every estate.

Second Day of Sustained Rally.

It was a remarkable exhibition of confidence in the country's stability and prosperity, bankers said, and it represented the second day of wide and sustained rally. The prices of leading issues now are up 10 to 70 points from their lows of Monday and Tuesday, and the hysteria which seized the country on those days, as well as on the previous Thursday, seems now to have definitely vanished.

The postponement of the security markets' opening until 12 o'clock gave ample opportunity for investors in all parts of the country to pick the securities which financial, industrial and political leaders had declared to be sound and at "investment levels."

There was no artificial banking support at the opening; in fact, it was not needed. Such a tremendous torrent of buying power was released on the market's start that the scramble to buy stocks was just about as disorderly and as wild as had been the scramble to sell stocks two or three days before.

Opening Gains Are Notable.

Wall Street, accustomed to starting its day at 10 o'clock, was all set for a big opening at 12, and it was not disappointed. Opening prices on the Stock Exchange were 2 to 25½ points higher, while on the Curb leading shares reflected an overnight improvement of a point or so to as much as 42%. These initial sales were on a tremendous volume of orders, all of them bunched and with blocks of 10,000, 20,000 and up to 40,000 shares coming out in quick succession on the tickers. In the first half hour a total of 2,482,000 shares were handled on the Stock Exchange.

The opening pace was too hot to hold, and at the end of the first hour the market had eased off moderately. In fact, most stocks did not again reach their opening levels during the three hours' trading. The recessions, however, were not large ones, nor important, representing mainly trading profits being taken on stocks purchased the previous day, and on which some extraordinarily good gains had been established.

Brisk Rally Precedes Close.

Another brisk rally developed just before the close as belated buying orders reached the market and many stocks advanced smartly just before the closing bell. Solid buying of the most impressive sort was in the market. Its range was tremendous. Bankers were heavy buyers for their own account, institutions were in the market for selected stocks, investment trusts were making purchases here and there. The backbone of the purchasing, however, came from the country at large, in the many thousands of 50-share, 100-share and 200-share orders, which represented a tremendous total.

Naturally, it was the standard stocks which were in demand and this was reflected in orders which began to flood into brokers' offices hours before the opening.

It would be difficult to classify the orders which reached the market, as to define the varied factors which brought them in. It could be attributed to a wide variety of causes: First, the market's own indicated ability to regain its equilibrium; the steady and determined support afforded by banking interests; the cessation of forced and frightened liquidation; the cleaning up of thousands of weakly margined accounts and the passage of these stocks into hands capable of seeing them through; the declaration by the country's leading men, including John D. Rockefeller Sr., that stocks had reached a level where they appealed to the prudent investor; and, finally, the complete elimination of the hysteria which had swept the country.

Reports to Wall Street indicated that all markets were better and that prices were higher around the world. Markets of the world have more or less taken their cue from the fluctuations of prices on the New York Stock Exchange during the last few days. When our markets improved, it was the signal for quick revival abroad, and particularly in the interior markets of this country. Bank stocks revived quickly and the general level of over the counter security prices was once more definitely higher last night.

	Low	Yester-day.	Net Change for Day.

7,149,390 Shares Sold.

Trading on the Stock Exchange aggregated 7,149,390 shares in the three hours of dealings. In the first half hour, 2,452,000 shares were traded in; by 1:30 P. M. the volume had reached 4,472,000 shares, and by 2:10 o'clock 5,312,800. These totals far exceed the average for a normal five-hour day, and as a result of the big dealings the tickers once more fell far behind the market. They were sixty-three minutes behind just before 2 o'clock and it was 108 minutes after 3 when the final quotation was printed. Similar lateness and confusion existed on the Curb Market.

There will be but one trading day in the next five. All security markets in the country will close today and Saturday to give brokerage staffs an opportunity to catch up with the work of the tremendous markets and to allow a respite for frayed nerves of Wall Street workers. The market will resume Monday, but close again Tuesday for the city election.

Great interest now centers in the Monday morning quotations, in view of yesterday's evidence that the market once more is in an upward trend. It is not expected that the bull movement will be resumed. In fact, any such a development probably would be sharply discouraged. It is expected that the markets will seek an equitable price level and then quiet down until normal conditions have been entirely restored.

BANK STOCKS MAKE FURTHER RECOVERY

National City, Guaranty, Chase and First National Score Substantial Gains.

Bank stocks continued yesterday their recovery from the low prices reached early in the week. National City, Guaranty and Chase were the leaders in the movement. Elsewhere in the unlisted market the undertone was generally strong.

First National, as is not unusual with this stock, provided the most abrupt change with a rise of 500 points to a closing bid of 6,500. United States Trust was up 200 at 3,500. The other bank and trust issues showed comparable gains. National City was up 30 points at 440, Guaranty up 60 points at 630 and Chase up 15 at 200. Bankers Trust gained 20, Equitable Trust 55, Bank of Manhattan old 75, Bank of Manhattan new 15, Manufacturers Trust 19, Central Hanover 40, Corn Exchange 35 and New York Trust 10.

These gains are based on the best bids available for the stocks at the close. The unlisted market opened late, at 11 o'clock, and closed at 4. It will do no trading today or tomorrow.

There was a generally upward trend among investment trust issues. American Founders gained 11 points on the closing bid and British Type Investors 2 points. Securities Corporation General, stock in which is closely held, gained 75 points on a moderate volume. Power and Light Securities gained 18, both these issues reflecting the better prices for utilities in the open markets. United States Electric Light and Power A gained 14½ points for the same reason.

Chemical National Association gained 3, Continental Shares 12, Massachusetts Investing 3¾, Mohawk Investing 5½, United States Electric Power A and United Founders 7.

There was activity among insurance issues. Sun Life moved up 500 points and Globe and Rutgers 200. Aetna Fire gained 35, Great American 14, Aetna Life 10 and Hanover 7.

The trend was firm with some exceptions among industrial and chain store issues. Babcock & Wilcox moved up 4 points and National Casket dropped 15 points. Technicolor and White Rock second preferred lost 5 points each. Bonds, communication issues, sugar stocks and aeronautical were fairly quiet.

$1,096,000,000 DROP IN BROKERS' LOANS

Ten Months' Expansion Is Virtually Wiped Out in a Single Week.

BIGGEST CUT ON RECORD

Total Now Is $6,538,000,000, or $1,264,000,000 Below High Record of Oct. 2.

Reflecting the tremendous slash in security prices during the past week, the total of brokers' loans, as announced last night by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, dropped $1,096,000,000, by far the largest decrease in the security loans ever recorded. The huge reduction cut the total of loans from $6,634,900,000, the figure shown in last week's statement, to $5,538,000,000, the lowest point reached since June 19. At last night's figures brokers' loans stood only $204,103,000 above the level shown at the first of the year. The terrific blow which struck the market this week wiped out almost all the expansion of speculative loans which has exercised the banking authorities of the country during the last ten months.

The decrease of $1,096,000,000 compares with one of $232,000,000 shown in the statement for May 29, the previous record cut in brokers' loans, and an advance of $238,676,000 over the previous record rise in the loans figures, which took place over the end of the year and was announced Jan. 2. Last week's statement showed a decline of $167,000,000. The total of brokers' loans stood, at last night's figure, $1,226,000,000 below the high record, which was shown on Oct. 2. On that date the Federal Reserve reported $6,804,000,000.

Shift of Loan Accounts.

Even more striking from the point of view of the banking community than the enormous reduction in brokers' loans was the scope of the shift from the accounts of out-of-town banks and "others" to New York City banks.

During the week the group classed as "others," composed of corporations, wealthy individuals and various non-banking lenders, called in $1,380,000,000, or more than one-third of the money which it had been lending to Wall Street, while out-of-town banks pulled $707,000,000 of their loans out of the Street. To take the place of these enormous withdrawals New York City banks were forced to increase their advances to brokers by $992,000,000.

Coming in a period of profound disturbance in the financial district this unprecedented shifting of loans placed a heavy burden upon the banking institutions of the city. The fact that they were able to meet the situation without causing the slightest disturbance to money rates was regarded as striking evidence of their strength.

Not only brokers but also individuals called heavily upon the banks for accommodation. The total of loans on security advanced by member banks in this city showed a gain of $1,200,000,000 during the week, while total loans and investments rose $1,391,000,000. Reflecting the withdrawal of corporations and individuals from the call market, net demand deposits of the banks rose $1,553,000,000.

The shift in the figures showed plainly what had happened. Some non-banking lenders, alarmed at the sudden destruction in value of the securities on the stock markets of the country became fearful for the safety of their loans. They hurriedly called for payment and took the money to the banks to be placed on deposit. Others called loans to purchase stocks with the money.

Banks Able to Meet Strain.

This development was one which had been generally predicted by banking leaders, they believing that the enormous growth of loans for the account of others might be a disturbing factor in the credit situation. However, the wholesale withdrawal of funds by non-banking lenders came at a time when easing credit conditions had placed the banks in a position to meet the great demands made upon them. At the same time, the Federal Reserve authorities poured into the market large amounts of credit through purchases of government securities. Despite the heavy requisitions made upon local banks these institutions found it necessary to increase their borrowing at the Federal Reserve Bank by only $129,000,000, leaving the total of indebtedness of the member banks of the city to the bank of issue at the comparatively small figure of $170,000,000.

Following are the detailed figures on stock and bond collateral loans made to brokers and dealers by reporting member banks in New York City:

Loans on securities to brokers and dealers:

(000 omitted.)	Oct. 30, 1929.	Oct. 23, 1929.	Oct. 31, 1928.
For own account	2,003	1,677	1,031
For others	2,443	3,823	2,156

Of this week's total, $5,063,000,000 constitutes demand loans, against $6,634,000,000 last week and $475,000,000 time loans, against $439,000,000 a week ago.

Increase in Reserve Credit.

Reflecting the efforts of the local Federal Reserve Bank to aid the banks of the city in meeting the enormous demands of the week, the statement of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York showed a total increase in reserve credit outstanding of $256,813,000 over the figures for a week ago. By far the greater part of this increase in credit was provided by the bank's purchases of United States Government bonds in the open market. A total of $140,679,000 of these securities was purchased during the week, lifting the bank's holdings to $166,113,000 from the negligible figure of $17,434,000 shown a week ago.

Holdings of bills bought in the open market dropped $22,787,000 during the week, reflecting the run-off of maturing bills and the failure of the bank to receive offers due to the spread between its established buying rate of 5 per cent and the open market rate of 4¾ per cent. Discounts rose $123,071,000 during the week.

As a result of the large increase in deposits experienced by the banks, reserves against these deposits rose sharply and the ratio of reserve to deposits and Federal Reserve note liability dropped off. Member bank reserve deposits showed an advance of $246,003,000 during the week, while total deposits at the Reserve bank were up $246,068,000. Reserve notes in actual circulation increased $16,896,000. Against this increase in liabilities the bank showed a gain in total gold reserves of only $9,951,000. As a result the reserve ratio slumped 13.9 per cent to 71.8 per cent, as compared with 85.7 per cent last week.

While the most spectacular changes in the position of the Reserve system had their origin in New York City, the twelve banks of the system followed closely in the steps of the local bank. The statement for the system shows an advance in total bills discounted of $194,690,000, a decline in bills bought in the open market of $39,498,000 and an advance of $156,984,000 in holdings of United States Government securities. As a result of these changes the total of Reserve credit being used by the market was increased $312,086,000 during the week.

The statement of the system also showed a drop in reserve ratio from 74.5 per cent last week to 69.4 per cent. This was occasioned by the combined influence of a reduction of $14,062,000 in total gold reserves and advances of $22,860,000 in note circulation and $275,511,000 in member bank reserve deposits.

CURB STOCKS SHOW GAINS.

Many Issues React After Strong Opening, but Recover Later.

Opening well above the closing levels of the day before, the leading issues on the Curb Exchange reacted moderately during the greater part of yesterday's three-hour trading period, recovering in the late trading to slightly under the opening or best levels of the day. Some issues opened at about double the last price of Wednesday.

At closing prices most of the principal utilities, investment trusts and oils showed substantial gains for the day, with large turnovers, despite the short session. Among the day's features was Standard Power and Light, which closed at 33 on Wednesday, opened at 92¼ yesterday, soared to 160 and ended at 118, up 33 points on the day.

The investment trusts were generally stronger, those with utility holdings showing the broader gains. The general type of trusts showed moderate advances.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES UP.

Buying Orders Flood Market as Most Issues Score Gains.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 31.—A flood of buying orders sent prices advancing rapidly when the Philadelphia Stock Exchange opened at noon today for its three-hour session. The market later in the day steadied in a reassuring fashion. At no time was any evidence of bearish sentiment displayed here and final figures showed only about one-half a dozen issues with minus marks.

With sales of more than 60,000 shares, United Gas Improvement new stock was the most active of the issues locally.

BUYING IS HEAVY IN BOSTON.

Utilities and Investment Trusts Make Best Gains for Day.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 31.—Aggressive buying in the utilities and investment trusts featured today's trading in the short session from noon to 3 o'clock on the Boston Exchange. Edison Electric was the outstanding performer, advancing from a low of 250½ to 275, but profit-taking in the final hour drove it to 260 at the close, up 10 points.

New England Telephone was up 10, ranging from 148 to 155, where it closed.

Even Antarctic Felt Crash; Byrd Aide a Loser, but Grins

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, Oct. 31.—The reverberations of Wall Street are heard and felt even in the Antarctic. Just before the expedition left, one of the members took a flier in an automobile stock. Ever since, he has been watching it fluctuate, and when the recent crash came his stock went tumbling down about 90 points. However, he took it philosophically.

"Did it hit you hard?" he was asked.

"Hard? It ruined me," he said with a grin, "and I thought I was going to have such a good time with that money when I got home."

"Well," was the retort, "this is a grand place to be ruined. You don't have to keep up appearances."

BIG FORCES AT WORK POSTING LEDGERS

EXCHANGES WILL BE OPEN

Specialists and Floor Traders Must Attend Until All Deals Are Adjusted.

With a three-day pause in security trading, Wall Street last night marshaled its great army of clerical workers and plunged into the task of posting books on the unprecedented stock market of the last week.

Trading on the stock exchanges of the country will be suspended until Monday and in the intervening three days a huge mop-up squad will be occupied in sweeping up the debris left by the market convulsion. The places of thousands of workers who have been driven to exhaustion will be filled by others and business will go on as usual in the financial district, except that there will be no stock market.

The Stock Exchange and the Curb will be open today and tomorrow so that unfinished business may be wound up. All of the brokerage houses will keep open with ample staffs on hand to transact routine business. The money desk on the floor of the Stock Exchange will function all day and the loan crowd will assemble as usual so that stocks may be borrowed to cover deliveries that must be made on Monday.

Attendance Is Demanded.

A rigid rule was laid down by the Stock Exchange yesterday to compel the attendance of specialists and floor brokers at 10 o'clock this morning and at the same time tomorrow morning. Violation of the rule will invite disciplinary action. Richard Whitney, vice president of the Exchange, announced the ruling from the rostrum at the close of the market yesterday. Specialists and floor brokers, he said, must remain on the floor today and tomorrow until such time as all of their open transactions have been adjusted.

Similar instructions were issued by the Curb authorities.

Every precaution has been taken by both Exchanges to insure the adjustment of contracts between now and Monday, so that the new week will open on a clean slate. The Stock Clearing Corporation of the Stock Exchange yesterday extended the delivery time on Wednesday's business from 2:15 to 4 P. M., as was done on the previous day. It was announced that all transactions made yesterday are to be closed tomorrow and will be settled by deliveries on Monday. All transactions made prior to yesterday had to be cleared up, as far as possible, by deliveries yesterday.

The stock transfer department of the Stock Clearing Corporation will be open as usual today. Member firms are required to make settlements of previous transactions today and tomorrow where deliveries are tendered. It was also announced that night clearing branch sheets for yesterday's business must be submitted by 10 A. M. tomorrow. Deliveries of the balances resulting from this clearance must be made on Monday.

The Stock Clearing Corporation has been functioning so smoothly as to bring a resolution of congratulation from the governing committee of the exchange.

It was said yesterday that a surprisingly small number of delivery failures had been reported.

Disputes to be Arbitrated.

Among the problems which brokers will take up today is the settlement of many trades which have remained open for several days. The arbitration committee of the Stock Exchange and the same body of the Curb have before them a great many disputes, but for the most part they are of a routine character.

Inquiry at some of the leading brokerage houses yesterday brought the information that they are anywhere from two days to two weeks behind on their bookkeeping. Much progress can be made, however, in the next three days and on Tuesday, when the Exchange also will be closed.

August Advance a Surprise.

The advance in the rediscount of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York last August to 6 per cent came as a complete surprise to Wall Street. The move was generally accepted as a compromise measure, since it was accompanied by a reduction of the rate at which the Reserve Bank purchases bankers' bills.

The latter step was by far the more important one, since it resulted in a flow of Reserve credit to the market. The advance in the rediscount rate was regarded by informed bankers as little more than a reproving gesture in the direction of the defiant bull market, designed to offset the cheering effects of the reduction in the bill buying rate. By the time the rediscount rate was raised bankers who previously had been urging an increase felt that the opportune time for such a move had been passed. The Fall season, when credit demands are urgent, was at hand and it was the function of the Reserve Bank to make credit available, not to curtail it, they declared.

The result of the unusual straddle contained in the simultaneous increase in the rediscount rate and the reduction in the bill buying rate was a shifting in the source of the Federal Reserve credit being used by the market. As the bank of issue purchased acceptances the funds thus placed in the market were utilized by member banks of the system to reduce discounts.

Total Discounts Shrink.

In the statement for the twelve banks of the Federal Reserve System as of Aug. 7, published the same day the advance in the rediscount rate was announced, the total of bills discounted stood at $1,064,070,000, while holdings of bills bought in the open market came to $75,189,000. Last night's Federal Reserve statement showed total discounts of $891,038,000 and total bill holdings of $229,885,000. During the period the total of outstanding Federal Reserve credit increased from $1,311,425,000 on Aug. 7 to $1,648,745,000, an advance of $337,314,000. At the same time call money rates fell from 10 per cent to 6 per cent, time money rates from 9 per cent to 6 per cent and bill rates from 5¼ per cent to 4¾ per cent. In other words, an expansion of credit was effected to the accompaniment of easing money rates.

The latest action of the Federal Reserve authorities signifies a striking modification of their attitude toward the money market so long as securities were advancing by leaps and bounds on the Stock Exchanges of the country and millions of dollars were being daily sucked into the huge total of credit absorbed in security speculation the Reserve kept a tight hold upon the credit reins. Now that brokers' loans have been deflated to within $208,103,000 of the level at which they stood at the beginning of the year and the pressing need of the business of the country is for plenty of cheap money, the Federal Reserve is pumping credit into the market.

Another factor behind the reduction in the rediscount rate is the desire of the banking authorities in this country to facilitate the recovery of the central banks of Europe, notably the Bank of England, from the effects of the long continued drain of funds to this market, lured by high money rates here.

Leading banking authorities believe that the unusual chapter in our financial history during which money rates soared to 20 per cent while business advanced to record proportions has ended. It is now thought that for some time to come credit in this market will be easy. As a result those branches of business and financial activity which have suffered from the credit stringency may be expected to revive.

BANK OF ENGLAND CUTS RATE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The governors of the Bank of England took the bold and unexpected step this morning of lowering the bank rate to 6 per cent after it had stood at 6½ per cent through five difficult weeks.

Their action was regarded as a godsend to British business and as a gesture of reassurance to America. The surprise element in the announcement made it all the more welcome. Not an inkling of the bank's intentions became known beforehand, and although a lower bank rate had been hoped for, it had not been thought possible quite so soon.

Cheers rang out on the floor of the Stock Exchange when the announcement was made. Prices in virtually all issues advanced and swept ahead in a bouyant spirit until closing time. Business leaders who had shaken their heads gloomily five weeks ago issued statements radiating optimism, although expressing the hope that the rate could be lowered still further in the next few months.

The prevalent feeling was that the rise in the bank rate to 6½ per cent had served its purpose. Although not much gold has flowed back to England, it is felt that the tide has turned and monetary stringency has been corrected. The past week's crash in Wall Street has hastened the flow of gold to London until London no longer regards New York as a threat to its gold supply. Large shipments on the way from Australia and New Zealand helped to make the Bank's action possible at this time.

Although London has experienced no terrific shock like the Wall Street crash, it has gone through a trying period. The Hatry crash last month coming on top of the heavy gold withdrawals left the market distinctly shaky. The postponed settlement day for the Hatry accounts falls next Thursday and had been regarded with ill-concealed dread. Now, however, with the lower bank rate and higher market values, the affected brokerage houses should be in a better position to meet their losses.

"The news is most encouraging and will considerably help manufacturers in this country," said Sir John Corcoran, director of the National Association of Manufacturers. "The absence of the speculative element that has been so prominent in America has no doubt helped to give other people confidence in us. We still want further reductions, however, to help put our industries on their feet and in a position to meet foreign competition."

Sir Gilbert Vyle, former president of the Associated British Chambers of Commerce, also expressed the hope that the downward movement in the bank rate would continue.

Irish Rate Reduced.

DUBLIN, Oct. 31 (AP).—The Irish bank rate was reduced today from 7 per cent to 6½ per cent.

English Charge Still High.

When the Bank of England rate was advanced to 6½ per cent on Sept. 26, it replaced a 5½ per cent rate which had held since Feb. 7. The advance made at that date replaced a 4½ per cent bank rate which had continued uninterruptedly since April 21, 1927. The present 6 per cent rate is still abnormally high for the Bank of England. Except for the recent rate of 6½ per cent, it is the highest since 1921, but had been temporarily changed during the last half of 1916. Before the war a 6 per cent rate existed in 1906, 1907, 1908 and during occasionally frequent intervals in the earlier period.

In the three and a half months before the bank rate was raised to 6½ per cent last September, the Bank of England lost $139,000,000 from its gold reserve through export. Since the fixing of the 6½ per cent rate, the Bank has gained $9,000,000 through import, and the gain would have been much larger but for continuances of gold exports to France during the last two weeks.

NYE ASKS INQUIRY INTO SPECULATION

SEES THREAT TO STABILITY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Senator Nye, insurgent Republican of North Dakota, voiced the opinion today that the near-panic on the Stock Exchange had demonstrated the necessity for an investigation by Congress of "the facts and practices concerning or relative to speculative operations connected with the stock exchanges of the United States," and offered a Senate resolution to that effect.

Under the resolution, a committee of five, including the chairmen and ranking minority members of the Judiciary and Banking and Currency Committees, would conduct the inquiry and recommend remedial legislation to Congress not later than Feb. 1. The Senators specified in the resolution are Norris and Norbeck, Republicans, and Overman and Fletcher, Democrats. Under the rules the resolution was put over for further consideration, and whether it will be acted upon in the special session remains in doubt.

Considerable sentiment has formed behind suggestions for an inquiry, however, since the stock market smash, in the belief that something should be done to avert a repetition of such a collapse.

Control by Insurgents.

If the Nye resolution is adopted, making Senators Norris and Norbeck members of the committee, control of the inquiry would virtually be left in the hands of the so-called insurgent group. No matter who might be named as the fifth member by the Vice President, he could always be outvoted by the coalition of insurgents and Democrats.

To this extent the resolution goes outside the usual procedure in the Senate, which customarily leaves to the discretion of the Vice President the make-up of a committee, at least so far as factional politics of its members may be involved.

Senator Nye, in introducing his resolution, said the investigation should be undertaken at once, so that an early report could be made.

Members of the insurgent Republican group may attempt to force action in the hope that they will be joined by the Democrats, but in view of the tangle over the tariff bill, doubt was expressed in some quarters that any proposal of the kind would receive serious consideration before the regular session in December.

Resolution Refers to Losses.

The Nye resolution declared:

"Whereas, it appears impossible, in the absence of any great natural physical calamity, that an actual loss of $15,000,000,000 of intrinsic values in stocks and bonds or any other loss amounting to billions of dollars can actually occur in a single day or in a few days; and

"Whereas, the actual intrinsic values of securities based upon the physical properties devoted to the industrial and economic processes of the nation cannot change day by day at relatively great differences without peril to the economic structure of the nation; and

"Whereas such great and violent fluctuations as have occurred during recent months are apparently the result of speculative operations on the stock exchanges of the nation; and

"Whereas, such speculative operations have caused a siphoning of the money necessary to the normal commercial and industrial functions of the people from remote sections of the country; and

Sees Threat to Stability.

"Whereas, the speculative operations of the stock exchange threatens the stability and integrity of the entire industrial life of the country; and

"Whereas it is necessary that legislation be enacted to regulate purely speculative operations in the securities representing the physical equipment of the industrial structure of the nation; and

"Whereas, the Supreme Court of the United States has confirmed the power of Congress to elicit information as the basis of necessary legislation; therefore be it

"Resolved, that a committee of five Senators be appointed by the Vice President, which shall include as members thereof the chairman and the ranking minority member of both the Committee of Judiciary and the Committee on Banking and Currency of the Senate, and that such committee is hereby authorized and directed by subcommittee or otherwise, to investigate the facts and the practices concerning or relative to speculative operations connected with stock exchanges within the United States and to report their findings, together with such recommendations as they deem necessary, to the Senate not later than Feb. 1, 1930."

BRANCH SAVINGS BANKS URGED BY O. C. LESTER

Bowery Official Holds Better Facilities Would Bring Them Funds Now in Wall Street.

An extension of savings banks through community branches and the segregation of savings deposits from other accounts in commercial banks was urged yesterday by Orrin C. Lester, vice president of the Bowery Savings Bank, as a means of encouraging thrift and protecting the small depositor against the use of his savings for speculation in Wall Street.

Mr. Lester spoke at a luncheon of the Bronx Chamber of Commerce in the Concourse Plaza Hotel on the problems confronting savings banks as a result of the increased activity in the stock market.

"We not only need segregation of the savings funds of commercial banks," he said, "but also some expansion of the rights of savings banks themselves. The Legislature should ask commercial banks to handle their thrift accounts in the same way that savings banks do.

"The average individual is investment-minded instead of savings-minded and is drawing out for speculation the savings we have protected. The savings bank is a personal bank, but the law has not permitted an extension of it to care for the growing needs of the people. The greatest need of the savings bank is the right that a commercial bank now has of extending itself in community branches."

Mr. Lester pointed out that of the $10,000,000,000 in savings accounts in the country, $5,000,000,000 is in the savings institutions of this State. The New York State law allows 20 per cent of that amount, or about $3,250,000,000, to be invested in real estate, he said, and the Bowery Savings Bank has 48 per cent of its funds so invested.

WORCESTER BROKERS FAIL.

Four Creditors File Claims for $3,100 Against Firm.

BOSTON, Oct. 31 (AP).—Bankruptcy petitions were filed today against Charles L. Riley and Michael D. Fitzgerald, investment brokers doing business as Riley, Fitzgerald & Co., with offices in Worcester, by four creditors whose claims aggregated $3,100. The petitioners were Marshall J. Field, Frank M. Field, Thomas F. McGuinness and Lyle J. McManamy.

The petition said the claims presented were for amounts due on open accounts in stock transactions. The Worcester firm closed its doors yesterday.

SEES BENEFIT IN DECLINE.

Ex-Gov. McKelvie of Nebraska Says Credit Will Flow to Farms.

In an interview here yesterday afternoon, Samuel R. McKelvie, former Governor of Nebraska, expressed the belief that the recent breaks in the stock market would have "no serious permanent effects."

"My reaction is that the ultimate effect will be good," said Mr. McKelvie. "In the first place, money that has been going into the stock market for speculative purposes will now flow out into the agricultural regions for ordinary uses in financing the agricultural activities. There has been a scarcity of money at normal rates in the agricultural regions.

"Another thing is that in the long run industry will not be required to earn upon such large capitalizations."

DANISH BANK TO REOPEN.

Folkebanken Closed After Suicide of Financier—Arrest Is Made.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 31 (AP).—The Folkebanken, which suspended payments several days ago, will reopen tomorrow. Its capital has been reduced by 40 per cent and other banks have guaranteed all deposits.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 31.—Eskil Yding, a director of the Crown Butter Export Company, Ltd., bankrupt Plum concern, was arrested here yesterday. Yding was an intimate friend of Harald Plum, Danish financier, who committed suicide, after which the Folkebanken closed and two brokerage houses also suspended.

5 Flint (Mich.) Bank Employes Lose $800,000 In Stock Speculation and Are Discharged

Special to The New York Times.

FLINT, Mich., Oct. 31.—An $800,000 shortage in funds of the Union Industrial Bank of Flint has been discovered, it was announced today. The shortage has been doubly covered by collateral furnished by Charles S. Mott, chairman of the board, and by the directors, as individuals.

Five employes of the bank are said to have lost the money in stock market speculation.

Mr. Mott said the bank had dismissed the men implicated, but had not yet decided whether to prosecute them. He said the employes themselves revealed the shortage, appearing before the directors and admitting their transactions in stocks with the bank's funds.

The employes are Russell Hunyan, teller; Mark Kelly and Ivan P. Christensen, assistant cashiers; Milton Pollock, assistant vice president, and E. D. Graham, cashier and vice president.

A joint statement issued by Mr. Mott and Grant J. Brown, president of the bank, said:

"Funds of the Union Industrial Bank have been used by a small group of employes. The loss is covered by insurance, and pending collection under the surety bond the directors have turned in the amount involved.

"Thus the incident in no way impairs the condition of the bank, which is the largest in the city and one of the strongest in the State, being a part of the Guardian-Detroit Union Group, Inc., with capital of $75,000,000 and with total resources of over $500,000,000."

BIG ODD-LOT BUYING HELPS STOCK RISE

MANY ARE CASH PURCHASES

Brokers Nearly Swamped, With Total Between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 Shares for Day.

A record volume of buying orders for less than 100 shares of stock poured into commission houses yesterday from all parts of the country, almost swamping the facilities of brokers who specialize in these orders.

The tremendous overnight accumulation of odd-lot buying orders was ascribed by many bankers as the cause for the wide advances that leading Stock Exchange issues scored. In one issue alone 3,000 odd-lot buying orders were received before the Exchange opened at noon, while 2,700 other buying orders had accumulated for another popular issue. These odd-lot orders were lumped together by the odd-lot specialists and were executed an eighth or a quarter of a point above the opening price for hundred share lots, in accordance with the rules of the Exchange.

The relative scarcity of selling orders caused delay in the opening of many popular issues, it was reported. After the break of the previous Thursday, Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co. had declared that the slump was caused by "air pockets" under several issues. Yesterday similar air pockets developed above dozens of stocks as a result of the absence of selling orders and led to wide advances at the opening.

The odd-lot business yesterday was estimated at 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 shares, a record for any three-hour period of trading, and compared with Wednesday's record for a full five-hour session of more than 6,000,000 shares. The odd-lot total is not included by the Stock Exchange in official figures for the volume of trading. The total of odd-lot and round-lot trading yesterday was estimated at nearly 12,000,000 shares.

While orders for odd lots yesterday were several times as numerous as odd-lot selling orders, odd-lot selling orders on Monday and Tuesday were nearly twice as numerous as the buying orders. On Wednesday the tide began to turn, and with the restoration of public confidence odd-lot buying exceeded selling by a large margin.

Many of yesterday's odd-lot orders represented cash purchases. A large local trust company reported 2,400 cash-buying orders, while a private banking firm had 700 similar orders.

SISSON DECRIES INFLATION.

Lays Crash to Small Investors' Lack of Experience.

Thousands of small investors with no experience in the intelligent buying and selling of securities were the chief factor in the inflation of stock prices which produced the corrective action of the market in the last week, Francis H. Sisson, vice president of the Guaranty Trust Company, asserted last night in an address at the McMillin Academic Theatre of Columbia University.

When it finally was realized that prices were out of all proportion to the earning powers of securities, a frenzy of selling resulted which was unprecedented as the previous frenzy of buying, Mr. Sisson declared.

"What effect will this have on business?" he asked. "Both by curtailing purchasing power and impairing the confidence of consumers and business men alike, a severe reaction in stock prices has an unfavorable influence on general trade. This influence acts first on the market for luxuries; then if the effects are marked business in other commodities is also restricted.

"It is to be expected, therefore, that industrial and commercial activity will be affected to some extent by a decline in stock prices and that the effects will be more pronounced than is warranted by the cause. But the experience of recent yearrs justifies the hope that any recession resulting from the action of the market will not be violent or of long duration."

SATIRIZES WALL STREET.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—A fat man, just awakened with a splitting headache, sits up in bed and sees his room in indescribable confusion. His battered silk hat, on the bedpost, is labeled "Wall Street," his room represents New York's financial world—such is the picture in tonight's Evening Standard showing what David Low, one of England's most popular cartoonists, thinks of the Wall Street collapse.

Dozens of empty bottles, labeled "booms," are scattered around the fat man's bed. The chairs are overturned, the windows smashed and the contents of the drawers strewn over the floor.

BROKERS SEE END OF STOCK HYSTERIA

BULLISH VIEWS PREVAIL

Buoyancy of Trading on Two Successive Days Is Hailed as Encouraging Sign.

Opinion in brokerage houses after the close of yesterday's short session of the stock market was that of contentment. Partners in many houses declared that the fact that the market had shown real bouyancy for two days in succession, in spite of selling yesterday by speculators who wanted to get out of the market before the two-day suspension of trading, was absolute proof that the last symptom of hysteria had disappeared.

Sentiment had changed to a great extent. Wednesday night the most optimistic of the brokers were advising customers to be cautious and buy only for investment possibilities. The best that they would predict in regard to the market was that it was progressing toward stabilization and that the chances of a relapse were remote.

Bullish Sentiment Arises.

Last night, however, there was a feeling that the market had become bullish. One house went so far as to predict an additional 10 to 20-point rise in prices of the better grade of securities before the bullish sentiment subsided. Other houses, while admitting that individual opinion of members of the firm was that the rallying power exhibited on Wednesday and yesterday would carry the general price level higher next week, kept the market letters which they sent to customers on a cautious keynote.

One of the houses stated that buying power had returned to the market in tremendous volume; that orders filed on Wednesday with commission houses were at the ratio of ten buying orders to each selling order. Many of these orders to buy were not executed because prices had already passed the mark set, but it was reported that many of them were returned yesterday with instructions to buy "at the market."

Many of the houses accustomed to sending out letters each night did not do so yesterday. They felt that in view of the two days' suspension of trading any advice contained in such letters might be inapplicable by Monday. Other houses which get out only weekly letters issued theirs last night.

See Outlook Encouraging.

Some of the opinions expressed in letters that were mailed to customers yesterday follow:

Orton, Kent & Co.—We consider the situation from the standpoint of the market and from that of business to be more encouraging than for some time past. It is true that the terrific losses sustained by security holders throughout the country will make serious inroads into the demand for luxuries. To a certain extent this will no doubt permeate all phases of commerce and industry and should result in slightly lower corporate profits in the fourth quarter of this year than last year. While reduced demands for luxuries and semi-luxuries resulting from stock market losses will somewhat aggravate the industrial retrenchment, the deflation has resulted in other conditions which are distinctly favorable.

Jackson Bros., Boesel & Co.—The demonstration in the stock market yesterday was a vote of confidence in the business and credit situations of the nation. The size of the buying power still unsatisfied leads us to the conclusion now that the market could easily rally another 10 to 20 points in the averages before real resistance is encountered.

F. F. Cusik & Co.—That a large part of the recent collapse in security prices was due to an aggravated condition of "undigested securities" there is little doubt. With a temporary, even if enforced check on the flood of new issues, stabilization of prices for existing securities will be further aided.

Wade Dunn & Co.—We expect, however, within the next week to see an orderly and healthy market which will reflect the prosperity of individual companies.

E. F. Hutton & Co.—It is hard to imagine any reason for selling high-grade securities at these levels and cheer seems to be every fundamental and technical justification for buying.

Logan & Bryan—The promise of a better market tone was fulfilled with the noon opening yesterday. The fluctuations probably represented short covering operations, together with selling by those who preferred to be out of the market during the pending protracted closing of the Stock Exchange. A notable feature was the comparative tenacity with which the utility shares held their gains.

WINKLER CRITICIZES INVESTMENT TRUSTS

Says They Did Not Prove to Be a Stabilizing Influence and Objects to Methods.

Dr. Max Winkler, vice president of the banking firm of Bertram, Griscom Company, declared in an address before the Business Policy Forum of the College of the City of New York last evening that there has been a "striking similarity" between the history of investment trusts in this country and in Great Britain. Pointing out that in Great Britain many investment trusts had collapsed the year after they had undergone a Stock Market break, Dr. Winkler said that while no one knows what the future has in store "we might possibly expect the collapse of some of our investment trusts next year."

He asserted that investment trusts had not proved steadying influences in the recent crash. "While it would be unreasonable to ascribe entirely the present situation to the activities of the investment trusts, it has now been demonstrated that they are practically powerless as market stabilizers," he said.

Asserting that the growth of investment trusts in this country has been favored so far by steadily rising markets, he said: "They have not gone through the fire of purification, nor have they survived a real prolonged setback in the securities markets. Most of them have been living in a fool's paradise, a comfortable and enviable state while it lasts."

Investment trusts have competed in the purchase of stocks, and thus served to drive prices up for each other, he said, failing to realize that when it would be advisable to sell they would damage each other's markets.

"Many of our trusts discovered the secret of success," he continued. "They confined much of their activity to the formation of new companies. For this reason, during market weaknesses, the trusts did not only appear as the saviors and the stabilizers of prices, but even threw part of their holdings on the market, which added to the general confusion."

Dr. Winkler attributed the recent decline to a "speculative mania."

"People were buying quotations and not values," he declared. "Economists and analysts ceased to function. We have even gone so far as to take seriously the statement of a college professor who was convinced the market would continue to rise because of prohibition, or the statement of a professional prophet who was convinced the market would decline because fewer people go to church."

SEES PROSPERITY UNHURT.

Stuart Chase, Economist, Says It Will Last Three More Years.

Stuart Chase, economist, who completed recently a six-month survey of the structure of prosperity in the United States, said here yesterday that the present stock market will not affect the general prosperity of the country.

"The shrinkage is in paper prices," he said, "and not in tangible goods and services. We probably have three more years of prosperity ahead of us before we enter the cyclic tailspin which has occurred in the eleventh year of each of the four great previous periods of commercial prosperity."

"In a week the colossal sum of $50,000,000,000 was squeezed out of the Wall Street figures, but does this mean the end of prosperity? Frankly I do not think so.

"The paper values have been brought back to the point where they more truly reflect the capitalization of the current earnings and are thus in a healthier price range. By releasing some billions of capital frozen in brokers' loans, general business, particularly building construction, will have access to easier terms of credit."

BUYING BY TRUSTS LAGS.

Their Purchases Decline Because of Odd Lot Scramble for Stocks.

Buying of stocks by investment trusts declined sharply yesterday after Tuesday's and Wednesday's record purchases, according to executives of several large trusts. Not only had many trusts depleted their cash reserves by purchasing stocks but the executives were unwilling to enter the market in competition with the thousands of odd-lot traders who were scrambling for stocks.

At the end of last week the cash resources of American investment trusts were reported to amount to $500,000,000,000. As the result of heavy buying the trusts' cash was estimated last night to have declined to $250,000,000.

The president of one of the largest trusts declared that, while the buying activities of several trusts had ceased for the time, they might be resumed in a more favorable buying market. There was no tendency now to sell stocks, he said. On many of their investments of Tuesday and Wednesday the trusts already have unrealized profits of 20 to 80 per cent.

duction of the rate at this time to perhaps 4½ per cent in New York or other sections. This question will be left undetermined, pending recommendations which may be made by directors of the various reserve banks.

That the board, however, is doing what it can to steer developments in the direction of easier money, which would stimulate business and help the bond market, without threatening again to arouse a spirit of undue speculation, was evident from the quick action that it took in connection with the New York rate cut to 5 per cent, and in the fact that the board's weekly statement showed an increase of $156,984,000 in the purchase of government securities by the reserve banks. These purchases released additional funds in the money market, and probably will be continued.

British Move Called Logical.

The decrease in the Bank of England rate to 5 per cent was accepted as a logical result of the stock market collapse here and the flow of funds back to that country with the decrease in the attraction will rate and the end of the speculative craze. The British Government, it was said, naturally was anxious to take any action it could that was desired by and beneficial to its business interests. In this connection an intimation that the New York rate would follow was given.

The practice has been to keep the New York rate approximately 1 per cent under the British rate to stabilize the international money market and prevent the flow of more gold than Great Britain could afford to lose into the American market. The feeling here was that the danger of a continuing disturbance of the international money market by shipments of gold to this country had been passed. No further heavy outflow of gold, however, is expected immediately.

The fact that the brokers' loan report showed a reduction in the loans classified as "accounts of others" of $1,096,000,000 did not cause much surprise.

These include loans in the call money market by domestic corporations and foreign interests among others, and it was considered logical that there should be heavy withdrawals by such sources when the break came. The opinion was expressed that no small part of the buying which has been in progress since Tuesday represented the reinvestment of part of these funds.

In discussing the effect of the market break upon Christmas trade, some officials offered the opinion that while it might not be as brisk as had been anticipated, it would be entirely satisfactory.

Attention was called to the fact that despite the market break two years ago, Christmas buyers virtually cleared the counters of the big stores.

BRITISH BOAT, HIT BY PATROL, SINKS

STERN OF CRAFT CUT OFF

Two Men Wounded on Lake Erie as Volley Halts Armored Boat Suspected of Smuggling.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Oct. 31.—The British vessel James B., a suspected rum runner, sank within fifteen minutes after having her stern cut off by the Coast Guard patrol boat Cahoone thirty miles off the coast of Long Island last night.

The crew of eight aboard the James B. were picked up in their dories soon after the vessel sank and were brought to the Coast Guard base here by the Cahoone.

The accident occurred because the James B., running without lights, crossed the bow of the Cahoone, according to Boatswain A. M. Haynes, commander of the Cahoone, which is a 125-foot craft.

The Cahoone was on patrol duty at the time, cruising along the outer coast of Long Island. She reached a point off Shinnecock Bay just after 6 o'clock, when suddenly the James B. loomed up directly ahead.

Efforts to Avert Collision.

Immediate orders were given to reverse the engines and the helmsman made a desperate effort to swing but Cahoone to port, but the collision could not be avoided and the bow of the Cahoone cut clear through the James B. about eight feet from the stern.

The crew of the James B. quickly took to their lifeboats and had hardly cleared the side of their vessel when she disappeared under the water. Within a few minutes the men were taken aboard the Cahoone, where it was found that none of them had suffered any injuries or even got wet. Fortunately the water was very smooth at the time.

Coast Guard officials today declined to give out the name of the James B.'s crew until the matter had been investigated.

Whether the captain of the vessel will be charged with running without lights depended on the outcome of the investigation, it was said.

Lake Erie Boat Fired On and Seized.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 31 (AP).—One member of the crew of the alleged rum-running craft Butterfly, formerly the Uncas, captured this morning by a Coast Guard patrol boat in Lake Erie, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Newell Timmerman this afternoon on a charge of failing to halt for search when ordered to do so by a government vessel.

Two other members of the crew, wounded in the engagement, were under guard at City Hospital here and will face the same charge upon their recovery. They were said tonight not to be seriously injured.

Captain Hubert F. Wilbur of Coast Guard Boat 9001 in his report said he sighted the Butterfly in Lake Erie early today off Cattaraugus Creek.

He said that as the boat failed to stop when he ordered it to do so, he directed a volley of rifle fire at it. No shots were fired in return.

Two men, who gave their names as Jack Smith of Detroit, Mich., and William Moore of Laurel, Mont., were wounded. The third, Lloyd Delino of Lockport, signified that they would surrender.

No firearms, ammunition or liquor were found on board, but the hull of the craft was protected by 3-16-inch steel plates.

All the callers paid their respects to the Cardinal and wished him a pleasant visit in Rome. The date for the Cardinal's audience with Pope Pius has not yet been set.

DARU SAYS COUDERT PROMISED RETRACTION

Republican Admitted Attack on Banton Aides Was 'Too Broad,' He Declares.

Assistant District Attorney Robert Daru issued a statement yesterday stating that he had conferred with Frederic R. Coudert Jr., Republican candidate for District Attorney of New York County, and declaring that Mr. Coudert had promised to retract his assertion that the members of District Attorney Banton's staff were "ward heelers and politicians and not lawyers." Mr. Daru said that Mr. Coudert had failed to make this retraction and that he therefore felt at liberty to make public his talk with him.

Mr. Daru said that he told Mr. Coudert that he had done the members of Mr. Banton's staff an injustice and outlined the professional attainments of some of its members. He quoted Mr. Coudert as having replied:

"Mr. Daru, I am very sorry my statement has hurt you and the other members of the staff. I know several of the assistants personally and have very high regard for their professional standing. The statement, as issued from here, should not have been so broad. Of course, you know this is a campaign."

Mr. Daru added that Mr. Coudert asked for a little time to think about a way to rectify the wrong if the members of Mr. Banton's staff felt that their professional reputations had been injured by his statements. He said that Mr. Coudert did not think he had been unfair in saying he would dismiss the present Assistant District Attorneys, if elected.

"I have waited three days," Mr. Daru said, "and I feel at liberty to make public what was said at my meeting with Mr. Coudert, as he has failed to keep his promise."

VIENNA FACTORY BESIEGED.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Oct. 31.—A dispute between workers in a machine factory at Stockeru, near Vienna, and local Heimwehr organizations, originating in a refusal of the employes to work with three new men of Heimwehr sympathies, gave rise today to rumors of a serious clash between the Fascist Heimwehr and the Socialist Schutzbund.

Trouble, however, was prevented by seventy gendarmes who, at the request of local authorities, occupied the factory, thus balking the plans of 200 Heimwehr men who had surrounded the place and were threatening to storm it. Tomorrow it will be decided whether the three Heimwehr workers shall be dismissed or the Socialist workers locked out.

CREVASSES TRAPPED BYRD'S SLEDGERS

By JOE DE GANAHL,

villages of haycocks. We proceeded with the teams.

In five minutes we were shut in by hollow domes, every step on a thin, trembling roof. We crossed a safe-looking ridge and slid down ten feet from an open hole with blackness for a bottom and turned the teams to the west.

Bursey slipped over the brink of a pit as we crossed a narrow bridge between it and haycocks, but the rope dragged him back. There was a hundred-foot hole to the left and countless haycocks to the right. We followed a narrow highway west till a wide, thinly covered crevasse blocked our path to the hopeless area ahead.

There was no room to turn the teams between haycocks. Christopher Braathen, roped and on skis, tested the largest and we rushed the dogs around and over the dome to retrace our steps a few hundred yards.

Bursey stopped to fix a harness and the surface sank under Braathen's sled. The teams were hurried forward and pulled him to a thicker roof. The route flag slipped through into space. Below, everything was hollow.

We tried our luck vainly with many crevasses, but finally Braathen's experience with short ridges brought us safely around. There are now evidences of continual improvement. All believe we will find a way through to the east.

Encounter Worst Area Yet.

ON THE TRAIL, Further South, Oct. 30.—A day of perilous reconnoitring over a valley checkered with crevasses and a mountain of broken ice, pitted and honeycombed by pressure, brought us to the firm barrier at midnight today just as a fog closed in on what we believed to be the most treacherous area ever crossed in the Antarctic.

Great upheavals have taken place here since Amundsen's time. Nothing he describes can compare with the last ten miles of our journey.

It was a restless sleep for all last night, for every few hours we were awakened by thunder, announcing the birth of a new crevasse and shaking the hollow snow beneath us.

After an early breakfast Bursey and Braathen retraced their steps to the northern limit of the crevassed region to place a warning on the barrier for the snowmobile.

Then Walden, Braathen and I roped and on skiis worked our way over and around crevasses to the southeast, hoping to find an opening in the hopeless-looking range to the south. From the high ridge we had glimpses of the firm barrier, but three miles of pitted mountain lay before us.

After luncheon Braathen, Bursey and I proceeded on skiis in an effort to thread our way between open black holes, connected by covered crevasses everywhere. On approaching the range we finally found a narrow ridge between open chasms, leading to a network of canyons on the summit of a large hollow area and camouflaged by a thin roof of ice.

Braathon's skill on skis and experience enabled us to tap our way step by step from one firm ledge to another. The trail was often two yards wide, bordered on each side by black ravines or thin-roofed haycocks.

In three hours we marked a zig-zag trail, a mile and a half through the heart of the ridge, and returned with doubts about our sledges getting over the dubious bridges, sharp shoulders and steep inclines. But there was no other way through, the hills being impassable to the east and west.

Teams and men, roped separately, followed our ragged line of flags. It was time for expert driving and obedient dogs. The veteran Walden said he had never seen anything like it and the bridges were taxed to the limit.

The dogs sensed the danger and time and again disappeared in crevasses and were hauled out by their teammates. Bursey and his leader, St. Lunaire, worked in perfect accord when a few feet to the right or left would mean a dangling sled and driver.

Walden's foresight, Braathen's care and Bursey's driving and luck brought us to the end of the range and the wide open road bordered by crevasses leading down to safe ground and a clean trail toward the midnight sun.

We stopped and turned to view the area we had crossed before the fog set in. It seemed as if the gods had been playing with chalk cliffs and left them scattered and broken on the tidy Barrier floor.

DANGER POINT NOW PASSED.

Further Messages to Byrd's Base Tell of Sledging Toward Goal.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, Oct. 31.—Messages from the supporting party, including Joe DeGanahl's description of their two days in the crevassed area, show that they have taken their loads over the most dangerous part of the trail.

When they return it will be with lighter sledges, for they took through that dangerous region supplies for Depot No. 4 at 81 degrees 45 minutes south. There they turn back.

Apparently the party found much worse traveling than did Captain Roald Amundsen on his journey seventeen years ago, for Captain Amundsen went through the crevassed area three times when the visibility was poor and without much trouble. And it is apparently somewhat wider than it was then, although that is difficult to determine from the reports.

The trip back to the northern edge to leave a warning for the snowmobile was made at Commander Byrd's order, for, although he had given instructions that the machine was not to go so far, he was afraid that they might be carried away by zeal and attempt too much. It is evident that no machine could pass such a treacherous and broken area.

IN TOUCH BY PORTABLE RADIO

By RUSSELL OWEN.

Copyright, 1929,
By The New York Times Company and The St. Louis Post-Dispatch. All rights for publication reserved throughout the world.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, Oct 1.—A radio set for sending and receiving is carried by the supporting sledging party and will be taken out on the trail by the geological party so that they may keep in touch with the base camp at regular intervals. These sets are light, portable sets designed and built by Howard Mason with the help of Carl Petersen and Harold June. They are compact and solidly built despite their small size, so that they will stand a lot of jarring on the trail.

Radio schedules will be made so that it will be possible to get in communication with the base at a certain time every day, although it is probable that the sets will be used only two or three times a week to report progress, except in case of an emergency. The base operator will listen at certain times every day, but there will be no cause to worry about the sledging parties unless a number of days pass without a report.

If an emergency arises and help is needed or if many days pass without a report from either party, it will be assumed, either that its set has been broken or lost or that the party is in trouble.

In any case, one airplane will be ready to fly out in good weather to learn what is wrong or to take anything in the way of food or other supplies or convey whatever help is necessary.

When, on the trail, the operator wishes to get into communication with the base, he will set up two high, jointed bamboo poles which are held rigidly with guy lines, and between which is hung the antenna wire. Leads from this are down into one of the tents in which the apparatus is placed.

There may be days in which it will be difficult to erect the poles and antennas because of wind and snow, but once in the tent the operator can work in comfort.

The only difficulty is warming up the batteries, and in unusually cold weather the man acting as radio operator may have to carry cans of his dry batteries strapped around his waist for a time so as to warm them enough to make them operate. Dry batteries freeze up quickly in very cold weather and a flashlight down here will go out of business while one is carrying it.

The radio will be invaluable in keeping the base informed of what is going on. It will be the first time that radio has been used on the trail in the Antarctic, and it might obviate a long period which would otherwise elapse before anxiety as to the welfare of the party would logically begin, although long before that time they might need help.

It will also be very useful in transmitting information from the inland geological base as to weather conditions at the mountains before the polar flight and in giving instructions as to how to find the best landing place near the inland base, if the plane wishes to land there or to establish a flying base near the mountains.

LA GUARDIA REVEALS POLS LOAN TO EGAN

Former Tammany Secretary Admits $10,000 Note to Meat Dealer Is His.

DECLARES HE PAID DEBT

Calls Attack Unfair and Says He Never Did Any Political Favors for Missing Man.

LA GUARDIA EXPLAINS DEAL

Defends His Part in Condemnation Action in the Queens Water Supply Case.

Public Administrator James F. Egan, while Secretary of Tammany Hall, gave his note for $10,000 to Abraham A. Pols of Henry Pols, Inc., purveyor of meats, which have been attacked as inferior to the grade contracted for, to more than a dozen city hospitals and institutions, according to Fiorello H. La Guardia, Republican-Fusion nominee for Mayor. Mr. La Guardia said yesterday that the Egan note had been found among papers left behind by Pols when he vanished an alleged bankrupt.

Mr. Egan admitted that he had given his note to Pols in return for a loan, but insisted that he had repaid the $10,000 last July.

After Pols vanished it was found that through his contracts with the city he had received some $400,000 in loans from the Liberty National Bank, and a charge was made that he had looted the estate of his father to the extent of $180,000.

"I described yesterday how this contractor was bled by politicians, how he obtained excessive loans from a bank, how he went into bankruptcy by reason of the pressure exerted and demands made upon him by extortionists who knew of his furnishing rotten meat to the hospitals, and how he was spirited away to prevent disgusting and revolting disclosures on the eve of the election," Major La Guardia said at the series of meetings in Manhattan he addressed last night.

Quotes From Testimony.

Mr. La Guardia then read testimony given by Sol B. Coven, an employe of Henry Pols, Inc., which was given before Oscar W. Ehrhorn, special commissioner of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, in an inquiry into the alleged bankruptcy of Abraham A. Pols. The hearing was held on Aug. 27, this year, a little more than a month after Pols had disappeared.

The witness testified that he had been making out checks for Pols individually occasionally, but that he had not on these occasions made any stub entries. The checks, he said, were handed him detached with instructions to whom to make them payable and in what amounts. The testimony as read by Major La Guardia to his audiences then ran as follows:

Q.—Well, now did you personally take any papers, notes, or checks, or documents, or records, of any kind, from the office of Abraham A. Pols, after the date that he left, from the last time that you saw him, up to the present time? A.—Just one paper, which you have at the present time.

Q.—Now, what was the reason why you did not turn over to the representatives of the Irving Trust Company and to me the note of James F. Egan, which you later sent down or brought down to my office? A.—There was no reason behind it. Mr. Ratheim was up at one time, and then told me to keep it on the side, and it left my mind entirely, and then I told Mr. Ratheim about it, and he told me to bring it right down to you.

Q.—That is, at one time Mr. Ratheim told you to keep it aside? A.—Keep it on the side temporarily.

Q.—Now, do you know James F. Egan? A.—I don't know him.

Q.—Do you know who he is? A.—Well, I think I know who he is, but I am not sure.

Q.—Well, how did he happen to give his note to Abraham A. Pols for $10,000? A.—I don't know.

"Now, to give an instance of the inside drag of this man, who was selling rotten meat to our hospitals, let me read this part from the record," said Mr. La Guardia.:

Q.—Now, when you say you went out with bids for the corporation, just explain what you mean by that? A.—Why, Mr. Pols, in conjunction with Mr. Burbank and Mr. Horwich, would make out bids, and I would take them out. If it was held in Albany, I would go to Albany, and stay there, and get comparisons on the figures, showing what were ordered and what our competitors' prices were, and bring them back.

"Apparently, the competitors did not have a look-in, with this system," went on Mr. La Guardia.

Mr. La Guardia followed the recital by reading editorial articles published in the Hearst newspapers, which now are supporting Mayor Walker. These articles appeared during the Mayoralty campaign four years ago when Mr. Walker was engaged in a primary fight with John F. Hylan for the Mayoralty nomination. In them Mayor Walker was bitterly assailed for the part he had taken in court as counsel for corporations charged with violations of the pure food law.

Calls Attack Unfair.

Mr. Egan in replying to Major La Guardia's statement said:

"It was grossly unfair on the part of Major La Guardia to mention this note at all. I shall get in touch with him at once.

"Of course, the note is mine. I needed some money and I asked Pols to discount a note for me and he did so. The amount has been paid. It was paid last July.

"I have known Pols for a couple of years. No, the note was not returned to me, I do not know why. Possibly it was discounted by Pols at his bank and the bank sent it to the estate instead of to me. I have convinced the receiver that I owe the Pols estate nothing. I never did any political favors for Pols."

"Borrowing" a good word," was Mr. La Guardia's comment on Mr. Egan's remarks.

"I could not afford to pay for any costly advertising myself and here I get a while page of it for nothing," was part of the comment by Mr. La Guardia on a full-page advertisement on "F. H. La Guardia, Transient Socialist," published in newspapers yesterday by the Walker-Berry-McKee campaign committee and containing attacks on the Republican candidate for political backsliding.

Today's Political Meetings.

The following are the more important political meetings today and tonight:

DEMOCRATIC—Former Governor Smith, Mayor Walker and Aldermanic President McKee at the Academy of Music, Brooklyn. Speeches broadcast over Station WMCA from 9:30 to 11 P. M. and over Station WEAF from 10 to 11:15 P. M.

REPUBLICAN—11:30 A. M., F. H. La Guardia, candidate for Mayor, at open air meeting, Edison Company plant, Fourteenth Street and East River. In the evening Mr. La Guardia is scheduled for eleven meetings in Queens, his appearance at the last six of which being contingent upon the time. Public School 83, Vernon and Pierce Avenues, Ravenswood, Long Island City; Public School 125, Woodside; Public School 27, College Point; Flushing High School; Public Schol 108, Richmond Hill; Public School 41, Bayside; Public School 89, Elmhurst: Hollis-Bellaire Club, 206-09 Jamaica Avenue; Public School 116, Jamaica; Public School 79, Whitestone.

SOCIALIST—12:45 P. M., Norman Thomas, candidate for Mayor, at Musical Mutual Protective Union, Yorkville Casino, Eighty-sixth Street and Lexington Avenue; beginning at 8:30 P. M., Mr. Thomas at Institute of Arts and Sciences, Columbia University (non-political speech); Mr. Thomas, Charles Solomon, candidate for Controller, and Algernon Lee, candidate for Aldermanic President, at Public School 101, 111th Street and Lexington Avenue; Mr. Solomon at Miller's Assembly Hall, Grand and Havemeyer Streets, Brooklyn; at Public School 89, Britton Avenue and Hampton Street, Elmhurst, Queens.

reciting attacks by La Guardia on President Hoover and on such party leaders as Samuel S. Koenig in Manhattan and Jacob A. Livingston in Brooklyn. The advertisement also gave the record of condemnation proceedings, in which Mr. La Guardia represented the city.

The result of the condemnation proceedings was that the city paid more than $1,000,000 in excess of what the owners had offered to sell the property of the Citizens Water Supply Company of Queens for. Mr. La Guardia said that the original offer had not included some of the property that was condemned by the city. He said moreover that while the advertisment made it appear that he had been working on the case only a couple of months, hearing of evidence and preparation of the brief had covered a period of two years.

Pledges a Reorganization.

In a speech delivered yesterday at a luncheon of the Brooklyn Rotary Club at the Hotel Bossert, Mr. La Guardia pledged himself, if elected, to bring about a reorganization of the city government.

Speaking before the Women's Hoover and Curtis Club at the Hotel Oliver Cromwell, 12 West Seventy-second Street, Mr. La Guardia reiterated his campaign pledges for better housing, in the same breath accusing Mayor Walker of having used the city's housing problem as a political football for four years.

"I deem the housing problem as of the utmost importance," he said. "There are brains enough, money enough and talent enough, when marshaled in one concentrated effort and honestly backed by the city administration, to commence building model houses."

Mr. La Guardia was scheduled to speak at a tea before the Women's Republican Association at the Washington Irving House, 49 Irving Place, but was unable to go. Before starting out on his evening rounds of meetings he made a flying trip to Rockaway Beach, where he addressed a meeting of the Republican Club of the Rockaways and the Harvey Republican organization at the New Theatre. Last night he addressed eight meetings in Manhattan. He is beginning to show the severe strain of campaigning, but his cheerful compliance with every demand upon him is the wonder of his campaign managers.

Keyes Winter, chairman of the Republican Fusion Campaign Committee, announced last night that Mr. La Guardia would "sum up" on Monday evening in a half hour radio talk over station WOR, between 7 and 7:30. He will be introduced by Admiral Frederic R. Harris, president of Republican Business Men, Inc.

TO DISCUSS PANAMA TREATY

State Department Agrees to Parley With Isthmian Republic.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (AP).—The State Department has agreed to open conversations with Panama leading to a new canal relations treaty to replace that of 1903, under which the Panama Canal Zone was ceded to the United States.

The conversations will begin soon. The action will be taken at the request of Panama, which in January, 1928, forwarded through Minister Alfaro a memorandum which held the treaty signed in 1926 to be unjust.

The proposed new treaty would replace not only that of 1903, but also the document signed in 1926 in regard to canal relations, which has never been ratified by the Congresses of either government.

Claudel Visits French Exhibit Here.

Ambassador Paul Claudel of France visited the exhibit of L'Union des Commerçants de la Rue St. Honoré at the store of Altman & Co. here, it was announced yesterday. Welcomed to the exhibit by Colonel Michael Friedsam, head of B. Altman & Co., Ambassador Claudel spoke briefly in thanks and remarked on the comradeship existing between the members of L'Union des Commerçants de la Rue St. Honoré and those of the Fifth Avenue Association. Captain William Pedrick, vice president and general manager of the Fifth Avenue Association, was present when the visit took place.

mates of the last few days, which indicated a plurality for Walker of from 520,000 to 540,000.

Borough.	Plurality.
Manhattan	130,000
Bronx	140,000
Brooklyn	170,000
Queens	75,000
Richmond	15,000
Total	530,000

The final Tammany estimate probably will not be ready until Saturday. Reports are being received daily, but the work of analyzing and tabulating them will not be completed until then.

RALLY TO END CAMPAIGN.

Torchlight Parade Precedes Walker Meeting Tomorrow.

Tammany will close its campaign for the re-election of Mayor Walker, Controller Berry and Aldermanic President McKee with a meeting in the Century Theatre tomorrow night with the brass bands and red fire reminiscent of old time political rallies. There also will be an old-fashioned torchlight parade. As a concession to modernism, amplifiers will be installed on all sides of the theatre at Sixty-second Street and Central Park West so that those unable to get inside the hall may hear, and the speeches will be broadcast over Station WEAF from 9 to 11 P. M.

Mayor Walker, Mr. McKee, former Governor Smith and United States Senators Royal S. Copeland and Robert F. Wagner will be the principal speakers. Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman will preside, and the five county leaders, John F. Curry, leader of Tammany, John H. McCooey of Brooklyn, Secretary of State Edward J. Flynn of the Bronx, John Theofel of Queens and David S. Rendt of Richmond are expected to participate in the final meeting.

The meeting will start shortly after 7:30. Borough President Julius Miller and the candidates on the Democratic ticket will speak. Delegations from virtually all the Tammany district clubs will attend. The parades will form at near-by Tammany clubhouses and march to the theatre. Each contingent of paraders will be headed by a band and the line of march will be illuminated by red flares.

Mr. Smith, Mayor Walker and Mr. McKee will speak tonight at the Brooklyn Academy of Music, the final big meeting for that borough. Senator Wagner, the Mayor and Mr McKee will speak at Public School 84, Stone and Glenmore Avenues, and Senator Copeland and Judge McKee will speak at Ardsley Palace, Atlantic Avenue and Vermont Street. Senator Copeland also will speak at two Manhattan meetings, at Arlington Hall, 23 St. Mark's Place, and at Public School 150, 177th Street, between Audubon and St. Nicholas Avenues.

BEST'S COPIES

THERE have been many "Patou mannequin girdles" shown in New York but as far as we know this one has escaped notice. It came to us in an informal way—one of the Patou mannequins was formerly a Best model and she told us that this little girdle (so simple in idea that you wonder why no one ever thought of it before) is really the one that the Patou girls wear.

It is an Ingenious Arrangement of Four Triangles

two of surgical elastic and two of fine linen batiste. Perfectly straight up and down when you see it in the hand but it adjusts itself cleverly to the wearer's curves when on.

Note—It is an ideal girdle for slim figures and we feature it in sizes 26 to 32.

IF there's one thing the Sport Shop has been able to do it's convince debutantes that exclusive European woolens, good lines and fine tailoring are the sum of smartness in a football coat... For instance, there's a deep marron-brown, loose-knit tweed with lots of lynx. And a bright emerald green cheviot with quantities of pale beige lapin. In fact, there's a whole collection and no two coats alike except that each will remain distinguished, even in a football multitude!

SMITH IS BOOMED IN BRONX FOR 1932

WALKER REBUKES HIS RIVAL

Hailed as the hoped-for Democratic candidate for President in 1932, former Governor Smith spoke last night with Mayor Walker and Aldermanic President McKee in the final big meeting of the Democratic city campaign in the Bronx at Morris High School. Always strong in the Bronx, Mr. Smith was greeted with great enthusiasm by a crowd of about 15,000 which filled the auditorium, and a considerably larger crowd outside which heard the speeches through amplifiers.

The meeting proved to be something of a 1932 Presidential campaign rally, as well as a 1929 municipal campaign meeting. A large picture of Mr. Smith with the words, "For President, 1932," occupied as prominent a position as the pictures of the Democratic city candidates.

The appearance of Mrs. Smith, who preceded her husband to the stage was cheered. She received a large bunch of yellow chrysanthemums and Assistant Corporation Counsel M. Maldwin Fertig, the chairman, in presenting her to the audience, referred to her as "the wife of the man who has been four times Governor and who, we hope, will be President in 1932."

Mayor Walker criticized F. H. La Guardia, his Republican opponent, for conducting what he called a campaign of slander and declared that the reason that Mr. La Guardia obtained the Republican nomination was that no Republicans except William M. Bennett dared to oppose him in the primaries and face the kind of a mud-slinging campaign they knew he would make. He also criticized the Republican Mayoralty candidate for attacking August Heckscher, chairman of the Citizens' Committee for the Re-election of Walker, Berry and McKee, and asked Mr. La Guardia to "pick on" him instead.

"That is not going to tempt me to follow my opponent into the realm of slander and mud-slinging," Mayor Walker said. "We are limited by the measure of dignity that public officials of this great metropolis should maintain in the political campaign."

Mayor Walker added that the work of the city had to go right on and the present officials had no time to dig up scandalous ideas such as were being put out by their opponents.

"Is it not obvious that our opponents must have a great deal of time for scandal and libel," he continued, "when one of them finds it agreeable to pick out one of the most distinguished citizens of the city to choose for the subject of his attack, a gentleman who is world-famous for his philanthropy? I ask of him, if there is a scintilla of fairness left, if there is an ounce of sportsmanship left, to pick on me and never utter another word of criticism against the fair name of August Heckscher.

"Isn't the answer to the Republican primaries found in a review of the manifestly unfair criticism made by the present Republican candidate? None but the distinguished William Bennett in all the Republican party, every one of whom had some knowledge of the characteristics, the disposition and the recklessness of the present candidate of the Republican party, would venture a candidacy, knowing full well what kind of a campaign would be leveled at them by the man who is now the standard bearer of their party. They gave him the field to himself."

Mayor Walker added that, despite all slanderous charges, the members of the Board of Estimate would go on as they had done during the last four years and "do their best to get definite results for the benefit of the people of the city."

Mr. Smith, who continued the simile of referring to the voters as the stockholders of a corporation and the members of the Board of Estimate as the board of directors, which he has used in his two preceding speeches, blamed the Republican majority of the Legislature for delay in establishing a sanitation commission and for curtailment of a real housing program.

Mr. Smith declared that real progress in the improvement of housing conditions in the city would have been accomplished if the Republican Legislature had not cut the proposed State Housing Bank from his housing bill.

"Take with a very decided grain of salt everything you hear from the Republican group about benefiting housing conditions, because they are not on the level," he said with reference to Mr. La Guardia's promise to remedy them. "They could have made the State housing bill good and they refused to do it."

Mr. Smith took up Mr. La Guardia's declaration for the extension of the subways and their unification under one management.

"We all are for extensions," he said, "but it seems to me that they should give you a reasonable explanation of how you can spend more than $388,000,000 in four years. You know when you get into money as big as that it isn't so easy to spend it. It isn't even easy to count it.

"So far as unification is concerned, the members of our board of directors went to Albany to get a bill to make it possible. The Republican group declined to pass it. It could not have been for any other than political reasons, because the password at Albany then was: 'Let them stew in their own juice down in New York.' That was what they said in February and March. Now it is October and they promise."

Willing to Go to Albany.

Mr. Smith said that he did not want any more work, since he was busy receiving visitors and tearing down the Waldorf to make way for a new office building, but would be willing to go to Albany with a group of Democrats to get the legislation desired.

"I still have Bill Kenny's private car," he said with a smile that brought a big laugh from the audience.

Mr. Smith in reply to the assertion of Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for Mayor, that the Socialists would continue their fight for the State production and distribution of power, declared he had been fighting for that for twenty years. He gave Mayor Walker credit for having led in the fight to get important legislation while Senate leader in Albany, and praised Controller Berry and Judge McKee.

Mr. Smith also praised Borough President Bruckner, who entered the Board of Estimate on Jan. 1, 1918, at the same time that Mr. Smith took his seat there as President of the Board of Aldermen. "The only fault I have to find about Henry is that he uses the same old campaign picture," Mr. Smith said.

As the pictures of Mr. Bruckner on the walls presented a somewhat youthful likeness, this remark brought a great laugh.

Judge McKee declared that the present administration was characterized by "humaneness, intelligence and courage." Other speakers included Bronx candidates for county and local offices.

VIEWS ROTHSTEIN 'VILLAGE'

Wrecker to Give Estimate on Razing of 143 Queens Houses.

Edward P. Burwell, Queens Superintendent of Buildings, took definite steps yesterday to raze 143 buildings owned by the Arnold Rothstein estate, comprising the "deserted village" off Juniper Avenue, east of Maspeth. Mr. Burwell sent a professional house-wrecker to get an estimate on the cost of tearing them down.

Mr. Burwell filed a general complaint against the builders and directed the serving of violation orders on the Juniper Holding Corporation, nominal owners of the property. The process servers have failed to locate the quarters of the Holding Corporation. The chief watchman at the "village" and Attorney I. Gainsburg of 33 Wall Street, attorney for the Rothstein estate, were both served yesterday.

The structures are in such a state of disrepair that they are a menace to life and limb and should be razed as a safety measure, Burwell declared.

SEES HOSPITALS RUN FOR TAMMANY JOBS

POINTS TO PATIENTS' FEAR

Socialist Singles Out One Institution, Saying It Provokes Ill-Will of Sufferers.

Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for Mayor, in five speeches yesterday took the "political basis" upon which he said the city's Hospital Department was established as an example of the "Tammany-McCooey administration, which exists first to serve the interests which finance it and the boys who run the political machine and only secondarily the public."

Supplementing his charge that the Hospital Department was operated by a "part-time head" with political assistants, Mr. Thomas issued a statement making known the principles upon which he would make appointments if elected. He would be guided by fitness of the appointee, ascertained by consultation with authorities in the field, he said, and by the sympathy of appointees to higher office with Socialist ideals and conceptions of City Government.

Closing Rally Sunday.

The closing central campaign rally for Thomas for Mayor would be held Sunday afternoon at the Academy of Music, it was announced at Socialist headquarters. The meeting, beginnnig at 2 P. M., has been arranged jointly by the Socialist party and the Norman Thomas Non-Partisan Committee. Besides Mr. Thomas, the speakers will be John Dewey, Fola La Follette, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Morris Hillquit, the Rev. John Howard Melish, B. C. Vladeck, Dr. Henry Neumann, Charles Solomon, candidate for Controller, and Algernon Lee, candidate for Aldermanic President.

Mr. Thomas spoke last night at the Greenpoint Y. M. C. A., 99 Meserole Street, Brooklyn; at the Greenwich House, 27 Barrow Street; at Public School 46, St. Nicholas Avenue and 156th Street, and at a rally at the Hunts Point Palace, Southern Boulevard and 163d Street, the Bronx. In the afternoon he addressed a meeting of Waiters Union, Local 3, 21 Sumner Avenue, Brooklyn.

There exists among the people a widespread fear of public hospitals largely justified by the treatment accorded patients in these hospitals, the Socialist candidate declared. He singled out the Willard Parker Hospital for criticism, declaring that many patients who go there with contagious diseases contract other maladies, and that "the Willard Parker Hospital is so run as to provoke the active ill-will of almost all the victims who suffer within its walls."

Recalls Socialist Demands.

Four years ago the Socialist party, recognizing the increasing importance of public hospitals, made three demands, Mr. Thomas said. These included the organization of a hospital department to take over hospitals then under three departments, an extensive building program to replace "shockingly inadequate quarters," and more humane treatment of patients in the wards of city hospitals, he said.

"The Walker Administration has done a good deal to meet the second of these demands," Mr. Thomas said, "and after three years it finally met the first by setting up a hospital department. But how? The hospital department might have drafted into service one of the ablest experts in hospitals in the world. Instead, Mayor Walker made a personal friend of his, a physician of standing in his chosen specialty but without expert knowledge of hospital administration or arrangement, commissioner on a $10,000 salary. Dr. Schroeder, who had an extensive private practice, made it clear that he would treat his administrative post as a part-time job. This situation threw a special burden of responsibility on the deputies. Who were appointed?

Surveys Appointments.

"James Fay, whose qualification was that he was vice president of the Tammany Club of the Twelfth Assembly District, was made deputy in charge of administration, a position requiring expert knowledge. The qualifications of Edward Caseley, who was put in charge of accounts, personnel and purchases, were that he had been clerk in the Brooklyn Borough President's office and a district leader in Brooklyn. To a third deputy, Mr. L. Cohen, formerly a clerk in the Health Commissioner's office, was assigned the oversight of construction of hospitals.

"When administrative posts are thus filled it is absurd to suppose that politics does not honeycomb the whole department including appointments to the medical board."

Unquestionably there was fine scientific work and a noble spirit of human sacrifice in the city institutions, but the usual preference of patients for the better known private hospitals was a "reproach to the city," Mr. Thomas said.

Fitness Held as Requirement.

The kind of public servant that he would try to get, the Socialist candidate said, was illustrated by his statement that he would attempt to persuade John Dewey to become a member of the Board of Education. He would make one criterion of appointment "fitness of the appointee in character and competence for the particular task," and would consult not only colleagues in the Socialist and labor movement, but civic, professional and social welfare organizations. The second criterion, he said, would be "sympathy of department heads and other appointed officers charged with shaping public policies with the Socialist ideals and conceptions of city government." While he would prefer to appoint members of the Socialist party, he said, he would do so only if they possessed the proper qualification and he would not appoint "even a competent man not in general sympathy with the platform and program we have drawn up in this campaign."

The Academy of Music rally will not be the last Socialist meeting, but will be the last large central rally. Mr. Thomas will speak at several meetings Sunday night and twice over the radio Monday night.

Mrs. William P. Earle Jr., head of the Brooklyn section of the League of Women Voters, announced yesterday that she would vote for Norman Thomas for his personal intelligence and courage and his constructive policies.

A free course in Spanish, to be given at Columbia University by Chilean professors as a contribution to Chilean-American friendship, has been offered to the university by Luis E. Feliú-H., Chilean Consul General in New York, Señor Feliú-H. announced yesterday. The offer was made in a letter sent to Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of the university, several days ago.

ENRIGHT DEFENDS POLICE DISMISSALS

SAYS COURT UPHELD HIM

Tammany Is Spending Huge Sums in Campaign, Charges Square Deal Party Candidate.

Richard E. Enright, Mayoralty candidate of the Square Deal party, said yesterday that he was "not in the least worried or irritated" by the petition sent to Mayor Walker yesterday by a committee representing sixty police captains, lieutenants and sergeants asking reinstatement in the Police Department. The sixty were dismissed by Mr. Enright on June 4, 1925, while he was Police Commissioner.

"This is obviously Tammany Hall propaganda," Mr. Enright said. "I dare say it may have had its origin at the Walker headquarters. They are welcome to it."

"The matter really needs no explanation," he continued, "but here are the pertinent facts. The law is plain. The Police Commissioner has the power arbitrarily to dismiss from service and place on the pension rolls men over 60 years of age. I dismissed these men because I believed the efficiency of the department would be increased if younger men were in their places. My act was sustained in the Supreme Court by Mr. Justice Mahoney.

"To reinstate these men would be a boomerang to the Police Department. Every man on the force would have just that much less chance of advancement as a reward for his efforts."

Remarking that Tammany is "spending an enormous amount of money for an advertising campaign," Mr. Enright said:

"Tammany Hall has been a long time with the crib. A small army of Tammany Hall district leaders, camp followers, swivel chair rockers, are drawing fascinating salaries from the city treasury and all of them will pay their share toward the expenses of Tammany Hall so that their line of graft can be continued for another four years.

"This has been a very prosperous era for Tammany Hall contractors and the fat has been fried out of them and it will be applied to the expenses of Tammany Hall in the campaign. The gamblers, bootleggers, racketeers and the proprietors of the 32,000 speakeasies and hundreds of night clubs, cabarets, dance halls and other vice resorts will be obliged to contribute to swell the war chest of Tammany Hall.

"The Mayor's friend, Sidney Solomon, proprietor of the Central Park Casino, has been doing a great lot of business and he can afford to make a generous contribution."

Mr. Enright then charged Tammany Hall with responsibility for "the 300 election 'floaters' who have probably registered at least 10,000 times in the various election districts of the Borough of Manhattan and are facing indictment."

"That is only a small section of the great army of 'floaters' that Tammany Hall has probably marshaled for this campaign," Mr. Enright said. "Somebody will vote on all of these names, and if the election should be close that will be a determining factor and Tammany Hall expects to win again 'by hook or by crook,' as they have won many times before."

WANTS AIR TRAFFIC UNDER FEDERAL LAW

National Exchange Club Head Says Time Has Come to Make Ground Safe From Fliers.

At a luncheon of the New York Exchange Club yesterday in the Hotel McAlpin, J. P. Miller, national president of the affiliated Exchange Clubs, spoke of plans the organization would shortly ask the Federal Government to put into effect to control the rapidly increasing aerial traffic of this country.

Regulation of air traffic by the government, Mr. Muller said, is already a necessity in view of the rapid strides that are being made in aviation, and the fast-increasing number of privately owned and commercial planes. He said that the Exchange Clubs, representing 800 cities and a membership of 40,000, throughout the country, would suggest a system of arterial terial highways, guided and regulated by beacons and other signals.

"The present haphazard, pathless flying must inevitably become a serious question," said Mr. Muller, "and it is obvious that we must extend our system of highways to include the air, in order to safeguard those on the ground as well as those who ride in planes. We have heard a great deal about making the ground safe for fliers, now it is time to give some thought to making the ground safe from fliers."

ARON SCORES BERRY ON RADIATOR DEAL

RECALLS COURT FIGHT

Says Deal With Concern Headed by Son of Controller Was Bad Policy Even if Legal.

As an attack on Tammany ethics, Harold G. Aron, Republican Fusion candidate for Controller, traced last night successive developments in the purchase without public letting of 200 radiator screens to be used at the Kingston Avenue and Willard Parker Hospitals from the Kleanair Company, of which George G. Berry, a son of Controller Berry, is president. He stressed this transaction in several meetings in Manhattan.

The deal had been attacked in court by Stewart Browne, head of the United Real Estate Owners Association, who by bringing a taxpayers' suit succeeded, according to Mr. Aron, in holding up the purchase for some time, finally forcing a reduction from $28,000 to $27,000 in the purchase price.

"The only concession in voting the contract by the Board of Estimate," Mr. Aron said, "was that it would be subject to audit of the Finance Department, at the head of which, as Controller of the city, is the father of the president of the Kleanair Company."

Mr. Aron read a letter from Stewart Browne to the Board of Estimate in which Health Commissioner Wynne and Peter Dooling, Commissioner of Purchase, were represented as factors in the deal. The Board of Aldermen also contributed by adopting a resolution permitting the purchase of the radiators without public letting, according to the Browne communication to the Board of Estimate.

Incidentally, the head of the United Real Estate Owners Association, through his stubborn opposition in this matter, incurred the severe displeasure of the Board of Estimate, with the result that his permit to occupy a place close to the railing in the Board of Estimate room during meetings was revoked by that body.

In the letter to the board, read by Mr. Aron, Mr. Browne told of rebuffs his engineers had met with them when attempting to obtain from the Health Department and from the Department of Purchase, copies of the specifications for the radiators. The Kleenair radiator screen, according to the letter, was a patented article and as such its purchase prohibited under the charter. The letter stated that theo rganization took the "strongest possible exception to the report of the Health Commissioner that the Kleanair radiator cover was the only one that would accomplish the purpose sought in the purchase."

"There is no reason," Mr. Aron said, "why there should not be an accepted code of ethics in politics as in business and professions. There is no reason why there should not be standards of conduct for public officials other than those prescribed by the penal law. There is no reason why there should not be an unwritten law giving effect by common consent to the principles which underly the provisions of the penal law, because laws devised by man always represent the minimum, not the maximum of morality and honor required of those who serve the public.

"As a lawyer, I admit that many practices which are ethically wrong do not constitute a penal offense of this statute and that, to state it bluntly, nepotism as practiced by members of the present city government and as accepted as a working principle by Tammany Hall, is within the law. But I appeal to a higher sense of civic duty and I charge now that the present Controller of the city of New York has condoned or participated in transactions and practices, which, in my opinion, and, I believe, in the opinion of a very great number of our citizens, constitute conduct unbecoming an officer vested with almost unlimited control over the city's finances."

Mr. Aron said that Thomas Kenny, a son of William F. Kenny, ex-Governor Smith's close friend, was a director of the Kleanair company.

KNOWS AMERICAN VIEWS.

Tardieu Was Familiar Washington Figure With War Mission.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Reports that André Tardieu was endeavoring to form a French Cabinet was greeted with interest in Washington tonight, as M. Tardieu is a more or less familiar figure here.

Speaking English perfectly, and understanding the American viewpoint following his stay in Washington with a French mission at the time of the great war, he is looked upon as a man equipped to enter upon negotiations with this country on a comprehensive basis.

Students of foreign affairs here believe that M. Tardieu, while anxious to protect French interests in any naval limitation conference, would not preserve such an unflinching attitude as to refuse to smooth out differences.

TARDIEU TAKES TASK OF FORMING CABINET

By P. J. PHILIP.

Aristide Briand, who had already retired to his private suite at the Quai d'Orsay. M. Briand accepted the invitation to continue as Foreign Minister in these words:

"I will all the more gladly give you my cooperation because you have, I know, no intention of paving the way to a combination on the Right. I could not subscribe to such a formation, but yesterday morning you gave proof of abnegation in promising to accept a less important post than the one you had held. You are a man of the Centre in whom thinking people, who take account of the ill the present crisis is doing to France abroad, should have confidence."

M. Briand's attitude and published words will reassure the country that there will be no attempt to form a Right Government and will also prevent M. Tardieu inclining too far in that direction in his choice of Ministers.

M. Tardieu may well be able to take the place of M. Poincaré in a delicately poised Cabinet such as that over which the latter presided during the past year. His presence at the head of the Cabinet may be, as was that of M. Poincaré, an assurance to the Right and Centre that there will be sound control of internal and financial affairs, while M. Briand at his side will give an assurance to the mass of the people that the policy of peace, which they hold equally at heart, will be continued.

Even without the Radicals and Socialists, M. Tardieu may be able to make his Ministry and still keep it Central in appearance and fact, as was that of M. Poincaré. He, however, hopes to be able at least to split the Radical party if he does not secure its entire adhesion. But before he meets the Chamber he has still to form his Ministry, and the allocation of portfolios is going to be as difficult for him as it was for Senator Clementel.

The Senator had wished to maintain M. Chéron at the Finance Ministry, and that in itself was regarded by the Radicals as unwise, for there is a strong movement in the country against the present taxation and extent of the treasury reserve which M. Chéron has maintained. During recent months the Premier-elect has more than once made tentative offers to the Radicals for collaboration and has preached more than one Sunday sermon in the Poincaré manner against the evils of partisanship and party. He belongs to the realist school in politics, like his master, M. Clemenceau.

His offers of peace have, however, so far met with but little response. In fact, despite M. Briand's eulogy of him as a man of the Centre, it is to be expected that tomorrow the Left parties will unite in their opposition. Then M. Tardieu must try to reassemble the old Poincaré majority. That is to say, he must tame within his own party the rebels against M. Briand's Rhineland policy if he is to hold his place.

It will not be an easy task. Many say that it will be impossible and that there will be another failure, which will end by the President sending for M. Paul-Boncour, and France having a Socialist and Radical government. M. Tardieu, however, is sure of himself. He is perfectly confident and he is full of courage.

At 10 o'clock tomorrow morning he intends to tell the President that he is ready to go on with the task which has been set him.

ANDRE TARDIEU,
Who Seeks to Form French Cabinet.

URGED FRENCH CAUSE HERE.

Tardieu Was First High Commissioner—Long Called "Coming" Man.

Carrying the responsibilities and the glory of being the first French High Commissioner to the United States, André Tardieu arrived in America in May, 1917, to acquaint this country with the qualities that had made him famous in his own country at the age of 40.

He was known then as one of France's "coming statesmen" and was so referred to by the press, although he had not held high government office and had resigned his first seat in Parliament almost immediately after being elected, to join his company of chasseurs at the front as Captain. He remained at the front until incapacitated for active service.

From that date until the beginning of 1919, M. Tardieu impressed France's cause consistently on America. With the fervor that has caused his compatriots, seeking a descriptive phrase for his energy, to dub him "Tardieu the American," he directed the French mission's work, wrote articles for the press, addressed public gatherings and became famous as an organizer of war efforts in behalf of France.

Few persons knew that the dynamic High Commissioner had, in 1908, lectured quietly at Harvard, and not many realized that M. Tardieu's most secure fame at home rested in his ability to compose carefully thought-out editorials for one of France's great newspapers.

Politics and statesmanship were his principal interests and these were the schools in which he had been trained until war made him an organizer. Born in Paris on Sept. 22, 1876, M. Tardieu was graduated with honors from the Ecole Normal Supérieure at the age of 20.

The following year found him acting as attaché to the French Embassy at Berlin. Upon his return home he was chosen to write the leading daily editorial on foreign affairs for Le Temps—one of the highest journalistic posts of its kind—and he held that position until the World War. Meanwhile, he had held minor appointive posts in the government.

The war over, M. Clemenceau "adopted" his High Commissioner in two ways. He took him to the Peace Conference as a French plenipotentiary, and the two worked so closely together that M. Tardieu was believed to be one of the world's best informed men on the document. He wrote his impressions of it in a book entitled "The Truth About the Peace Treaty," which was published in 1921.

M. Tardieu also became a director and writer for the Echo National, then M. Clemenceau's paper.

He re-entered Parliament and was made Minister of Liberated Regions, still a minor member of the government. However, M. Tardieu began to gain special recognition as a leader among that half of the membership of the Chamber of Deputies which represented the "younger element," men who were not bound so closely by the older traditions of statesmanship which applied before the war.

Two More Milk Indictments.

The grand jury which recently returned 141 indictments in its investigation of the New York Milk Chain Association, handed up two additional superseding indictments yesterday to Judge Levine in General Sessions. Assistant District Attorney Albert B. Unger, who presented the new evidence, refused to reveal the identity of the two persons named in the bill, but it was understood that they had not been involved in the previous indictments. Judge Levine was informed that the grand jury had completed its inquiry in the matter up to date, but obtained the consent to continue indefinitely in case new evidence developed.

BLAMES ZIONISTS IN PALESTINE RIOTS

GRAND MUFTI ACCUSED

Sir Boyd Merriman Says He Sought to Play Role of Holy Defender—Moslem Strike Set for Nov. 2.

By JOSEPH M. LEVY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

JERUSALEM, Oct. 31.—The British Commission of Inquiry began its session today hearing statements from both Arabs and Jews. Mr. Stocker, on behalf of the Arabs, spoke briefly, stating that the immediate causes of the outbreaks were "provocative acts, manifestations and demonstrations carried out by the Jews in Palestine acting under the aegis of the Zionist organization."

Sir Boyd Merriman, for the Jews, forcefully presented the case, bringing out that the Grand Mufti, in order to make secure his position, desired to play the rôle of defender of the Moslem holy shrines and therefore caused rumors to be circulated that the Jews had attacked the Mosque of Omar and had threatened the holy places of Islam. He charged that the Palestine Government, under H. C. Luke, Acting High Commissioner, in July and August, was equally to blame for creating the impression that the Arabs could have any of their demands fulfilled by merely insisting on them.

He also blamed the government for not affording an adequate measure of protection in view of the probability of the outbreaks.

Several public officers were examined, most of whose testimony consisted of repetitions of the history of the circumstances leading to and surrounding the outbreaks.

A proclamation calling on the Arabs of Palestine to join in a general strike on Nov. 2, the twelfth anniversary of the Balfour declaration, was issued by the Arab executive today.

A promise that the government would take under consideration their protests against the sentences pronounced on Arabs found guilty of having participated in the massacres was made today by H. C. Luke, Civil Secretary of the Palestine Government. Mr. Luke received a delegation from the Arab executive and the Mufti of Safed.

Will Compensate Victims.

JERUSALEM, Oct. 31 (?).—Considering that the fines imposed on offenders in the Arab-Jewish rioting of last August will probably be inadequate to meet claims for damages, the Palestine Government has decided as an alternative to make grants of compensation to a limited amount.

An official communiqué dealing with the question laid down the principle that the compensation shall not be paid when the loss occurred in an area in which Arabs and Jews engaged in promiscuous fighting.

Other cases in which compensations shall not be paid, the communiqué says, are those in which the established inhabitants of an area participated in misconduct or were in any way blameworthy, where the loss is attributable to the neglect of the claimants through failure to return after the disturbances or leaving property without the government's order or advice, and where the claim is for damages to buildings, and for loss of money, jewelry, articles of luxury and securities.

The compensation will be paid in proper cases to the dependent of a deceased person and to those whose injuries partly or totally incapacitate them.

BERLIN, Oct. 31 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—The Jewish Agency for Palestine is now considering the presentation of a petition to the Palestine Government asking that death sentences pronounced on Arabs for participation in the anti-Jewish massacres should not be carried out. This information is contained in a report published by the Juedische Rundshau, official organ of the German Zionist Federation.

The suggestion that Zionists should petition the Palestine Government against executing the death sentences has been heatedly debated in Zionist circles in Germany, the majority favoring such intervention. The only question was how this should be carried out, some expressing the view that the Zionist organization or the rabbis should approach the government, others holding that it was the duty of the Jewish Agency to take the initiative.

The minority opposed such a stand, arguing that if a definite example is not set for the Arabs they will be encouraged to new excesses. To this the reply is made that the Grand Mufti and the organizers of the massacres will not change their tactics even if the sentenced Arabs are executed, as they are merely pawns in the political chess play of the leaders.

SAYS PROHIBITION IS DEAD.

Darrow Tells London Questioners It Has Killed Itself.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Clarence Darrow thinks he has succeeded in retiring after trying for five years.

"I have been trying to retire for the last five years, but they would not let me," he said here today. "But, I guess I have managed it this time."

When asked his opinion about prohibition, Mr. Darrow retorted:

"Do I look like a prohibitionist? Prohibition is dead, anyway. It has killed itself."

Dutch Reject Sugar Subsidy Bill.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Oct. 31.—The Dutch Senate rejected today a bill introduced by some members of the second chamber to subsidize sugar beet growers. The Senate wanted to maintain the Dutch free trade standpoint, though acknowledging that this was becoming very difficult in consequence of the protectionistic measures of other countries for sugar producers.

VICEROY FORESEES INDIA AS DOMINION

Lord Irwin's Statement Holds Such Status to Be Ultimate Purpose of British Policy.

COUNTS ON INDIAN LOYALTY

Mass of Opinion Is True to King, He Says—London Times Sees Dissent on Policy.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DELHI, Oct. 31.—The attainment of a dominion status as a natural issue of India's constitutional progress was declared by the Viceroy, Lord Irwin, today to be the ultimate purpose of British policy here.

In a long-awaited statement, which was incorporated in the MacDonald-Simon correspondence, the Viceroy dissipated a good many fantastic hopes and fears. He made no promises and revealed no change of policy. His statement was based on belief in the fundamental loyalty of Indian opinion to the King and Emperor and the determination of British opinion that pledges given shall fully be redeemed.

There has been no difference in the language held on this subject by Englishmen of every party for the past ten years. Ever since the debates in the British Parliament on the government of India bill in 1919, which Edwin Montagu, then Secretary for India, described as "an opportunity of Indians to control their own destiny," to the time recently when the then Prime Minister Baldwin, head of the Conservative Government, added "in the fullness of time we look forward to seeing India in an equal partnership with the Dominions," responsible British opinion has been all for granting India some form of home rule as an ultimate step.

Lord Irwin Reaffirms Policy.

Today Lord Irwin reaffirmed this policy. "I am authorized on behalf of the government," he said, "to state clearly that in their judgment it is implicit in the declaration of 1917 that the natural issue of India's constitutional progress as there contemplated is the attainment of a dominion status."

Based on his impressions during a recent visit to England, the Viceroy expresses confidence that Britain's pledges to India will be carried out.

"I never faltered in my belief that behind all the disquieting tendencies of the time there lay the great mass of Indian opinion, overflowing all divisions of racial reaction or political thought, fundamentally loyal to the King and Emperor, whether unconsciously or not, only wanting to understand and be understood. On the other side, I never doubted that the opinion of Great Britain, puzzled as she might be by the events in India, or only, perhaps, partially informed as to their true significance, was unshaken in its determination that Britain should redeem fully the pledges she has given for India's future.

Great Benefits of Understanding.

"On both countries the times have laid heavy, and in some ways unique responsibility, for the influence on the world of a perfect understanding between Britain and India might surely be so great that no scales can give us the measure, either of the price of success or of the price of failure in our attempt to reach it."

For the rest, there is nothing in the statement which anticipates—as had been reported, to the delight of many Indian extremists—in the slightest degree the report of the Simon commission on questions of undivided responsibility of the Imperial Government in framing proposals for the consideration of the British Parliament.

The Simon commission, representing all British parliamentary parties, remains the appointed channel of information about existing Indian conditions, and the task, which has already spread over two years, is still uncompleted. And meantime, as the Viceroy reminds the Indians, "every British party is bound to preserve to itself complete freedom of action."

Baldwin's Stand Attacked.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, Nov. 1.—The expected political uproar over the statement of Lord Irwin has not been long delayed. Prime Minister MacDonald's disclosure, in a letter to Sir John Simon, chairman of the Statutory Commission investigating Indian constitutional reforms, that the leaders of all parties are united has also caused "astonishment" in some quarters.

The London Times says:

"It would be too much to hope that the policy which ultimately emerges should command the same unanimous support granted to the method of approach outlined yesterday in the MacDonald-Simon correspondence. There will be pressure upon Labor to give a party twist to their scheme. There will be pressure upon the Conservatives, and perhaps upon the Liberals, too, to look for opportunities of disagreement.

"Only the strongest conviction on all sides that the security and well-being of India matter incomparably more than any party success here can make the policy sound and practicable. It is at least some reason for optimism that in the matter of procedure not only the Simon commission and the Viceroy but the government and opposition leaders should be united."

The Daily Mail today declares that former Premier Baldwin's conservative colleagues "are aghast to discover that without their knowledge he had committed them to support the Socialist Government's policy of granting full home rule and dominion status to the natives of India."

Says Simon Wasn't Consulted.

The Daily Express prints a report that the Viceroy's statement was issued against the advice of the Simon Commission and that in the opinion of some of its leading members it has greatly complicated their difficulties.

"Sir John Simon, however," adds The Express, "will not resign the chairmanship of the commission, and it is expected that all members will see the task to its conclusion."

The Tory Morning Post says:

"The first comment of a puzzled but unshaken mind is that there is no date to the check offered to India. The second is that it cannot be honored without breaking most solemn pledges to and treaties with the Indian States, and third, that if the British Government really does contemplate this folly of dominion status it had better raise a relief fund for the Anglo-Indian population."

The Viceroy's statement, says The Daily Telegraph, can only serve as an irritant to the large, if misguided, body of Indian opinion which clamors for the immediate concession of Dominion status.

The government organ, The Daily Herald, insists it is a clear announcement to the people of India that the purpose and object of the government's Indian policy are "identical with those that have been repeatedly affirmed by their own political leaders."

David Lloyd George, Liberal leader, will ask in Parliament today whether the Simon Commission was consulted on Lord Irwin's statement and whether the reference to Dominion status represents a change in British policy.

FOUR POLICE SLAIN IN ZAGREB AFFRAY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia, Oct. 31.—Great excitement has been caused here by a shooting affray in which two police agents were shot dead and two others fatally wounded. Two suburbs of the city have been isolated by the police in an endeavor to catch the second of the two assassins.

Although the first shooting occurred last night, the authorities kept the affair secret until tonight, when it was revealed that two police agents were sent last night to the Siemens works in Zagreb to arrest one Babitch, described as a Communist agitator who was organizing Communist cells among the workers. Babitch escaped and took refuge in the house of a friend, Hroanilovitch, after shooting one agent dead and fatally wounding the other.

Detectives, who located him hiding in the house of Hroanilovitch, were about to enter when the two men rushed out, shooting one detective dead and mortally wounding a second. Immediately the suburbs were isolated by the police. Early this morning Hroanilovitch was discovered and arrested, but Babitch is still free.

Doubts are being expressed as to whether the propaganda upon which the two assassins were engaged was Communist propaganda or Croat nationalist agitation against the Yugoslav dictatorship. The police have recently shown a tendency to label all anti-government agitation "Communist" as being less damaging to the idea of national unity than an admission that Croat racial agitation is continuing.

A report in Croat nationalist circles tonight that three prominent Zagreb lawyers, as well as the niece of Dr. Vladko Matchek, leader of the Croat Peasant party in succession to the late Stephan Raditch, had been arrested, presumably in connection with the shooting affray, increased the suspicion that something more than ordinary Communist agitation was involved.

MACDONALD BACK IN GREAT BRITAIN

PARLEYS ON TRAIN PLANNED

He Feels He Accomplished Much by Visit Here and in Canada—Grave Home Issues Await Him.

ABOARD THE S. S. DUCHESS OF YORK, Friday, Nov. 1 (AP).—Ramsay MacDonald, the British Premier, arrived safely off Liverpool at 4:30 A. M. today after his visit to the United States and Canada.

The Duchess of York anchored in the Mersey River outside the British west coast port.

By CARLISLE MacDONALD.

To Land at 8 o'Clock.

ABOARD THE S. S. DUCHESS OF YORK, Oct. 31.—Premier MacDonald will set foot upon English soil at about 8 o'clock tomorrow morning after one of the most momentous voyages ever undertaken by a British Prime Minister. In many respects the trip stands alone in the annals of British history, for the Labor chief was the first Premier ever to journey to the United States while in office.

Supporters of the Prime Minister have arranged a reception at the Liverpool docks, and, weather permitting, a goodly portion of the workers of the great seaport town may be expected to turn out to welcome their champion.

Mr. MacDonald, however, is keenly anxious to make the reception as short as possible, and plans have been made to start the special train at 8:30, a bare half hour after he is due to walk down the gang plank. The reason for this is the pressing nature of the domestic questions awaiting the Prime Minister's attention. On the special train will be several of the important members of the MacDonald Cabinet, had during the four and a half hours ride up to London they will have an opportunity to give the Premier the latest developments.

Mr. MacDonald spent part of today writing a formal statement which, it is understood, will be issued simultaneously with his arrival. It will not be long and will recount generally the progress and successes of his American venture.

The Prime Minister is returning to England conscious of having accomplished real and lasting good for his country. This good is twofold. It is his conviction, and in this he is supported by scores of competent American observers, that his visit to Washington has removed much of the atmosphere of suspicion and has laid the foundation for a sincere understanding between the two countries.

The five-power naval conference to be held in London in January will, in the opinion of Mr. MacDonald and his advisers, go far toward completing the edifice whose foundation was started in Washington. The prospects for the London meeting are considered bright, and while the delay in the formation of a stable French Ministry is causing some concern, it is not regarded as serious. British indications are that Left opinion, and therefore favorable opinion, will be in power in France when the conference date is reached.

On the score of Canadian relations, the Prime Minister is equally pleased after his tour of the Dominion. His desire to consult Canada closely on all Empire matters has pleased the Canadians and taken into account the rapidly developing national consciousness of the Canadian people. On the other hand, by bringing the Dominion closer to England, Mr. MacDonald has served to improve Canadian-American relations, and in his hopes and desires for Anglo-American naval understanding he can count upon the whole-hearted support of Canada.

Two grave home issues to which Mr. MacDonald must give his immediate attention are the coal industry and unemployment, and, while he badly needs further rest, he will be forced to plunge into the thick of a complicated political situation and perhaps in the course of the next week sustain his government through its first real test of strength.

5,000 Minor Reich Employes Lose Salaries And Savings in $3,600,000 Berlin Bank Crash

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—Five thousand policemen, postmen and other civil service employes, crowded today in front of the twelve branches of the Bank for Civil Employes, which stopped payments this morning. Most of the men, who had come to get their monthly salaries which were paid by the various departments through this bank, were left without a cent, for they have also lost what little money they had been able to save since the inflation period.

Many heads of families, who will not be able to pay the monthly house rent due tomorrow and who do not know with what to buy bread for their children, shed tears of sorrow and scorn. Men and women, mad with rage, threatened to storm the premises and police interference was necessary to prevent damage being done.

It is believed that 15,000,000 marks (about $3,600,000) in deposits, which mainly consisted of the savings of petty employes, have been lost. Many have appealed to their committees for an advance on next month's salaries.

The failure is said to be due to speculation.

Last year the bank granted Prince August Hohenlohe-Oehringen, who several years ago was deprived of the rights to manage his own affairs, a loan of $500,000 against worthless drafts.

CABINET CRISIS DENIED.

London Paper's Story of 2 Threats to Resign Called Unfounded.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—On the eve of Premier MacDonald's return to England a morning newspaper published today a sensational story to the effect that two members of the Cabinet had threatened to resign because they had learned that the Prime Minister had agreed with President Hoover that in future wars food ships should be inviolate on the high seas.

This would, of course, have meant that Britain was surrendering part of her claim to the right of blockade on the high seas and it was asserted that Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer and leader of the government in the Premier's absence, had talked to Mr. MacDonald while the latter was at sea in an effort to prevent a Cabinet crisis.

This story was thoroughly discounted today in the lobbies of Parliament and First Lord of the Admiralty Alexander authorized a categorical denial that any such threats of resignation had been made by any of the Ministers. He said that he had never heard that Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Hoover had made any such agreement. Government circles think that the story represents a manoeuvre aimed at interfering with the reception to the returning Prime Minister, who will reach London tomorrow after his spectacular voyage to the United States.

FORT DE FRANCE, Martinique, Oct. 31 (AP).—For the sixth time in a few weeks Mont Pelee, dreaded West Indian volcano, was in eruption last night. The eruption lasted for seven minutes.

There are now about 8,000 refugees from the communities at the foot of the volcano. Ajoupa-Bouillon and the Lorrain heights were recently evacuated, most of the inhabitants of Saint Pierre, which was destroyed in the eruption of 1902, and Morne Rouge having left earlier.

The Governor and other authorities have taken all measures for the safety of the people.

ARMED MEN BLOCK POLISH DIET SESSION

PILSUDSKI WAS TO PRESIDE

By JERZY SZAPIRO.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WARSAW, Oct. 31—The long-expected first meeting of the ordinary budget session of the Sejm, after a seven-month compulsory vacation, was postponed by the Sejm's marshal, M. Daszynski, today, when a crowd of more than ninety armed officers entered the chamber without the permission of the Sejm authorities.

The officers marched into the Sejm building one hour before the session was arriving to preside at the session the entrance hall. Upon the request of one of the Sejm's officers to leave the building, they refused, saying that they were there to protect Marshal Pilsudski, Minister of War, who was arriving to preside at the session because Premier Switalski had fallen ill. At the steps of the building the Minister of the Interior, General Skladkowski, with a number of officers awaited Marshal Pilsudski, but on his arrival at 4 o'clock the Marshal entered through the back door without meeting the officers, who still refused to move.

Leaders Approve Stand.

M. Daszynski then called a meeting of the presidents of the Sejm parties and declared that he would not open the session until the officers left Parliament. All the leaders except the leader of the government group declared that they fully agreed with the Sejm marshal, and thereupon M. Daszynski sent the following letter to President Moscicki:

"I cannot give effect to the President's decree, countersigned by Premier Switalski on Oct. 24, summoning the Sejm to an ordinary budget session on the 31st because at 4 o'clock, the time for opening the session, a crowd of more than ninety armed officers entered the Sejm building by force and refused to obey my order to leave it."

After the message had gone, Marshal Pilsudski crossed the lobby from the government room to the Sejm room. His three minutes of conversation with M. Daszynski took a very dramatic turn.

Marshal Pilsudski said, "I am waiting now for the Sejm to start business."

M. Daszynski replied that he would not open the meeting.

"Is this your last word?" Marshal Pilsudski asked.

"Yes, we cannot sit when officers are threatening us with sabers and revolvers," the Sejm marshal answered.

The President's Reply.

Meanwhile the messenger who had carried the letter to the President of the republic returned with the reply that the President must first communicate with Marshal Pilsudski, who was now acting Prime Minister in view of M. Switalski's ill health. Marshal Pilsudski then called on President Moscicki, and the conversation of the two statesmen resulted in a private letter from the President to the Marshal of the Sejm advising postponement of the Sejm meeting. The President said that the two reports of Marshal Pilsudski and M. Daszynski contradicted each other in part and he therefore wanted to talk with both of them.

This letter was read at a meeting of the party leaders, who agreed with Marshal Daszynski to postpone the session until Monday. The postponement was announced in a circular letter to the Deputies, describing the circumstances. Meanwhile, the officers had remained in the hall all the time until the anti-climax. The Deputies of the government block brought out chairs and tea and in the hall a peaceful tea party took place, while the streets were full of newspapers' special editions which, however, were promptly confiscated by the police.

The Sejm Deputies regard this unexpected crisis as an indication of a government retreat and a sign that the government, despite all that has happened, has no intention of dissolving Parliament yet.

Political Crisis Feared.

WARSAW, Oct. 31 (AP).—Tonight political circles were asking whether Poland was on the verge of another crisis. There were diverging opinions as to whether Marshal Pilsudski's display of military strength was intended for his personal protection or as a manifestation of a new dictatorship.

It was uncertain tonight whether the proposal for a conference among the President, Marshal Pilsudski and the Speaker of the Sejm would be carried out. The senior council of the Diet was deliberating on the advisability of accepting the plan.

French Flier Writes of Rescuing Lindbergh On Night of Famous Landing at Le Bourget

By R. J. PHILIP.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—In a little book entitled "Space," which Commandant Pierre Weiss of the Thirty-fourth (Le Bourget) French Aviation Regiment, has just issued, he gives some new details of how he and two other airmen, Detroyat and Delage, hid Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh from the crowd on the memorable May evening when he landed at Le Bourget Field after his non-stop flight from New York City.

There were some dozens of young French soldiers on guard near Commandant Weiss's office, where Colonel Lindbergh was hidden. Many of them knew perfectly well who the mysterious visitor was whom the Commandant had hurried to his room, where the lights were immediately turned off, so that no one could see inside. In the darkness those who were inside could hear the soldiers talking to the crowd, who wanted to know who was inside.

"Have you never been in a crowd before," one French soldier asked the crowd, "and seen how fat old women faint? Well, that's one."

Then somebody in the crowd would say:

"It's only some drunk who has been celebrating too much. No, it's not Lindbergh. He doesn't drink."

"When we told him what it was he made a sign that he wanted to stop. From the sidewalk he walked to the Unknown Soldier's tomb and bowed. We were only two or three at this historic rendezvous. The victor of the Atlantic had come to lay his laurels on the tomb of his elder—that other victor.

"The night was dark, but it seemed there was light about us coming up from the tomb. In this century there has not been any spectacle or meeting of such solemn grandeur."

In another chapter Commandant Weiss pays special homage to Armeno Lotti, organizer and inspirer of the flight with Assolant and Lefevre. Of all those who have won Atlantic laurels, Lotti was the only one to conceive, pay for and take an active part in the flight he organized, Commandant Weiss said.

Commenting on the way things are done in France, he pointed out that when recently Assolant and Lefevre applied to be made reserve officers in the Flying Corps they had to undergo another training period with additional flying hours, while Lindbergh jumped to a Colonel's rank at once.

BERLIN MAYOR, BACK, IS MENACED BY MOB

ACCUSED IN CITY SCANDAL

His Removal From Office Is Asked and Friends Fear Crisis for Official Is Ahead.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—Mayor Boess's homecoming reception tonight, after an agreeable tour of inspection of American municipalities, was not exactly of the brand he had expected, for it required the physical intervention of several squads of police and a dozen plain-clothes men to enable him and his wife to reach their automobile and speed away.

It looked for a time as if the noisy mob of 2,000 men which jammed the station platform and cluttered up its exits would make a rush for the Mayor. At any rate, the boisterous vocal exuberance which spent itself on such greetings as "Schieber, down with him!" and "Grab him!" swiftly brought the police to his rescue.

Mayor Boess was literally confronted with physical violence by the mob, composed chiefly of Communists, who have started a campaign for his removal from office and impeachment.

The Mayor reached Bremerhaven early today and received a taste then of what was in store for him along his route to Berlin. As he disembarked from the steamship Bremen he was greeted by a hostile demonstration, which, however, was promptly snuffed out by the police.

He dodged press cameras and staunchly refused to discuss Berlin's municipal scandal, which now threatens to engulf him. As he missed the early boat train out of Bremerhaven he reached Berlin too late to report at a meeting of the City Council, where he was to be questioned on the Communists' motion for his removal from office without a pension.

The motion will now come up for formal action, and the Mayor's friends appear more than skeptical of their ability to stave off a serious Mayoralty crisis resulting from corruption charges involving leading municipal officials in connection with city contracts. Mayor Boess is accused by his political opponents of having paid a ridiculous price for a valuable fur coat for his wife to a firm which had city contracts. The members of the firm are now awaiting indictment on a charge of having muicted Berlin out of many million marks.

The exposure came soon after Mayor Boess and his "municipal caravan" embarked for the United States, and his refusal to return and face his accusers only served to accelerate the movement for his deposition.

WORLD BANK RULES DRAFTED AT BADEN

AMERICANS CONTINUE AID

Organizers Maintain Silence on Text of Statutes Completed and the Institution's Powers.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BADEN-BADEN, Germany, Oct. 31.—With the statutes and charter of the Bank for International Settlements completed, a large number of the delegates of the organizing committee left Baden today, and only a subcommittee remains at work here in an effort to frame a deed of trust to provide motive power for the machinery that has been created.

What the bankers have accomplished thus far is merely a technical outline of how the world bank will operate, and whether it can operate successfully and whether it will ever receive the approval of the various interested governments depends entirely upon the plan for handling reparations, which the trust committee here has been instructed to have ready for examination on Monday.

Even though the committee has succeeded in formulating complete statutes, so many details have been left undone because of political controversies that the committee decided to withhold information about the text to such an extent that only a vague notion of what the international bank will be can be obtained from the meager outline that has been made public.

In a general way the financiers announce that their plan follows faithfully the Young plan but there have been certain restrictions on and amplifications of the instructions framed at Paris. Their whole complexion may be changed in the light of what will be decided by the deed of trust committee, for all of the bank's operations will be dependent upon what disposition is made of the reparations payments, which will constitute the bank's principal source of business.

Aim at Removing Politics.

If the deed of trust now in preparation, which will aim to present a document on a banking basis as distinct from the sphere of international politics, proves unacceptable it is likely that the most important problems originally placed before this committee may be referred to the second Hague conference or will be decided in negotiations between the Chancelleries after the committee submits its report.

One of the decisions already taken in framing the statutes is worthy of close attention. First of all, it is definitely decided that the Bank for International Settlements will not ever become a super-bank set up with its own international sovereignty outside that of the nations.

The revision clauses approved in the statutes provide that vital questions as to the bank's aims and policies cannot be revised or altered upon the sole initiative of the bank's board of directors but requires the consent and approval of the governments themselves. In the last analysis then the governments can maintain financial independence.

The bank will be perpetually controlled, unless its statutes are revised, by the seven original nations, which will hold a majority of its $100,000,000 capital. All other nations will be eligible to hold shares but will be admitted only upon agreement of the original seven. Of these additional nations holding shares only nine can be represented on the board, and their selection will admit an opportunity for politics, for the statutes leave the question up to the board as to whether one of these nations may have more than a single representative.

Silence on Bank's Powers.

Regarding the powers of the bank, the delegates have preserved the strictest silence except for repeated assurances that the bank cannot trespass seriously on the field of activities of the central banks. It will be prohibited from making advances to or dealing directly with the governments, and it will make use of the central banks as the agencies for most of its operations.

In this connection, and of immense importance to the special position of the United States, the delegation has adopted the "veto clause" designed to allow a central bank, whether or not a member of the world bank, to exercise the right of vetoing any operation by the world bank within its territory or in its currency. It is further to be noted that assent to such an operation cannot be taken to mean approval or sharing in the responsibility for the world bank's operations, even when the veto is not utilized.

But beyond these limitations it may be safely assumed that the Bank for International Settlements will in time attain considerable power, both in creating credit and stabilizing international exchanges. It will float a vast loan on the security of Germany's unconditional payments, and it will conduct other operations in the way of investments, which will reach great magnitude.

Chief Important Factor.

How far this power will go, it is obvious, will depend upon the personality and prestige of the man who is chosen head of the institution. The committee has decided, chiefly at American instance, to make the chairman of the board supreme instead of attempting to double the directorship or establish a rotating system which, the Americans contend, would prevent all possibility of continuity in policy. This very decision is held to make it almost essential that an American be made chairman. The wielding of so much authority, it is held, should be by a personage removed from European influence.

The experts, then, have created a machine of high potentialities for becoming a world financial factor, but as it stands is like a new toy bank without any pennies. Where those pennies will come from and what will be done with them is entirely contingent upon what the deed of trust provides. It is certain that there are strong forces working to give the bank certain liberties to operate profitably and equally strong ones desiring to restrict it. While the subcommittee here is fighting this out, the governments and central banks of all the capitals of Europe will have ample opportunity to subject the text of the bank's statutes and charter to expert study while the world remains in ignorance of their provisions. It is needless to observe that the success or failure of this conference in large measure depends upon this scrutiny and the adjustments that can be made in the interim.

Reynolds Joins Subcommittee.

BADEN-BADEN, Oct. 31 (AP).—J. E. Reynolds of New York, the chairman of the organizing committee, participated in today's session of the trust agreement subcommittee. For weeks this subcommittee's work has been delayed by controversy among Germany's creditors as to the division of reparations payments.

M. E. Traylor, chairman of this subcommittee, is reported to have expressed the opinion that the bank, as a trustee, must simply be told what to do with the funds received and not concern itself with the method of allotment, which should be decided by the statesmen.

It was generally believed that the addition of Mr. Reynolds to the subcommittee would result in drafting a document from which all political considerations are removed.

The delegates who have left Baden-Baden plan to return when a full draft of the trust agreement can be submitted.

MAJOR ENGAGEMENT UNDER WAY IN CHINA

NANKING POSITION BETTER

By HALLETT ABEND.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 31.—President Chiang Kai-shek, accompanied by his staff, left Hankow at 11 o'clock this morning on a special train going northward to Wusengkwan, and thence to Chengchow.

Related reports of the last three days' continuous fighting indicate on the whole a betterment of the government's position, particularly in the northern and centre lines, although the main Kuominchun push from the west toward the Hupeh border is continuing unchecked so far. Heavy government reinforcements are rushing to this sector. From the centre Nanking's armies are reported progressing toward Loyang.

With the campaign favoring Nanking in Honan Province, and with Kwangtung and Kwangsi continuing quiet, confidence is growing here that the only disturbing factor is General Yen Hsi-shan's continued aloofness.

Fighting Becomes Intense.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 31 (AP).—Fighting between the Nationalist Government troops and the Kuominchun rebel forces was reported today increasing in intensity. The area of hostilities was said to be spreading southward toward the Yangtse River in Central China, with prospects of a major engagement. President Chiang Kai-shek's presence at Nationalist army headquarters is expected to boost the flagging morale of the Nationalist troops, who have suffered sharp losses in the last forty-eight hours.

A dispatch to the Kuo Min News Agency, Nationalist Government organ, from Nanking, stated:

"The long expected offensive against the Kuominchun is under way west of Chengchow. Both sides are throwing in their full resources, including infantry, artillery, armored trains and airplanes.

Nationalist Losses Reported.

HANKOW, Oct. 31 (AP).—Kinhan Railway dispatches today stated that Nationalist Government troops had suffered heavy reverses from the Kuominchun and that the situation of the government troops was unfavorable. The dispatches could not be confirmed from other sources.

The Kuominchun forces were said to be advancing southeastward from the Western Lunghai Railway in Honan Province, having broken through the Nationalist lines west of Hsuchow. The Nationalist communications along the Kinhan Railway were reported endangered by the movement threatening the isolation of all Nationalist forces north of Hsuchow, which are centralized at Chengchow.

PENSION BILL STIRS CLASH IN COMMONS

PASSAGE SUSTAINS LABOR

Snowden Tells House Young Plan Would Provide Enough to Pay Debt to Us.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The first show of real Tory opposition to the Labor Government's program of social service legislation was made today when the bill to amend the widow's pension act came up in the House of Commons and was passed for a second reading.

It will include at the outset 500,000 widows not provided for under the terms of the original measure, which was sponsored by the Baldwin Government and passed by the last Parliament. The added cost to the State will be $40,000,000 a year at the beginning, and that will gradually be increased to about $100,000,000, but Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer, approves of the measure.

Arthur Greenwood, Minister of Health, who brought the measure before the House, defied the Opposition to make a test fight on it, and said they would not hesitate a minute to vote the same amount of money if it was wanted for new battleships.

Neville Chamberlain, Minister of Health in the late tory government, was the chief critic of the measure for the Opposition. He said that the opposition would not call for a division vote on the second reading stage, but would fight the measure when it reached the committee stage prior to enactment.

Liberals Pledge Support.

This threat, however, was offset by assurances from Liberal party members that they would support the government, so there is no chance of the government coming to grief on this measure.

Lady Cynthia Mosley, daughter of the late Lord Curzon, and now Labor member of the House, made her maiden speech on the widow's bill as one of its most earnest advocates. One of the tory critics had denounced it as "giving something for nothing."

"I have been getting something for nothing all my life," declared Lady Mosley. "This measure is a step along the road which all of us on the Labor benches are determined to follow—the road leading to the total abolition of want and poverty in this country. I welcome the bill because of its approach to a full acceptance of the fundamental truth that economic insecurity is socially created and ought to be provided against until abolished by socialism. The bill is a considerable attempt to meet our social obligations, and it tries to get away from the vicious circle of the poor always having to pay."

On the Conservative side of the House the Countess of Iveagh gave another woman's point of view. She said the bill gave preferential treatment to women, which was something women had been trying to eliminate, and called attention to the fact that many widowers, as well as widows, needed aid. She also criticized the bill as discriminating against spinsters, who might be as worthy and as much in need as widows.

Snowden Discusses Young Plan.

LONDON, Oct. 31, (AP).—Explanations of Ministerial actions at The Hague conference on the Young plan and of attempts to settle the coal problem were given in the House of Commons today.

Mr. Snowden said that the Young plan, as adopted at The Hague, would provide Great Britain with sufficient German reparations to cover this country's debt payments to the United States. He added that the advantages of The Hague settlement could be approximated at about $10,000,000 yearly for thirty-seven years.

There will, therefore, be a small set-off each year against the accumulated deficit between Great Britain's war debt receipts and the payments which she has already made.

In the current financial year, Mr. Snowden estimated, the Exchequer will receive approximately $165,920,000 on account of reparations and allied war debts, while the amount payable to the United States is $100,690,000.

William Graham, president of the Board of Trade, announced that he would have to postpone a statement which he had intended to make on the coal question, as negotiations were still continuing. It was learned that the government is running into difficulties on this problem and that the mine owners consider the government proposals so far-reaching that they have asked for further explanations.

SALVATION ARMY HOLDS UNITED LONDON SERVICE

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—No trace of dissension in the Salvation Army was apparent today when Commissioner Catherine Booth, the late General Bramwell Booth's daughter, sat behind General Edward J. Higgins on the platform at the Albert Hall throughout a day of evangelical services. Salvationist hymns were sung with old-time fervor, the band played, tambourines jingled and Commissioner Catherine joined in whole-heartedly.

General Higgins made only one guarded reference to the controversy between the Booth family and the new administration.

"There are many things we could talk about today if we wanted to," he told the 50,000 Salvationists assembled in the vast auditorium. "We could talk of the difficulties that have interfered with us in the past and which have dampened zeal. However, we should remember only those things that matter to the interests of the soul and that have to do with our salvation. We must shut ourselves today in the presence of God."

Meanwhile, the late General's executors issued a statement in a conciliatory tone, merely complaining that General Higgins had not consulted them before asking in the courts for the transfer of the Army's property. They insisted that they had never refused to hand over the trust, adding:

"The executors have assiduously sought, and were hopeful of finding, a solution which would render it unnecessary even to invoke the aid of the courts on the matter of trusts. General Higgins has at no time sought a conference with the executors, nor has he made any approach to them with a view to finding a ground for mutual agreement."

LONDON CITY TO GIVE NAVAL BODY DINNER

Lord Mayor Invites Delegates in First Public Welcome Yet Arranged for Parley.

FRENCH ATTITUDE CRUCIAL

Accord With Italy on Status in Mediterranean Seen as Needed If Meeting Is to Succeed.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The City of London Corporation, headed by the Lord Mayor, Sir Kynaston Studd, decided today to invite the delegates from the United States, France, Italy and Japan with the British Dominion representatives who will attend the five-power naval conference in January, to a reception and banquet in the Guildhall.

This is the first public welcome thus far arranged for the visiting delegates, and in moving the resolution, which was carried unanimously, Sir Ernest Lamb said that the Corporation, which has always given the lead to public opinion, would do so in this great effort to favor world peace.

"Statesmen cannot alone achieve peace," he said. "The success of their efforts depends on the public opinion behind them. Every man in every country must take his share in the crusade against war, unless he wants to find himself again in the trenches. The ground must be prepared for the seed which, it is hoped, will yield a good harvest of benefits to all countries."

PARIS, Oct. 31 (AP).—The Mediterranean Sea promises to be one of the main factors in determining the success or failure of the five-power naval conference in London next January. The impression took form tonight in responsible international circles here that an understanding between Italy and France, with Great Britain participating as the third power which possesses vital interests in the Mediterranean, would go a long way toward assuring satisfactory results at London.

It was learned from reliable quarters that if Italy and France can settle their political questions in the Mediterranean, there would be reasonable prospects that France would abandon her hitherto firm decision not to discuss tonnage questions at London.

So important do well-informed persons here regard the necessity of a Mediterranean political agreement, that there is apprehension lest complete success of the five-power conference may be jeopardized by insufficient time to conclude such an understanding.

It is understood that the projected conversations between Italy and France will not be restricted to an exchange of diplomatic notes. They are more likely to become personal conferences in Paris between representatives of the two governments aided by technical experts and appropriate documents.

With Spain manifesting intentions to increase her naval strength, with Great Britain strong at Gibraltar and in the Mediterranean, and with the Italian fleet naturally concentrated in that sea, many French experts are convinced that the world generally fails to understand France's potential necessity of maintaining a strong relative position on her southern coast. They point out that she must be sure of constant communication with her North African possessions as she must depend upon getting troops from there in great emergencies.

CLEMENCEAU TRAINER REGRETS EXERCISE BAN

M. Leroy Says Physical Culture Kept Tiger Supple and Young Until Now.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—M. Clemenceau's professor of physical culture is extremely distressed. Ever since 1901, when the Tiger was already an oldish man, it had been the duty of M. Leroy to put him through his daily dozen, Summer and Winter, at 8 o'clock.

"When he started with me," M. Leroy complained today, "M. Clemenceau was dyspeptic and suffered from his liver, and all that the doctors did for him was no good. Again and again he has told me that it was my exercises which enabled him to succeed in what he had done.

"Just after the armistice—and he did not forget his quarter of an hour even on that day—he embraced me roughly, and 'It was all your doing,' he said. That was how he dissembled his joy and emotion. We just do simple breathing and stretching exercises, but they have been enough to keep him supple and young until now.

"I think it is a mistake of his doctor to forbid them. Next Monday he has promised that we can begin again."

ENATORS AGREED ON PUSHING TARIFF

ut Many Disagree With Hoover on Obtaining Passage of the Measure in Two Weeks.

ORAH EXPECTS RESULTS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—President Hoover's statement urging the Republican Senate leaders to get together on the tariff bill and obtain its passage in two weeks had the effect of clarifying the Senate atmosphere to the extent that all talk of adjournment next month apparently has been abandoned. The coalition forces now in control of the Senate will proceed to make a bill in accordance with their views, judged by the statements made by leaders on both sides.

Views expressed by coalition leaders were to the effect that they had not delayed action on the bill but that it was physically impossible for the Senate to respond to the President's desires and dispose of it in the Senate within two weeks.

Both Democrats and Republicans asserted that there had been no dilatory methods during the debate, but that the bill was so important that thorough discussion had been necessary and that some further explanations would be essential before the Senate could vote intelligently on the fifteen schedules.

Democratic leaders criticized the President for not moving earlier for speed in the consideration of the bill. They also thought that he should have given the country some idea as to his position on rates. They and the insurgent Republican Senators refused to accept responsibility for the present situation, not one of the fifteen schedules having been acted upon by the the Senate after nearly three months of consideration.

There was general agreement with the President that the bill had been long before the Senate, and hope was expressed by some Senators that expedition would result from the Chief Executive's frank statement.

Views Expressed by Senators.

Comments on President Hoover's statement and the tariff situation in the Senate follow:

Senator Wesley L. Jones of Washington, who will be acting Republican leader in the absence of Senator Watson—The President's position is very much my own. I think we ought to act more promptly from now on, although it would not seem possible to pass the bill in the Senate in the next two weeks, but I will do everything to that end, with the hope that we can dispose of the measure before the regular session.

The coalition faction has control and it would seem practical in order to save time that there should be no long debate on many items and few roll-calls as possible. We ought to get an agreement between both sides as to controversial issues and adopt the other items without debate and a roll-call.

The President's statement has brought the issue squarely before the Senate. An agreement between the regulars and coalition might be reached now which will lead to passage of the bill in a very short time.

It is out of the question to drop the bill. We should go along without adjournment, if necessary, get the bill through the Senate and send it to conference with the hope of acting on the conference report late in December or early next year.

For Defense of Committee's Bill.

Senator David A. Reed, Republican, of Pennsylvania—The coalition has control and can write about it to suit their program. This is conceded. But I for one will not agree to allow the bill to go through without adequate debate. I want an opportunity to defend the bill as reported by the Finance Committee. But even passage of a bill by the Senate does not mean that we will have a tariff law.

It is my opinion that the House will never accept a bill sent to it by the Senate and that the conferees will become deadlocked. I cannot see how the Senate will recede from its position on the flexible tariff clause; I doubt whether the House will agree to drop that provision. There will be several other things in addition to rates that will be almost insurmountable between the House and Senate.

Doubt of Passage in Two Weeks.

Senator Walter E. Edge, Republican, of New Jersey—I am in sympathy with the President's desire for speedy action on the bill, but do not see how it can be passed in two weeks. In view of the reception accorded the President's statement and Senator Watson's plea for an agreement, it would seem apparent now that it is impossible to complete the tariff bill in the Senate in the special session.

Insists Senate Will Legislate.

Senator William E. Borah, Republican, of Idaho—I agree with the President that the campaign pledges should be kept. That is what some of us are trying to do. I think there need be no uneasiness over a suggestion that the Senate will fail to legislate. It will legislate, but it will take some time to rewrite the bill in the Senate. But as slow as we are we are making progress faster than they did under the flexible provision. To my own knowledge, it took the Tariff Commission three years to consider one item, to wit, onions. Remember, it takes longer to do a good job than a bad one.

Demand for Going "Right Ahead."

Senator George W. Norris, Republican, of Nebraska—I have never criticised the President for his refusal to make a statement, but he came out on the debenture and on the flexible provision, so I thought he would want to come out on the rates. I don't believe it is likely that we can finish the bill in the extra session, but we ought to go right ahead.

Hoover Plea Called "Preposterous."

Senator FURNIFOLD M. SIMMONS of North Carolina, ranking Democratic member of the Finance Committee—The President's proposal is preposterous. We cannot pass a tariff bill in two weeks. There is no necessity to do so. We will pass a tariff bill and a good one. To do so will require time, and it is better to get a bill that will benefit the industries needing assistance than to send a quickly conceived measure to conference.

Delay Laid to Bill Itself.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh, Democrat, of Montana—The President must know that whatever delay has ensued in the passage of the tariff bill is not due to captious criticism or irrelevant debate, but arises from the fact that it is so indefensible in many of its provisions and in the outrageous favoritism in the rates it proposes toward the interests represented by Grundy and other lobbyists as not only to have divided the Republican representation in the Senate but to have aroused the most vigorous protest from the distinctly agricultural sections of the country.

It is recognized of all men that the bill as it came from the House and as it came from the Finance Committee is unsatisfactory to a majority of the Senate. The fault lies not with it, but with those Republican leaders referred to in the statement issued by the President, who have tendered a bill that is vulnerable in every page. Apparently the President would have the Senate pass the bill as it stands substantially, leaving it to himself and the Tariff Commission to correct it by changes within the limit of 50 per cent.

Proposition for Hoover Made.

Quite aside from the transference of power involved, it is difficult to understand how action would be expedited by that course in view of the record of the commission and the Executive in disposing of no more than thirty-seven items in seven years, while the pending bill deals with something like 4,000 to 5,000 items.

If the President really desires to expedite the passage he could do so by indicating whether he approves or disapproves of raises in the duty on some forty-four of fifty-two of the leading products of the State of Connecticut, and in forty-one out of sixty-eight of the leading products of Pennsylvania.

It would help if he would indicate to the Republican leaders with whom he conferred whether he approves or disapproves of a duty of $2.20 net on sugar as against $1.76 as provided by the present law, and $1.22 as recommended by the Tariff Commission.

It seems queer that the President should, in an effort to promote speedy action, appeal to a group of Senators who are for the bill exactly as it stands and ignore those Republicans and Democrats who find fault with it. This attempt to hurry the passage of the bill without due consideration suggests that those advocating it fear discussion of the tremendous burdens it imposes upon the American people.

As to Hoover's Plea for Speed.

Senator Claude A. Swanson, Democrat, of Virginia—It seems to be that the statement bears the unmistakeable marks of the President's mind and action since the Congress met in extraordinary session. We have a picture here of a disorganized party going to the White House. A scattered mob, to appeal to its leader to reach a decision and lead them to victory and not let them remain scattered as a mob. The statement would indicate that the President was silent, that he said nothing, that "we have nothing to do with rates, nothing to do with anything but to get what I previously recommended."

"Give me the flexible provision. Give me the power to fix rates, which I will turn over to a tariff commission, not having the time myself to find what the rates are."

The next thing is speed. It is the same speed that prevailed in the House, which the President dominates, dictates to and controls. Consequently the idea of refusing to be the leader of the disorganized army of which he was elected to be the leader, leaving them scattered, routed, divided, would seem to indicate that he intends to take care of himself in the melee, and that he is asking simply for the privilege of having the right to pass on tariff rates himself.

His asking for speed is in thorough accord with what he has done since the extra session was called. It is unmistakeably the President's very thought and action. I think it is a correct statement.

"Good Advice to Republicans."

Senator Pat Harrison, Democrat, of Mississippi—The President has given good advice to the Republican leaders but he still refuses to take sides in the controversy in the Republican party. I don't think it is possible to get a bill in two weeks, but as far as adjournment is concerned the President's statement and the statement of Senator Watson knocks the props from under that. I still regret the President has not stated his ideas on rates.

COURT GRANTS BAIL TO CAPITAL-REPORTERS

Washington Star Men Sent to Jail in Contempt Case Get Habeas Corpus Writ.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (AP).—Three reporters for The Washington Times who were sent to jail for contempt of court after they had refused to give information requested by the grand jury were released late today on $500 bonds.

They were freed after Justice Frederick L. Siddons of the District Supreme Court had signed an application for release on habeas corpus proceedings. This course was taken when Justice Peyton Gordon declined to reconsider his refusal to release them on bond pending an appeal from his decision.

The petitions filed in the habeas corpus proceedings for the men, Gorman M. Hendricks, Linton Burkett and Jack E. Nevin Jr., described their refusal to give the grand jury information which they regarded would involve a breach of newspaper ethics and contended that there was not sufficient reason for their commitment to jail. They added that no contempt was committed, that they were fully justified in declining to answer the questions and that the reasons they had given the court were sufficient in law.

Their release came at the end of a full day in jail, during which they reported that they had been accorded splendid treatment. Other reporters calling to interview them found one in the jail barber shop and another finishing a second helping of breakfast.

They were certified to Justice Gordon by the grand jury for refusing to identify their individual reports of visits to alleged bootleg establishments. The reports previously had been given to the jury by their city editor, Daniel E. O'Connell.

Talks Child Welfare With Hoover.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Mrs. Henry Breckenridge of New York City, an enthusiastic worker in behalf of child welfare agencies and director of a division of the American Child Health Association, discussed child welfare activities generally with President Hoover at the White House today. The President was formerly president of the American Child Health Association.

HOOVER APPEALS FOR SPEED ON TARIFF

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

by the Senate in the little more than four weeks remaining of the extra session, it will run counter to the heavy amount of other legislation which will be brought forward in the regular session and hence its ultimate passage will be delayed, perhaps until the outset of next year's contests for the Senate and the House of Representatives.

There would be danger to the Republican party if its enactment were postponed until then, for, according to the reasoning of politicians, no opportunity to show whether the new tariff law would be beneficial to the country would be offered, with the result that a confused electorate might be led to believe that the new rates of duty were altogether bad, and vote accordingly against the party in power.

Hoover's Fortunes Involved.

From that point of view, Mr. Hoover's personal political fortunes are deeply involved in the situation of party chaos which prevails in the Senate.

Claudius Huston, chairman of the Republican National Committee, twice went to the White House during the day to discuss the tariff bill program with Mr. Hoover; and it is inferred that the effect of the failure of the legislation on party prospects in next year's elections was considered.

As his statement showed, the President is anxious to have the Senate pass the measure in the next couple of weeks, or about the same period prior to the beginning of the regular session. The House, loyal to his cause, would disagree to the Senate changes and the bill would be given over to the conference committee, which would endeavor to effect compromises necessary to the enactment of the tariff act.

But it is in the cards that if President Hoover should condemn the bill, the conference would be like the proverbial long lane and the months and months of tariff agitation would end in futility.

President Hoover said that he would decline to express any opinion as to the rates that should be included in the tariff revision, a remark that brought from Joseff Shouse, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Democratic National Committee, the retort that the President "ought to tell the Senate Finance Committee where he stands on the Hawley [the House] bill, and the reiterated criticism that the President had never "raised the veil" as to his view of the current tariff measure.

The President riled Democratic and insurgent Republican Senators by contending that the prolongation of the tariff debate was proof that the authority now vested in the Executive to raise or lower rates, after the Tariff Commission had shown the desirability of changing them, should be continued. The coalition recently forced into the Senate bill an amendment depriving the President of this flexible power.

All Denying Responsibility.

The President's statement emphasized that the game known as passing the buck is being played by those on all sides of the controversy in the Senate.

If the bill is to fail, each contingent would like to have the responsibility for failure placed at the door of the other. The regular Republicans are contending that failure, if it comes, will be due to the opposition and dilatory tactics of the Democrats and the insurgents. The Democrats and the insurgent Republicans hold that the regular Republicans are putting obstacles in the way of the enactment of the legislation.

There seems to be hope on both sides of the Senate that the House of Representatives ultimately will be obliged to take responsibility for an abortive ending of the contest. All of which adds to the state of confusion that exists in the upper branch.

Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican floor leader, who will leave for Florida tomorrow for his health, first revealed to the Senate that he had conferred with President Hoover on the tariff situation last night. Senator McNary of Oregon was with him, he said.

Later it became known that other regular Republican Senators had been in conference with Mr. Hoover. Among them were Smoot of Utah, in charge of the bill; Jones of Washington, who is to act as floor leader in Mr. Watson's absence; Reed of Pennsylvania, and Shortridge of California. Representative Hawley of Oregon, chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means and chief sponsor for the measure which the House passed in the Spring, was another conferee.

Watson Appeals for Agreements.

In reporting that he and Senator McNary had discussed the tariff complexity with the President, Senator Watson appealed to the Senate factions to adjust their differences and enact a tariff law. He called on those who insisted on having the revision confined to agricultural products to reach an accord with those who contended that the industrial schedules should be revised also.

"I am assuming," he said, "that there are enough men in this body who want a tariff bill, and who feel that the industries in their States really need additional protection, to do so. The trouble is we have not gone about it in a conciliatory fashion and at the present time there is a disposition on the part of many to adjourn Congress and go away without acting.

"I am compelled to go away under the advice of doctors for a little while, but if I were here I never should agree to a proposition to adjourn this Congress without passing the tariff bill."

Asked by Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Massachusetts, whether much time was not bound to be consumed in considering new rates, Mr. Watson answered:

"If we are going to debate every item, and there are 21,000 items in this bill, we would be here 21,000 days or 21,000 weeks; but in the give-and-take of legislation, men on various sides sit down, talk it over and largely agree on what can be done. This is a meeting of minds, otherwise opposed, on a common proposition, and where there is a meeting of minds decisive action is possible. I think this tariff bill can be passed, and I think it ought to be passed.

"I have never at any time asked the President to tell me whether he would sign the bill or what he would do by way of making a concession. I do not think any President ought to be asked as to his attitude toward a measure pending in the Congress. When the bill goes to conference and we get a finality and determine what or what not should be left out, that will be time enough to consider the attitude of the President.

"We could sit down, men from the Northwest and men from the East, men on both sides of the chamber, and come to a conclusion about rates. We must either do that or acknowledge that the Senate of the United States is an impotent and incompetent body."

There was a brief debate, in the course of which Senator Harrison of Mississippi, chief butter of Republicans in the Senate, called on President Hoover to "take a hand now" in framing the tariff bill. He pleaded for the enactment of a measure as quickly as possible.

At that time the Senate did not know that the President's statement had been issued. When copies of it reached the Capitol, Senator McKellar read it to the chamber and thereby started the experience meeting which brought out in a graphic way that the fate of the legislation is uncertain.

"It has taken the President a long time to urge the expedition of this bill," said Mr. McKellar.

He recalled that last June Senator Harrison urged the President to tell the Finance Committee where he stood, but that even now the country was uninformed except that it knew Mr. Hoover desired retention of the present flexible provisions and wanted the bill sent to conference in two weeks.

According to Senator Barkley of Kentucky and other Democrats, the Presidential idea that a bill carrying fifteen schedules and 21,000 items could be sent to conference in two weeks gave "small credit to the understanding of one who believes it."

"It is incredible," Senator Johnson of California commented, alluding to the President's statement, and asked Mr. McKellar if it was true that it emanated from the White House.

Both Senators Smoot and Reed asserted that they had never seen the statement.

Many of Doubtful Mind.

Senator Simmons of North Carolina, leader of the Democratic opposition to the measure, said he could not believe that the President, after conferences with Republican leaders, thought it possible to pass the bill in a fortnight.

"In view of the Republican doubts about this, perhaps we should name a committee to investigate it," Senator Harrison injected.

Senator Swanson of Virginia, another Democrat, said that the statement was undoubtedly authentic, as it had the "unmistakable marks of the President's mind."

Senator McKellar asked Senator Reed if he thought it possible to complete the bill in the Senate in two weeks.

"In view of the attitude of the coalition that constitutes a majority, I think it highly impossible," the Pennsylvania Senator retorted.

It was "unfair to the country and to the Senate" for the President to set such a time limit, protested Senator Copeland of New York.

"If we finish this bill in seven months we will be doing very well," he said. "It is not fair for the President to give the country the impression that we are interfering with its progress."

Senator Borah made some observations.

"We should devote our entire time to the bill," he asserted. "We are not making progress with this debate. Those whom the Senator from Pennsylvania calls the coalition are practically in charge of the bill. We should go ahead with it."

Mr. Borah added that the President could "speak with a great deal more authority" when the bill entered the conference than now.

Walsh Wants Word on Rates.

"If the President wants to expedite the passage of this bill," said Senator Walsh of Montana, "let him indicate to his friends here that he is opposed to a great many of its rates. Let him tell them whether he wants them to go on fighting for all these rates as they have been doing. It would perhaps shorten the debate if the President would tell, for example, whether he favors the proposed increase in the sugar duty from 1.76 cents a pound to 2.20 cents."

Mr. Walsh denied that there had been any filibuster against the bill. "If there has been any delay," he added, "it has come from the exercise of legitimate objections. Obviously, what the President now asks us to do is to withhold our objections and pass the bill as it is."

"What's all this talk about coalition?" Senator Glass asked. "No one on the Republican side or Democratic side has suggested to me how I shall vote."

When the bill emerged from the House it was hotly denounced on many sides. Mr. Glass added, saying:

"Even so sane a paper as The New York Times was literally merciless in its criticism, and yet it has been quite as merciless in denouncing the majority because it wanted to improve the bill."

Up to the Coalition, Reed Says.

"The situation here has been made clearer by the brave candor of the Senator from Idaho, Mr. Borah," Senator Reed said, re-entering the discussion. "I am glad to hear him admit frankly that the coalition is in control. The coalition will write the tariff bill in the Senate. The statement of the President is optimistic when he hopes that Republican leaders can put the bill through in two weeks. I don't think they can put it through in two years, unless the coalition wants to.

"I don't believe the bill that will be passed through the Senate will be acceptable to the majority of the House. That's why I reasoned out that the bill was dead. We will be outvoted at every turn.

"I make no complaint that four-fifths of the debate has been consumed by the coalition. But we of the Finance Committee have the right to say that we think the rates we proposed are justified, and I intend to do that."

Senator Norris did not agree with Mr. Reed that no bill would come out of the conference.

"We'll have to surrender, and they'll have to surrender, and the bill will be a compromise," he stated. "Let's take up the amendments as rapidly as possible and go ahead. If we can't finish in the extra session, we can finish in the regular session."

Allen Praises Hoover.

One of Mr. Hoover's strongest supporters, Senator Allen of Kansas, remarked that the Senate had spent four and one-half hours out of five in debating "an utterly fruitless" matter.

He contended that whenever the President said anything on the tariff, he met with "a splendid reaction from the country."

"The Senate has distinguished itself in fighting the President, and every time, the President's reputation goes up and the Senate's goes down," Mr. Allen said.

Senator Harrison remarked that the President "doesn't say anything" in his statement, but "tells the people how ignorant he is with reference to the tariff bill."

He concluded with a denial that a coalition existed between the Democrats and the insurgent Republicans.

"There has never been any understanding of any particular rate," he asserted. "The fact that we agree with the insurgents is a coincidence. Praise should be given to the independent Republicans for courage to defy their leaders and the President, if necessary."

As the [illegible] ceased, Senator Smoot, who had been sitting at the clerk's desk, said plaintively:

"Now I hope we can have ten or fifteen minutes of the bill."

With the chemical schedule unfinished, the Senate started on the earthenware tariffs and a few amendments were approved. Mr. Smoot said after the session that no agreement had been made to curtail debate, and that the Senate would go right ahead with the bill.

Chemical Duties Rejected.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (AP).—The Senate today rejected, 54 to 30, a Finance Committee amendment to the tariff bill to take lithium, beryllium and caesium from the free list and make them dutiable at 25 per cent ad valorem.

Then, without a record vote, the Senate disapproved a proposed duty of 25 per cent on sodium and potassium, now on the free list. The House was for the duty.

A committee amendment making the duty on sodium silicofluoride 1½ cents a pound, instead of 1¾ cents proposed by the House and 25 per cent ad valorem, was adopted.

NOBEL MEDICINE PRIZE TO BE SHARED BY TWO

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 31.—The Nobel Prize for medicine this year will be divided between Professor Christian Eijkman of Utrecht, Holland, and Sir Frederick Gowland Hopkins, Professor of Biochemistry at Cambridge University, for their discoveries connected with vitamines.

Dr. Eijkman's work was the discovery of the anti-neuritic vitamine, while Sir Frederick's researches have been on the accessory vitamines of growth.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CAMBRIDGE, England, Oct. 31.—Sir Frederick Hopkins was completely surprised by the award of the Nobel Prize today. He said that he did not even know he had been mentioned as a candidate.

Since 1914 he has held the Chair or Biochemistry here and he became widely known through his researches on the nature of Vitamine A. He is now one of the chief authorities on vitamines and the physiology of food. Until recently he was one of the official analysts to the Home Office and he is an original member of the Medical Research Council.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 31 (AP).—Professor James B. Sumner of Cornell University is now regarded as the most likely candidate for the Nobel Prize in chemistry, the winner of which will be announced by the Swedish Academy of Science on Nov. 12.

LORD CARSON QUITS POST.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Lord Carson, one of the most romantic figures in Irish politics in the last thirty years, closed his great legal career today when he resigned office as Lord of Appeal in the House of Lords.

Lord Carson, now 75 years old, seldom participated in public affairs, but memory is still fresh for the part he played in the home rule crisis, when he raised an Ulster army and organized a powerful opposition as leader of the Ulster Loyalists.

McAdoo Warns of Fortune Tellers.

"Confiding and credulous men and women" were warned yesterday by Chief Magistrate William McAdoo to avoid swindlers posing as fortune tellers and spiritualists. He cited several recent complaints he had received. One case was that of a political club, he said, that paid $5 for a powder which, if sprinkled on the floor of the clubroom, would bring good luck in the coming election.

LAYS TARIFF SNARLS TO 'POPULIST' WEST

Senator Reed Writes Publisher That New Senators Should Be Sent to Washington.

REPLY TO WARNING LETTER

F. E. Murphy Had Suggested That Industrial Disaster Would Follow Collapse of Agriculture.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Writing to F. E. Murphy, publisher of The Minneapolis Tribune, Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, one of the Republican tariff leaders, asserts that the tangled situation over the Smoot-Hawley bill would be improved if the Northwest would send to Washington "a few Senators who will look at this problem as Americans and not as factionalists, sectionalists and populists."

This characterization of the Republican insurgents from the Northwest States came as a reply to a letter which Mr. Murphy had written to Senator Reed. Mr. Murphy asserted that if disparity between agriculture and industry continued, the first would collapse with an ensuing industrial disaster.

The publisher added that Mr. Hoover called the special session for the purpose of "permitting the Republican party to fulfill its campaign pledges; namely, to place agriculture on a parity with industry." Adding that passage of the present tariff bill would leave agriculture in a worse condition than today, Mr. Murphy asked Mr. Reed for "any concrete suggestion that will enable us to reach a solution of the problem."

Replying, Senator Reed said that while willing to do "anything within reason to rehabilitate agriculture," the agriculturists could not "hope to improve their condition by dragging industry down to a level of common misery." He said he disliked the debenture amendment, regarding it as economically unsound.

"It is senseless," he continued, "to build up agriculture by changing tariff duties in a way which threatens to put several million industrial workers on the streets.

"How in the world can you expect to make agriculture prosperous by impoverishing the industrial districts? And that is exactly what will happen if the Senate coalition goes through with its present program. You ask for a concrete suggestion. My best suggestion is that you send us a few Senators who will look at this problem as Americans and not as factionalists, sectionalists and populists.

"This is not an indictment of Senators Schall and Shipstead, but rather of some of their colleagues, whose attitude with respect to the present tariff bill, is to my mind, far more dangerous to our economic security than all of the communists combined."

TELLS PRIZE NOVEL'S BASIS.

Muriel Harris Describes How She Came to Write "Seventh Gate."

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Muriel Harris told today how she came to write her first novel, "The Seventh Gate," to which was awarded the $5,000 prize offered by Jonathan Cape here in conjunction with the American firm of Harpers. Six hundred manuscripts were entered in the competition for Britons only and the judges were Hugh Walpole, Frank Swinnerton and Sheila Kaye-Smith.

Miss Harris, who is 50, had been interested in journalism for some time but this was her first attempt at a novel.

"When I was in America, I read an article by Julian Huxley called 'The Sublimation of Rex,' and was much impressed," she said. "On my return to England I based a short story on the article but it was not accepted, and realizing how big the subject was I felt that I might treat it more adequately in the form of a novel."

BLOOMINGDALE JOB BEGUN.

Miller Starts Demolition of Block Buildings for New Structure.

Julius M. Miller, Borough President of Manhattan, officiated yesterday afternoon at ceremonies marking the start of the demolition of the four buildings of the Bloomingdale Brothers department stores at Lexington Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street. An eleven-story department store structure will be erected there.

After prying out the first brick from the building, Mr. Miller congratulated S. J. and H. C. Bloomingdale on their vision and enterprise. He said that this section not only is the centre of the borough, but is destined to be the centre of the entire city. Lexington Avenue, he continued, will be the greatest thoroughfare in New York.

Participating in the ceremonies were County Clerk Thomas M. Farley, Democratic candidate for Sheriff; Ernest Van Vleck, representing the architects, Starrett & Van Vleck, and H. C. Turner of the Turner Construction Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, Oct. 31.—Princess Ileana has had another adventure on the Black Sea. While sailing her yacht, escorted by the gunboat Lieutenant Dimitrescu from Balcic to Constanza, she ran aground on a sandbank. In endeavoring to get the yacht off the gunboat also stuck fast.

After two hours the gunboat freed itself, afterward getting Princess Ileana's yacht off the sandbank, and both vessels proceeded to Constanza despite a heavy fog.

12 PLANES TO START SAFETY COMPETITION

They Are at Mitchel Field or on Way, Forced Down by Weather —Entry Time Ends Tonight.

Special to The New York Times.

MITCHEL FIELD, L. I., Oct. 31.—With twelve planes on which designers and engineers have been working for more than two years either here or on their way here, bogged down by bad weather, the first phase of the Guggenheim Safe Aircraft Competition for $150,000 in prizes is over. Officially the competition will close its hangar doors tonight at midnight. Actually it is likely that planes weatherbound will be admitted if they arrive a day or so late. There was little flying today because of the weather.

Of particular interest to observers today were two new entries being assembled in the Visiting Ships Hangar. Steve Major R. W. Schroeder, manager of the Curtiss Airport at Chicago, directed mechanics putting the finishing touches to the Schroeder-Westworth & Associates plane, a high-wing monoplane with variable camber and many other features. In the same hangar mechanics were installing a new engine in the plane of the Cunningham-Hall Aircraft Corporation of Buffalo. This low-wing monoplane, with a slot device in place of an upper wing, made a forced landing near Utica on Tuesday while it was being flown here, because of a broken propeller shaft. The propeller disappeared entirely, and the pilot brought the plane to a safe landing without damaging it.

7 DOCTORS INDICTED ON DRY LAW CHARGE

LIQUOR SEIZED IN RAID

Check Up on Names of "Patients" Showed Many to Be Fictitious, Ameli Aide Declares.

The United States grand jury in Brooklyn returned yesterday an indictment charging seven physicians and one druggist with conspiracy to violate the prohibition law. The defendants were not arrested but were notified to appear on Nov. 7 for pleading.

Those named in the indictment were Dr. William G. Rommel, 649 Leonard Street; Dr. Guido Boccardi, 3,641 Tenth Street, Long Island City; Dr. William James Haller, 682 Leonard Street; Dr. Harry S. Gross, 660 Lorimer Street; Dr. William M. O'Connell, 141 Milton Street; Dr. Joseph Friedman, 37 Graham Avenue; Dr. Hyman Sporn, 1,048 Newport Street; and Aaron Kozan, a druggist, of 153 Norman Avenue.

Assistant Federal Attorney James E. Wilkinson said the maximum penalties for the indicted men, if convicted, are the loss of their licenses, sentences of two years in prison and fines of $10,000 each.

Kozan was arrested on July 6 on a charge of having liquor illegally in his possession, but the complaint was dismissed on the ground that he had a permit to have liquor in his place. The Prohibition Department, it was said yesterday, retained more than 100 pints of whisky bearing physicians' prescriptions with the names of the persons to whom they purported to have been issued. These names were checked up.

"The check-up disclosed numerous surprises," said Assistant United States Attorney Henry G. Singer, who presented the case to the grand jury. "Some names were those of patients who asserted they never applied for the prescriptions or visited Kozan's drug store.

"Other names were of persons long dead. There were many fictitious names and addresses. Many addresses were those of vacant lots. Same addresses, if the streets were carried out, would be located in the East River and some in cemeteries.

"The dates on the prescription labels were of March, April and May, coinciding with the required departmental returns which the druggist had previously filed in the Prohibition Administrator's office. These returns were testimony that liquor claimed to have been dispensed during those months was still on hand in July, at the time of the raid."

Mr. Wilkinson said that United States Attorney Howard W. Ansel had expressed a determination to speed the trials.

BOY, 12, IS INDICTED FOR MANSLAUGHTER

An indictment charging manslaughter in the first degree was returned by the regular grand jury yesterday against Edward Moran, 12 years old, a schoolboy, of 300 West Seventeenth Street, in the slaying of 76-year-old Clara Hawes, the widow of a magician, in her apartment at the same address eight days before. The boy is accused of having strangled the woman after she had intercepted him in the theft of $3 from a bureau drawer in her home.

The indictment will be handed up to Judge Levine in General Sessions this morning, when the boy will be brought into court from the Children's Society. It was understood that Judge Levine will transfer the case to the Children's Court, where the prisoner will be arraigned as a juvenile delinquent, because, under the law, the only charge under which a person under 16 can be tried in General Sessions is murder in the first degree.

SOVIET FLIERS DELAYED.

Bad Weather Delays Their Hop From Detroit to New York.

The Russian aviators, Simon Shestakof, Philipp Bolotof, Boris Sterligof and Dimitry Fufayef, remained weather bound at the Ford Airport in Detroit yesterday with their all-metal monoplane Land of the Soviets, in which they are flying from Moscow to New York, according to a message received by the Amtorg Trading Company, which is to act as host to them when they arrive.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Oct. 31.—Informed by weather reports that unfavorable conditions existed the entire distance between here and New York, the four Russian fliers of the Land of the Soviets decided today to postpone their flight to New York until Friday. They plan to wait until weather conditions will permit them to leave in the early morning, so they may make the flight in one hop. The Soviet plane arrived here Monday. Its original schedule called for departure for New York Wednesday morning.

Dr. Fred B. Smith, moderator of the National Council of the Congregational Churches in the United States and chairman of the executive committee of the World Alliance for International Friendship, was honored at a testimonial dinner last night at the Hotel Pennsylvania. There were 250 present to celebrate the fortieth anniversary of his service as an evangelist, minister and crusader for world peace.

A letter from President Hoover, sent to Charles Steinle, chairman of the dinner committee, was read at the dinner. The President expressed his regret at being unable to attend and voiced his great admiration for Dr. Smith's character, with an appreciation of his "outstanding service to the religious life of the world."

COLUMBIA BESTOWS 123 DEGREES AT FETE

2,000 IN ACADEMIC MARCH

CEREMONY HELD INDOORS

Rain Prevents Exercises Before 10,000 on Campus but Fails to Mar Colorful Program.

The celebration of the 175th anniversary of the founding of Columbia University was brought to a close yesterday with a university convocation at which 123 honorary degrees and forty-seven university medals were bestowed on distinguished alumni and members of the faculties.

On the long roll of those whom the university honored for achievement in scholarship and service were forty-nine alumni who have gained distinction in many fields since setting forth from Morningside Heights. Among the seventy-four members of the university staff whose years of devotion to Columbia were recognized were many educators whose fame has spread to foreign lands.

The degrees were conferred in the gymnasium by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of the university, after rain had upset the plans to stage the stately ceremonial on the steps of the library, where arrangements had been made for an audience of 10,000. The removal to the gymnasium, while it cut down the attendance, served to concentrate the color and the dignity of the convocation.

Recipients of the degrees and members of the faculties were seated on the main floor of the gymnasium. On the platform were President Butler, trustees of Columbia and honored guests.

2,000 in Procession.

An academic procession, in which more than 2,000 persons participated, preceded the bestowal of the degrees. The procession formed in the library and moved to the strains of the Tannhauser march through the tunnel to the gymnasium. The faculty and student groups from each of the units of the university were in the procession, as were representatives of learned societies, museums and associations, universities and colleges, institutions of specialized learning, and representatives of foreign universities.

The bestowal of the degrees began at 2 P. M. with a prayer by the Rev. Dr. Caleb R. Stetson, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church. After the Seventy-first Regiment band had played an excerpt from Dvorak's New World symphony, announcement of the award of the medals to alumni of foreign birth who have returned to work in their native lands was made by Willard V. King, a trustee.

Condert Hails Recipients.

The alumni candidates for honorary degrees were announced to Dr. Butler by Frederic R. Condert, also a trustee, who served as university orator. The diplomas were presented by Marcellus H. Dodge, clerk of the trustees. Mr. Coudert, in his address, pointed out that titles of nobility were prohibited by the Constitution.

"Like all ancient institutions, however," he said, "orders of nobility arose in response to basic human needs. Mankind has ever felt the necessity for distinguishing some men above their fellows, for marking out individuals because of valued service in war or peace. No community can bring forth its best fruit where distinctive public service receives no compensation save material reward alone.

"The position of our great American universities is peculiarly favorable to the creation of a nobility—a nobility based either on property, heredity nor valued privilege—but a nobility of the mind, an order originating in intelligent selection for creative service to the nation and to humanity."

Degrees Are Presented.

Dr. Butler called the names and as he did so each candidate rose. The university president then recited briefly the careers and the achievements of each candidate and as he named the degree the academic hood was slipped over the candidate's head, and the diploma bestowed.

Mr. Coudert then handed Dr. Butler the list of the faculties' members awaiting the degrees, saying in his address that "the privilege of leadership belongs to few." The procedure of bestowal of the honors was the same as that used for the alumni.

After the ceremony an address on the development and the aims of the university was delivered by General William Barclay Parsons, chairman of the board of trustees.

Twenty-five years ago, he said, the university consisted of eleven faculties, 455 instructors and 4,709 students. Today, he added, there are twelve faculties, five independent colleges, nine associate institutions, nearly 2,800 instructors and 50,000 students.

General Parsons recalled the dim beginnings of Columbia by reading a letter written by Lewis Morris in 1702. Step by step through the years the speaker told of the expansion of the university, coming finally to 1890, when, under the presidency of F. A. P. Barnard, the university began to realize a larger vision.

Dr. Butler Speaks.

Dr. Butler in the concluding address asked his auditors to go with him in imagination to the four "most inspiring spots in the world"—the summit of the Mount of Olives, the Acropolis at Athens, the Capitoline Hill at Rome and to the gently sloping height in Paris which bears the name of Sainte Geneviève. From each of these elevations, he said, one looked upon territory rich in historic memory.

"Then cross the seas to this western world," he said. "Here on age-old rock at the gate of a continent where land and water meet, where rivers flow and where the homes of men stretch out on every hand so far as the eye can reach, is the intellectual and economic capital of a new nation and a new people, new in time, but old, very old, in inheritance.

"This great city has its hill. On Morningside pour down the beams of enlightenment and of inspiration that come across the land and sea from the Mount of Olives, from the Acropolis, from the Capitoline Hill and from Mont Sainte Geneviève. This hill is the inheritor of their legacies, the proud possessor and sharer of their traditions, and it is blest with severe responsibility for their understanding and continuance.

"What we do here, what we say here, is part and parcel of the great tradition which the Mount of Olives, the Acropolis, the Capitol and Mont Sainte Geneviève have made for all mankind. May it not be said, a thousand years from now, when even Macaulay's traveler from New Zealand will be in a distant past, that the human spirit had found a fifth capitol hill, not unworthy of those that had gone before, to be remembered, like them, for what human endeavor and human insight had been able to do here in the spirit, the true spirit, of America?

"Today, under the rich influence of these inspirations and these memories, we turn our faces, lit with hope and confidence, toward new accomplishments in the spirit of those ancient ones that can never grow old. Today, with strengthened confidence and splendid hope, we turn our faces to that everlasting goal which faith fashions and toward which knowledge builds the road. Ave Mater Immortalis."

Mr. Bingham's course in being guided by Mr. Evanson on tariff matters because in his opinion the Senate as well as the House urgently needed the aid of experts in drafting such legislation. Mr. Kirby, who is a Democrat, stated that Herbert Hoover carried Texas in the Presidential campaign on a "religious issue."

J. A. Arnold, Washington manager of the Southern Tariff Association, also testified briefly today, and will resume his testimony at tomorrow's session.

Names Three Organizations.

In his letter on the alleged air lobby, Mr. Hill did not specify the names of those identified with it beyond the statement that a "trust" had been built up and operated through the workings of the National Aeronautic Association, Aircraft Manufacturers' Association and the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce.

"I have submitted to Senator Caraway," he said in explaantion, "the names of persons and organizations identified with the trust, together with the names of 'independents' having knowledge of the facts, but this information will not be given out now, as premature publication might defeat the ends we hope to attain by an investigation."

Mr. Hill submitted to the lobby committee several exhibits, withheld from publication for the present, which are "evidence," he wrote, revealing "the existence of a pernicious and superlobby in Washington, representing the air trust, which has caused the diversion and conversion to the air trust of over $30,000,000 of government planes and equipment, and which has operated to give over $100,000,000 worth of airplane contracts for inferior machines to members of the air trust, to the exclusion of more efficient, safer and cheaper planes made by independent aircraft manufacturers, and has caused the death of scores of pilots, each of whom, with the plane, represented an investment by the government of from $50,000 to $200,000."

Says Government Loss Increases.

The operations of this group, he declared, "became evident in 1920," and have "cost the government millions of dollars, and, if continued, will eventually cost billions of dollars, the loss of countless lives and a weakening of our national defense.

"The manner in which the machinery and the funds of this government have been diverted to personal profits by groups and individuals will, I am sure, come as a revelation that will make the Teapot Dome and other investigations appear insignificant," he asserted, and added:

"With the memories of air service comrades who have given their all to our common country, and with the hope that through this effort I may do my part in cleaning up a situation that is despoiling our air services and impeding aviation, I publicly make these charges.

"In making these charges I have purposely omitted names and dates, but place in your hands and the hands of your committee confidential memoranda which I have marked as Exhibits A, B, C, &c. I also place in your hands the names of individuals who, I have been advised, will appear before your committee if subpoenaed. The testimony of these men will confirm in every instance charges I have made.

Enumerates His Charges.

"I therefore publicly charge that:

1. A gigantic air trust has been built up in America, and that this trust is operated through the workings of the National Aeronautical Association, Aircraft Manufacturers Association and Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce. A powerful lobby has been created of which Senator Bingham of Connecticut, president of the National Aeronautical Association, is the mouthpiece, as per Exhibit A.
2. The air trust and its lobby have worked for the passage of legislation that diverted millions of the government's money to the pockets of the trust despite public protests, as shown by Exhibit B.
3. Inferior aircraft, which has taken the lives of scores of pilots, has been forced on the army and navy air services by the air trust, despite the fact that superior and cheaper airplanes could have been secured from independent aircraft manufacturers. Exhibit C—recent developments absolutely substantiate this assertion.
4. Senator Bingham's position as head of the National Aeronautic Association was manipulated by interests profiting largely from government aircraft contracts. Exhibits D and E.

Charges Faulty Contract Process.

5. A person publicly denounced for the part he played in diverting aircraft contracts in 1917-18 is now securing large contracts from the government and is constantly associated in a social manner with those of the army and navy air services who are in a position to give his company contracts. Exhibit F.
6. Advertising contracts for government airplanes were not advertised as per House bill No. 10827—Public No. 446—Sixty-ninth Congress, and this fact was so reported in the February, 1927, issue of Aero Digest.
7. Advertising contracts with aviation magazines were used by members of the air trust to control the policy of these magazines, and there is public evidence that the refusal of a magazine editor to meet the wishes of one of the group resulted in advertising being withdrawn from the magazine. Exhibit G.
8. As a unit of the air trust the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce did strive to prevent members of the aviation industry from participating in the aircraft show, held in New York City, February, 1929, by the Aviators' Post, American Legion, No. 743. This post is composed of war-time fliers, and their past or present patriotic interests cannot be questioned.

Charges Officials Lend Aid.

9. An investigation of the activities will show that agents of the air trust have been placed in positions of honor and trust in the service of this government, and have used these positions to obtain advantages for the group. This is best exemplified by the giving of contracts to the air trust at higher figures than offered by independents. Exhibit H.
10. Confidential information relative to aircraft inventions and developments for the past years has been taken from government departments by agents of the air trust, and that independent inventors will not send their products to governmental laboratories for testing and are fearful of publicity relative to their work, which they know, from past experience, will be stolen by agents of the organized air group. Exhibit I.
11. Test by the Department of Commerce which would allow independents to manufacture aircraft and aircraft engines has been purposely delayed to allow favored companies to secure licenses on their products and put these products into production and sale. Millions of dollars loss has been caused to small independent manufacturers by this work. Exhibit J.

Alleges Use of Government Fields.

12. The use of government air fields, equipment and soldiers has been used for private purposes, and that paid admissions were charged at these fields in direct opposition to the law.
13. In general, members of this group not only have placed their representatives in positions of honor, trust and profit in the government, but have used the machinery of the government for propaganda purposes that serve to convince the taxpayers that they, the air trust, are giving genuine service to the government.
14. Through nation-wide paid propagandists, they have in many cases duped the press and their paid representatives, through the use of money, liquor and other means, have influenced officers of the Army, Navy, Department of Commerce and representatives of the press.
15. To support my charges I herewith hand you a list of names with the suggestion that these men be subpoenaed immediately to prove the truth or falsity of my statements. Exhibit K.

Kirby Tells of Southern Moves.

Mr. Kirby, the Texan, who told the Senate committee that he had $30,000,000 invested in the lumber business, went into politico-tariff manoeuvres in the Southern States. He appeared at his own request.

Chairman Caraway of Arkansas, whose colleague, Senator Robinson, was the Democratic nominee for Vice President last year, soon turned the examination into a political inquiry, and Mr. Kirby at times became vexed and flared up.

Senator Caraway developed that in addition to their joint association with the tariff association, Mr. Kirby and Mr. Arnold acted as president and "assistant" respectively in the National Council of State Legislatures and that Mr. Arnold is general manager of the American Taxpayers' League, with which Mr. Kirby has no connection, but to which he contributes about $1,000 a year.

Mr. Kirby insisted that the Southern Tariff Association is interested in a "competitive" tariff, and the purport of his testimony was that the connection among the three organizations was based on a sympathy of purpose, "the welfare of the American people."

Tell of Revenue Received.

The tariff association, which has headquarters here, and the Taxpayers' League, were more closely interrelated in their activities, according to the testimony. Mr. Arnold testified that he draw a salary of $1,000 a month, "presumably" from both organizations. The testimony brought out that the tariff association's annual revenues and expenditures are about $50,000 and those of the Taxpayers' League, interested chiefly in protesting against sales taxes, from $150,000 to $250,000 annually. This money is collected "in various ways," Mr. Arnold explained, by solicitations and by organizers, who go into all the States.

Republican Policy in Texas.

Chairman Caraway produced letters showing that Mr. Arnold and R. B. Creagher, Republican National Committeeman from Texas, were interested in preventing the re-election of Representative John N. Garner, the Democratic leader of the House, and that they had attempted to persuade C. C. Belcher, a Democrat, to enter the race.

The committee and audience were greatly amused when Mr. Caraway read a statement from one of Creagher's letters that it was the fixed policy of the Republican organization in Texas to create a division among the Democrats and then join one of the factions.

Mr. Kirby said he had no knowledge of the circumstances touched upon by the Creagher-Arnold correspondence. He was in sympathy with the desire to beat Mr. Garner, he added, for the reason that, in his opinion, Mr. Garner had shown disregard for the Federal Constitution by his failure to protest against usurpation of the rights of the States by Congress on taxation.

Mr. Kirby referred to the Houston platform of the Democratic party as embodying his tariff views. Senator Caraway asked him what Texas had done about supporting the party platform. Texas was one of the Southern States that voted for Mr. Hoover.

"Well," Mr. Kirby responded, "we had a religious issue."

Mr. Kirby testified that the general purpose of the Southern Tariff Association is to urge a tariff on Southern agricultural products, that of the Council of State Legislators to oppose Federal inheritance taxes and that of the American Taxpayers' League to oppose a sales tax. Mr. Arnold testified, however, that representatives of the Taxpayers' League have appeared before Congressional committees on tariff affairs.

Blaine and Witness Clash.

Senator Blaine of Wisconsin asked Mr. Kirby to "unscramble" the three organizations with which he appeared to have relations. When the Senator insisted that the witness was not candid, Mr. Kirby resented "the insinuation." He did not care anything about Kirby's resentment, the Senator retorted; he was after the truth and would insist on having it. Mr. Kirby declared that he was not trying to conceal anything.

Answering Senator Caraway, Mr. Kirby denied that Mr. Arnold was in Washington for the purpose of interviewing members of Congress and "fixing up legislation," but, he said, "some good man" ought to assist members of Congress in this regard.

The activities of C. L. Eyanson, representative of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association, as Senator Bingham's tariff aide, who gained admission to the Senate Finance Committee's sessions during consideration of the bill, were approved by the witness.

"I know nothing about Eyanson personally," said Mr. Kirby, "but I thoroughly approve his work and what Senator Bingham did."

Senator Robinson asked Mr. Kirby whether he thought it right for a man in the employ of an outside organization to accept a position on the government payroll and go into secret meetings of Congressional committees.

"There may be a technical objection ot it," replied Mr. Kirby, "but I approve of men in Congress getting technical information from those who know, although I favor doing it openly."

Uses No Secret Representatives.

The Southern Tariff Association did not employ a secret representative in Washington, Mr. Kirby declared. All its work was "in the open," he added. Replying to Senator Robinson, the witness declared that 95 per cent of the members of the association are Democrats and they reside in every State in the South.

"Does your association stand for a protective tariff?" asked Senator Robinson.

"We call it a competitive tariff," replied Mr. Kirby. "Others might call it a protective tariff. We want to give our American producers a chance to sell in the home market at an advantage. We are not creating this tariff sentiment in the South. We are merely making it vocal. We were successful in getting this principle into the Democratic platform adopted at the national convention in Houston."

Senator Walsh of Montana, commented on the apparent interlocking of the three organizations with which Mr. Kirby and Mr. Arnold are associated. He mentioned the Navy League, the National Defense Society, the Anti-Saloon League and the League of Churches among organizations engaged in fields of public endeavor, but stated that they operated independently, and he could not understand why the association, the council, and the league with which Mr. Kirby and Mr. Arnold are affiliated could not likewise function as individual units.

Says Church League Faces Inquiry.

"You do not mean to assert that the Senate has a right to investigate the League of Churches, do you?" Mr. Kirby asked.

"Don't lecture us on our duties," interrupted Chairman Caraway. "That is what we are fixing to do."

Senator Blaine demanded that Mr. Kirby explain exactly what Mr. Arnold was doing here for the National Council of State Legislators. Arnold had no official connection with that organization, the witness said, but he admitted that he had formulated a letter which was sent out yesterday calling a convention of the council to meet in Washington, on Dec. 2-3.

Senator Blaine produced a copy of the letter. The witness said his signature was stamped on the letter and that he had authorized Mr. Arnold to use it. Traveling expenses of delegates to the convention would be paid, the letter stated, adding that the American Taxpayers' League, with offices in the Munsey Building, would arrange for the preliminary work in connection with the convention.

Senator Caraway referred to Mr. Arnold several times as a "lobbyist."

"I wouldn't call him that," Mr. Kirby said.

"Well, you will find out about that as we proceed," the Senator retorted.

Friends of Representative Garner charge that Mr. Arnold, as the spokesman of the Taxpayers' League, started a political fight on Mr. Garner because of his opposition in the Ways and Means Committee to the Mellon proposal for the repeal of the inheritance tax. This is one of the questions which the committee will take up in its examination of Mr. Arnold tomorrow.

APOLOGY TO SENATE URGED ON BINGHAM

CENSURE THE ALTERNATIVE

Charge Against Lobby Inquiry Must Be Retracted and Hiring of Eyanson Admitted Unwise.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Only an apology on the floor of the Senate, apparently, can now save Senator Hiram Bingham, Republican, of Connecticut, from some sort of censure being voted by the Chamber for the tone of his attack upon the Senatorial inquiry into the lobby and also for his employment of Charles L. Eyanson of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association to give him "expert" advice in tariff making, which the investigation disclosed.

If the Senator will retract his assertion that the investigating committee was "packed" against him and will admit that he made a mistake when he hired Eyanson and had him put on the government payroll, it is probable that no further action will be taken.

Senator Norris's resolution bearing on the matter was ready for presentation to the Senate this morning and advance copies were sent to the press gallery to be released when it was offered. It was then the understanding that it would come up in the course of the day.

Friends of Senator Bingham, however, got busy and asked that action be deferred until tomorrow. Senator Reed, Republican, of Pennsylvania, as their spokesman, is understood to have told Senator Norris that every effort was being made to get the Connecticut Senator to rise on the floor and publicly acknowledge that he did an unwise thing, with regard to Eyanson and at the same time withdraw his charge against the committee, of which Senator Caraway, Democrat, of Arkansas is chairman.

When the Senate adjourned this afternoon, the matter of procedure tomorrow was still in doubt. It was said that up to that time Senator Bingham had not agreed to accept the course urged by his friends. He is expected to make known his decision tomorrow morning.

"I have no statement of any kind to make at this time," was all that Senator Bingham would say.

In the event that Senator Bingham decides to stand his ground and let the resolution go to a vote, there are indications that the resolution may command sufficient votes to pass. Senators, however, are not disclosing how they may or may not vote. They are hopeful that a way will be found to settle the trouble without the necessity of a roll-call.

A suggestion made within the past few days that an amendment might be offered to the Norris resolution expressing it as the sense of the Senate that Senator Bingham should resign from the Finance Committee has not been received with any show of support on either side of the Senate aisle. No matter what happens tomorrow, the impression prevails that such an amendment will not be offered.

COUDERT SEES EFFORT TO RAISE RACE ISSUE

He Blames Justice Crain for Advertisement Appearing in The Day.

Frederic R. Coudert Jr., Republican-fusion nominee for District Attorney, went down to the lower east side last night. He denounced an advertisement in the Jewish newspaper, The Day, for which he held his Tammany opponent, former Supreme Court Justice Thomas C. T. Crain, responsible, and which he declared had been put out solely to create racial prejudice against him.

The advertisement, Mr. Coudert told his audience, contained the pictures of the late Czar, the late President Roosevelt and United States Circuit Judge Julian W. Mack, former president of the Zionist Association of America.

"The substance of the advertisement," Mr. Coudert said, "was an attempt to prejudice you against me. In 1905, more than twenty-four years ago, when I was 7 years of age, the law firm of Coudert Brothers, of which my father is the head, represented the then Russian Government in an attempt to extradite from this country a man named Puren and a man named Roudewitz because of the claim of the then Russian Government that they were guilty of a murder."

Mr. Coudert said his father's firm, of which he now is a member, had represented many foreign governments in the United States. The name of Judge Mack, he said, was coupled with his in the advertisement in an effort to have it appear that the former head of the Zionist Organization opposed him as a candidate for District Attorney. He read a letter from Judge Mack to the editor of the newspaper, resenting the use of his name and what was implied in its publication.

Announcement was made yesterday from Coudert campaign headquarters, at 1,550 Broadway, that Haven Emerson, Professor of Public Health Administration at Columbia University and a member of the nonpartisan committee backing Norman Thomas, the Socialist, for Mayor, was supporting him. Another supporter of Mr. Thomas who came out yesterday for Mr. Coudert was Dr. Bertram Ball, director of the Staywell Foundation of 576 Fifth Avenue.

HYLAN VISITS WALKER FOR A 40-MINUTE CHAT

First Time He Has Been in City Hall Since Leaving Office—Does Not Think He Will Stump.

John F. Hylan, former Mayor walked into the City Hall yesterday morning for the first time since he walked out of it on Jan. 1, 1926, after having greeted his successor, Mayor James J. Walker, who had beaten him in a bitterly contested Democratic primaries fight.

Mr. Hylan said he "just happened to be in the neighborhood" and went into the Mayor's office to pay his respects to Mayor Walker. The former Mayor, who in the present campaign, after having made an attempt to acquire the nomination, retired in favor of the present Mayor, arrived about 11:30. Mayor Walker arrived about twenty minutes later and the two chatted in private until about 12:30, when Mayor Walker excused himself so that he might go upstairs to preside over a regular meeting of the Board of Estimate.

When Mr. Hylan was asked if he intended to speak publicly again for Mayor Walker before the election, he said he did not think so, but that "you never can tell." He added that in Queens, where he now makes his home, things were "looking very rosy" for the entire Democratic ticket. He declared that Edward Cox, Democratic nominee for Queens Borough President, "is making a wonderful run."

BACKS SANITATION BODY.

Merchants Association Head Urges Members to Vote for It.

Willis H. Booth, president of the Merchants' Association, sent letters yesterday to all its members, recommending that they vote in next Tuesday's election for Proposition 1 to create a Department of Sanitation in New York. Mr. Booth wrote:

"The purpose of that law is to centralize under one responsible head all of the functions, powers and duties relating to the treatment and disposal of sewage, to street cleaning, and to the collection and disposal of garbage and waste, which functions are now scattered among various departments and bureaus in the several boroughs of the city with divided responsibility.

"The situation is so serious that immediate relief is necessary. The association believes that the creation of the proposed Department of Sanitation is a logical and sound method for the solution of this vital sanitary problem."

ASSAILS TARIFF BILL FOR JERSEY BOUNTY

"SILK DUTY NASTIEST"

It Now Falls Heavily on Women, He Asserts, but Plan Is to Raise It.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Herbert E. Miles, chairman of the Fair Tariff League, today declared that manufacturers in New Jersey gain from the protection afforded by the present tariff law $713,000,000 annually and that the cost of this tariff bounty paid in retail prices by consumers is $1,426,000,000 annually.

"Not content with this huge sum," said Mr. Miles, "the New Jersey manufacturers have obtained from the Senate Finance Committee, in the Senate bill now pending, an increase of $103,000,000 to $816,000,000 annually, to cost consumers an additional $206,000,000.

"The responsibility of Congress in voting these huge sums is the same whether the grants are added to prices in full or less than full.

"Using precisely the same methods as the Senate Finance Committee does in computing tariff rates, and having the rates figured by one of the most capable men in the government employ, we find, upon free and dutiable New Jersey products combined, the duty averages 20 per cent under existing law. The Senate bill increases this to 22.9 per cent.

Compares Rates and Wages.

"Considering the dutiable New Jersey products only, the present tariff averages 25.6 per cent, which the Senate bill would increase to 29.2 per cent. This protection, falsely so-called, is given, the manufacturers say, to protect their wages, which in fact average only 16.4 per cent of their selling prices. The tariff is 50 per cent more on the average than the total wage.

"The 25.6 per cent mentioned includes in its average boots and shoes, which have a protection of only 1.9 per cent; leather, which has only 0.6 of 1 per cent., and cordage and twine, which have 8.4 per cent.

"Take silk goods, New Jersey's fourth greatest manufactured product, made in 686 establishments in the State. The annual production, according to the census of 1919, the latest available for States, amounted to $215,051,000. The present protection is 55.9 per cent, which the Senate would increase to 62.2 per cent.

Silk Duty Affects Women.

"The present protection gives the manufacturers $77,000,000, costing consumers not less than $184,000,000. The Senate would increase the protection to $88,000,000, costing consumers $172,000,000.

"One-half of the cost of making silk goods is in the raw material which is free the world over. Our duty, 55 per cent on woven silk, should not apply to this raw material. It is, therefore, twice 55 per cent, or 110 per cent on all differentials; that is, 110 per cent on the foreign competitors' total payroll, total factory expense and overhead and profit. All this to protect an American wage that is only 19 per cent of the factory selling price."

SYNAGOGUE TO GET FLAG.

Walker to Speak at Presentation by America's Good-Will Union.

At a special good-will service to be held this evening in Unity Synagogue, 130 West Seventy-ninth Street, America's Good-Will Union through the Rev. Edward L. Hunt, founder and director, will present an American flag donated by John D. Rockefeller Jr. Mayor Walker will deliver the principal address. The Rev. Eugene C. Carder, associate pastor of the Riverside Church, in which Mr. Rockefeller is an officer, will formally present the flag.

There will be greetings by the Rev. Dr. Benjamin F. Farber, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian Church; the Rev. Appraisal Shows Many Art Treasures of Small Value—Debts Placed at $639,558.

INGERSOLL DIED INSOLVENT

Watch Maker's Debts Greater Than Assets—Other Appraisals Made.

Edgar Mills, a retired merchant, who began buying pictures and other works of art late in life, and whose executors contend in court actions that he was deceived as to the value of much of his collection, left an estate appraised yesterday at $1,966,680 gross and $1,130,013 net. The estate was reduced by debts of $639,558 and other deductions, in addition to which Thomas W. Lamont, Tennant Harrington and the Bankers' Trust Company, the executors, are contesting claims of $209,646. These include one by the Maison Cluney for $174,158 and one by George Luks for $15,000 for possession of a portrait.

Mr. Mills, who died June 1, 1928, left the bulk of his estate to relatives in England. His sister, Florence Mills Stantland, got $153,986, while five nephews and nieces received $182,695 each as residuary legatees. He owned real estate worth $30,000 at Setauket, L. I., and had $11,264 in cash. His securities were worth $1,569,911, the most valuable holdings being thirty shares of First National Bank, $131,250; 650 shares of California National Bank of Sacramento, $195,000, and 200 shares of the Bank of California of San Francisco, $68,000. His debts included $335,000 to the Bankers Trust Company, $16,876 to J. P. Morgan & Co., and $208,791 to two California banks.

Mr. Mills's personal effects, including his art objects, were appraised at $172,786. His paintings, pictures, miniatures and similar art works numbering more than 400, were valued at $92,982, while he had $3,624 in fabrics, rugs and tapestries, and $6,203 of furniture. The largest collection of violins and bows ever appraised here, consisting of 418 articles, was worth $24,089. Many marked as made by Stradivarius and Guernarius, were found to be of small value. A painting, "in the manner of Gainsborough," was valued at $1,000, while an unsigned portrait, "Man in a Pink Suit," attributed to Gilbert Stuart, was appraised at $2,000. Among the most valuable were an altar piece, by Master, of the "Legend of St. Lucy," $4,000, and a wing to the same, $3,500.

Robert H. Ingersoll, "dollar watch man," who left his residuary estate, estimated at his death at $500,000 to $1,000,000, to establish a foundation to aid worthy boys in obtaining a college, university or professional education, in memory of himself and his deceased wife, Roberta Ingersoll, died insolvent. The appraisal filed yesterday showed that, while he had assets of $19,354, his debts were $22,799.

Frederick T. Van Beuren, who had devoted himself to the management of the Spingler-Van Beuren estate, and who died March 21, 1926, left an estate appraised yesterday at $1,908,103 gross and $1,804,659 net, of which $1,316,863 was in securities. AUSTRALIA SUSPENDS COMPULSORY TRAINING

Scullin Plans 'More Efficient' Military System—Nation to Be Represented at Sea Parley.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CANBERRA, Australia, Oct. 31.—Compulsory military training in Australia has been suspended, it was announced today by the new Labor Prime Minister, J. H. Scullin, following a Cabinet discussion of defense estimates. The whole matter, Premier Scullin said, would be reviewed with military officials with a view to adopting "a more satisfactory and more efficient system in place of compulsory training."

Compulsory training was introduced by the Labor Cabinet of Andrew Fisher at the time of the Japanese scare in 1911. Originally all Australian youths passed through three stages of training extending over fourteen years from the ages of 12 to 26. In 1922 the operation of the law was restricted to the more populous areas and subsequently great reductions were made in the period of compulsory service.

Military training is now given between the ages of 17 and 21. It consists of a couple of hours of weekly drill with an annual camp of seven days during the later stages of the training.

CANBERRA, Australia, Oct. 31 (AP).—Premier Scullin announced today that Australia would be represented at the naval conference to be held in London in January.

Mayor in Endorsing Move Issues Proclamation and Advises Examinations for Citizens.

In a proclamation issued yesterday from the steps of City Hall Mayor Walker commended the health campaign of the five county medical societies and urged all citizens and public organizations to cooperate in it.

The proclamation was accepted by the Greater New York Committee on Health Examination, composed of Drs. A. J. Rongy, Iago Galdston, Linsly R. Williams, Frederic W. Bancroft, Eugene L. Fisk, S. Dana Hubbard, Alec N. Thomson, Otto H. Leber, Orrin S. Wightman; William J. Lavelle, Louis A. Friedman and A. E. Bernstein, with Dr. A. J. WESTCHESTER DEAL TO BE SIFTED NOV. 11

Washburn Lawyer, in Campaign Talk, Accuses Untermyer of Being Unfair in Hearing Evidence.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins this morning adjourned until Nov. 11 the extraordinary grand jury called by Governor Roosevelt to investigate charges against members of the Westchester County Board of Supervisors growing out of county and municipal real estate transactions.

The adjournment was asked by Henry A. Wise, representing the prosecution. Mr. Wise told the court that most of the time since his appointment has been used in effecting an organization and that the prosecutors would not be ready to present evidence until about the middle of November. Sydney A. Syme, joint prosecutor with Mr. Wise, and their assistants, Radcliffe Swinnerton and Assistant Attorney General Thomas Penny Jr., were in the courtroom.

The evidence to be presented will deal principally with the purchase for $948,000 of "additional courthouse property" in White Plains by the Board of Supervisors in July. The only other case being considered involves Howard R. Washburn, chairman of the board, who is said to have sold to the town of New Castle property in which he had an interest.

The grand jury has broad powers, enabling it to investigate almost any real estate transaction involving the county or a municipality.

Justice Tompkins excused two jurors because of business duties. They were Horace F. Howland of New Rochelle, a vice president of the National City Bank of New York, and Christopher G. Atwater of Greenburg, a salesman.

The Supervisors' Committee on Budget and Appropriations today approved an appropriation of $30,000 to pay the expenses of the grand jury investigation.

The political battle in the town of New Castle over the Washburn case was intensified last night when Lee Parsons Davis, counsel for Mr. Washburn, in an address in Mount Kisco, charged Samuel Untermyer with injustice to his client in taking his testimony.

"It was with an attitude of hostility and attempt to confuse that he took Washburn's testimony," Mr. Davis said. "Innocent or guilty, I would not want myself to be subjected to his inquisitorial powers. He was sitting then as the judge, jury and prosecutor."

He declared the Untermyer investigation was "unauthorized by law."

REV. DR. STRATON'S SON TO KEEP UP BROADCAST

Plans are being considered to improve the broadcasting facilities of Calvary Baptist Church to keep the "fundamentalism" religious doctrines of the church abreast of the modern or so-called liberal views being expounded regularly over large networks, it was learned yesterday from the Rev. Hillyer H. Straton, assistant pastor of the church, and son of the late Rev. John Roach Straton, who broadcast his views over WQAO since the station was first licensed in Jan., 1923.

The Rev. Hillyer H. Straton, for this purpose, has asked the Federal Radio Commission for an increase in the power of WQAO from 250 watts to 500 watts power for night broadcasting, and 1,000 watts for daylight transmission.

If the Radio Commission acts favorably on the petition WQAO equipment is to be fully modernized at the present location of the transmitter, and the new auditorium which will be a part of the structure to be erected on the site of the old church, 123 West Fifty-seventh Street.

BUYERS ARE GUILTY, SHEPPARD DECLARES

Senator Contends That Logic Demands Such an Interpretation of Dry Act.

CO-AUTHOR OF AMENDMENT

Debate Over Prohibition Begun by Radio—Senator Hawes to Reply Next Week.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (AP).—Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, co-author of the Eighteenth Amendment, asserted tonight that "logic and justice" require that the buyer of liquor be made equally punishable with the seller.

In an address over a nation-wide radio hook-up under the auspices of The Washington Evening Star, Senator Sheppard contended that his recent proposal to Congress that the law be amended to make the buyer equally punishable would be valid under the Constitution.

He pointed out that one section of the Volstead act provides that purchase can be made only upon permit. This section, he said, "in effect forbids purchase for beverage purposes because no permit to a buyer for such an objective coud be lawfully obtained."

"If the sale of intoxicating liquor is a crime," he continued, "and it is made so by the Volstead act under the authority of the Eighteenth Amendment, purchase is also a crime because a purchase is a necessary part of a sale.

"Does not the law already punish the man who purchases narcotics except under the conditions prescribed by the statutes?"

He said that since his recent proposal to the Senate, two Federal judges had announced that the buyer may be penalized under the law, one instructing his grand jurors to indict. The Senator gave another decision by a Federal judge to the effect that the purchaser could not be punished under the Volstead act as the immediate cause of his proposal.

Regarding the constitutionality of his amendment, he said: "No doctrine is more firmly established in American jurisprudence than the doctrine that Congress may enact any legislation reasonably necessary to carry out the purpose of the Constitution."

Mr. Sheppard's speech was the presentation of the affirmative side of a radio debate over prohibition with Senator Hawes, Democrat, of Missouri. Senator Hawes will speak next Thursday night.

HAVANA, Oct. 31.—The railroads have allied themselves with air transport in Cuba, according to an announcement today by the "Lineas Aereas de Cuba," the latest of a number of locally organized corporations, which announces as one of its claims to be in a position to render efficient service, an agreement with the Consolidated Railways of Cuba, for coordination of schedules at intersecting points.

The new company is affiliated with the Pan-American Airways through an agreement giving the local company the exclusive right to use the airports, ground equipment and personnel of the international transport line in Cuba.

The directors of the new corporation include Horacio Rubens, president of the Consolidated Railways; Richard F. Hoyt, chairman of the Curtiss-Wright company; Juan T. Trippe of the Pan-American Airways, and a number of prominent business men in Cuba.

LOEW HOLDER SUES IN FOX DEAL PROFIT

Stanton Charges $9,000,000 Was Cleared by Three by "Breach of Trust."

'GATHERED STOCK CONTROL'

Nicholas M. Schenck, David Bernstein and Arthur M. Loew Named as Dividing Big Sum.

A suit was filed here yesterday in the Supreme Court by Edwin W. Stanton, owner of 300 shares of stock in Loew's, Inc., who insists on his own behalf and on behalf of any others among the 6,000 Loew stockholders who may wish to join him that the sale last March of a controlling stock ownership of the Loew enterprises to William Fox, a competitor, was "a breach of trust." The action is directed against Nicholas M. Schenck, president; David Bernstein, treasurer, and Arthur M. Loew, director, and against the Loew corporation, of which they are responsible officers.

Mr. Stanton, as a stockholder, demands a share in a profit of $9,000,000 that these Loew officers are accused of dividing after they gathered and sold to Mr. Fox the stock control which he wanted.

The complaint charges Messrs. Schenck, Bernstein and Loew with seeking "only a large personal profit on a private transaction; although they stood and now stand in a fiduciary relation to Loew's, Inc., being chargeable with the duties and subject to the liabilities of their agency and trust; and they were and are in duty bound to use their offices and the powers conferred upon them directly in the interest of said corporation and of its stockholders generally."

Further, the complaint stated that Loew's, Inc., in 1928 had gross income of about $90,300,000 and a strong assets and credit position so as to have a ready market for its securities if it needed capital to finance its growing business. It was under no necessity of going to Mr. Fox, a competitor, the complaint added.

"In selling such stock interest to the Fox corporations," the complaint continues, "these officers made no effort to sell the unissued common stock of Loew's, Inc., whereby the treasury of the corporation would have been enriched instead of procuring for themselves the aforesaid secret profits resulting from the said transaction."

The suit does not attempt to upset the Fox-Loew affiliation, but only to force the Loew officers who brought the two enterprises together to give up the personal and private profit that is said to have resulted from the sale of their own stock.

An unsuccessful attempt was made on Sept. 5, to bring the Loew officers into court for examination before starting this suit, it was said, "in order to determine what form of action, whether for damages or for an accounting."

SYLVIA LENT GIVES RECITAL.

Violinist Has Fine Technique, but Playing Lacks Depth.

Sylvia Lent, violinist, presented a program last evening at Town Hall which confirmed the impression made here on her previous appearances. A brilliant bow and left-hand technique, sureness of intonation and a pleasing tone on the credit side were balanced by lack of any distinct individuality and emotion, and a noticeable immaturity in phrasing and interpretation.

Miss Lent lacks the musical depth to do justice to Brahms, whose first sonata in G Major she offered as the second part of her program. Her performance impressed the hearer as that of a pupil who has studied faithfully under excellent teachers, but who is not fully cognizant of the spiritual content of the music she is playing. Mozart's fifth concerto in A Major went somewhat better, though this, too, suffered from the violinist's tendency to clip notes at the end of phrases.

The two last sections of the recital contained unusually interesting short salon pieces, which Miss Lent played adequately: Maria Castelnuovo-Tedesco's "Arioso," Rieti's "Variations on a Chinese Theme," Milhaud's "Le Printemps," and Saint-Saëns's "Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso." The last solo was taken at a breathless speed, which exhibited dazzling technical equipment.

GIRL OF 12 TO BE SOLOIST.

Giulia Bustabo, Violinist, at Philharmonic Concert Tomorrow.

Giulia Bustabo, a 12-year-old Chicago girl, will appear as violin soloist with the Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra tomorrow morning in Carnegie Hall, at the first of the children's concerts conducted by Ernest Schelling. This is her first public appearance since she played at ten years with the Chicago Orchestra. She was born in Manitowoc, Wis., of Italian and Bohemian parentage, and from her third year was several times exhibited as a musical prodigy in the West.

Rialto Plans Regular Late Shows.

The Rialto Theatre will show the talking film, "The Trespasser," with Gloria Swanson, at a regular performance every night beginning at 1:30 A. M., starting after the première of the film tonight. On Saturday nights there will be another performance at 3 A. M.

Greenroomers Club Opens Sunday.

The Greenroomers Club, a theatrical organization formed by members of the old Green Room Club, will have its official opening on Sunday night at the clubrooms, 58 West Forty-fifth Street, with a beefsteak dinner. An entertainment, under the direction of Max Figman, will follow.

MUSIC NOTES.

Victor Harris and the St. Cecilia Club's chorus have begun their season's rehearsals in the ballroom of the Hotel McAlpin, to which the club has moved from the former Waldorf-Astoria after twenty-four years.

The William Knabe Company will celebrate "fifty years on Fifth Avenue" during November with a series of musical events in its present home, Aeolian Hall, at Forty-seventh Street.

Willem Durieux and Marion Carley, a Juilliard prize winner, will give next Tuesday's Bechstein recital at Wanamaker's. That on Thursday will be by Louise MacPherson, Claire Ross and Richard Hale.

MUSIC
By OLIN DOWNES.

Toscanini Gives "Harold" Symphony

Mr. Toscanini made a further display, not only of his profound and acute musicianship, but of his extraordinary versatility as an interpreter when he directed the Philharmonic-Symphony concert last night in Carnegie Hall. He played the Berlioz "Harold in Italy" symphony; a set of Variations by Adolf Busch on a theme by Mozart, performed for the first time in America, and the "Sarabande" of Roger-Ducasse, when the vocal parts behind the scenes were sung by members of the chorus of the Schola Cantorum, and Sibelius's "Finlandia." To each of these compositions Mr. Toscanini brought complete and unconditional understanding. This is not unusual with him. Standards of the highest musicianship and interpretive power are customarily his, so that it sometimes seems repetitious to make these or similar remarks. But the accomplishments of last night can only be discussed in superlatives.

The Berlioz "Harold" symphony is inferior to the "Symphonie Fantasique," which far overshadows the later work. But Berlioz wrote as extravagantly of his purposes in the "Harold" Symphony as he did of everything else he composed. When Harold flings his inhibitions out of the window and indulges in fancied orgies with brigands, and when Berlioz heard his own music for this supposititious situation, he cried out to the members of the orchestra, "Sublime! I thank you, gentlemen, and I wonder at you: you are perfect brigands." Unfortunately for Berlioz's posterity, its orchestra brigands of the 40's, who no doubt were desperate fellows in their day and age, are now overshadowed by the superman of "Zarathustra" and the superapes of "Sacre du printemps." And the theme of the lovely and romantic Harold, inspired by Byron's poem, is a melody of drawing-room sentimentality, even though it is a drawing room of the 30's.

On the other hand, the genius for orchestral coloring is always present, and, what is more, a poetic sensibility which was an inherent trait of Berlioz as man and musician, even though this trait was concealed by his braggadoccio and his prevailing belligerency. Mr. Toscanini made all these things clear, and, more than that, communicated the intensity of Berlioz's imagination and feeling. We do not desire to hear this symphony too often, but when we do hear it we want such an interpretation as his, which creates anew the concept of the musician, even though it finds imperfect expression in the score.

Mr. Toscanini's programs this season have been of an unprecedented variety and eclecticism. He chose yesterday to introduce the Busch Variations. These variations are on the whole less pretentious and, therefore, better than the variations by Max Reger, on another Mozart theme, which Adolph Busch, himself a Reger pupil, introduced when he was in New York as conductor of the New York Symphony Orchestra two seasons ago. The Busch Variations are better than the others because they are shorter; there is less of them and there is less posing by the composer. One is spared at least the sensation of the pompous Reger piling up his contrapuntal baggage, asking the listener to observe what his mighty intellect accomplishes when he really sets it to work on Mozart's modest little theme.

The Busch Variations, in short, are more modest, therefore less offensive. But they have no special value. The Mozart theme by itself is worth all of them put together. There are sets of variations, such as those that Brahms wrote on themes by Handel and Paganini, and that Schumann wrote on an original theme (the "Etudes Symphonique"), when the theme undergoes marvelous transformations at the hands of a great genius. But neither Reger nor Busch shows any right to tinker with an idea by Mozart. But it is evident that Mr. Toscanini intends to play new music as well as old, and not merely new music by Italians, and to leave his audiences to decide whether they like it. And of course the new works as well as the old are played by memory, and form new elements of an immense memorized repertory.

Because of the inferiority of the Busch composition, to which was nevertheless accorded a most careful and illuminating exposition, the performance of this work was of less interest than the other three. Otherwise, Mr. Toscanini shone as brightly when he essayed Roger-Ducasse as when he represented the romanticism of Berlioz, and he was no less of a musician and of a transfiguring representative of the composer's thought when he played the blazing and heroic music of Sibelius. The Roger-Ducasse piece is palpably of the period in French music introduced by Faure and completed by Debussy. It has the poetic coloring and the elegiac language pertaining to that epoch. Under sheer beauty of orchestral tone and for harmonic warmth and richness of texture it is an admirable vehicle for an orchestra and shows, even if it is not a score of the utmost originality. Of this vehicle the conductor made the very most, and by sheer opulence of tone and shimmering climax intoxicated the ear.

Notwithstanding this, the playing of a familiar and unassuming piece was anything but an anti-climax. This was not the best performance of "Finlandia" we have heard. It was the only performance in which the composition was played as the composer meant it to be, with the exact observance of the letter of the score and with the prodigious breadth and epic power that make music which easily verges on the banal a thrilling, ennobling experience. This was the tempo taken by Sibelius himself when he conducted the piece, which, last night, once more loomed gigantic. One thought of the country of Sibelius, of its history, of the wilder and more sombre aspects of its nature. The epic power, the desperate heroism which are often found in his pages reverberated again. A sombre nature and a tragic past were expressed, and not by a Nordic but by an Italian whose background is the antithesis of everything represented by this score. But that Italian was Toscanini.

"AIDA" PRESENTED AT METROPOLITAN

With familiar and favorite singers and with Mr. Serafin at the baton, the Metropolitan opera season settled down last evening to a lyric drama which the present generation has welcomed more frequently than any other in that house. Verdi's "Aida" again, after a half-year's absence, had its remembered magic of melody, its splendor of vocal ensembles, in a setting of dramatic and emotional values portrayed by Italy's "old master."

The stage production was that of recent seasons, designed by Angelo Parravicini but painted by various hands in the Egyptian palace and temple scenes and attaining atmospheric beauty in the portrayal by a Milan artist of the third-act nocturne by the banks of the Nile.

Besides a hand of greeting for the conductor and another for the admired Mme. Rethberg, making her re-entrance for the season in a new costume and balloon-like wig of Nubian hue in the early scenes, the audience gave vociferous welcome at the outset to M. Lauri-Volpi in the famous tenor air two minutes after the curtain rose.

The hero, whose Rhadames has been heard of late in Vienna and Berlin, was hampered for but a moment by hoarseness. Singing with care, his tones mounted in brilliant crescendo and the "Celesti Aida" captured its last top note to an answering roar from pit and gallery.

Mme. Rethberg and Mme. Matzenauer, both in good voice, shared with him in ensuing trios of the opera's love triangle. Mr. Pinza, whose promised essay of "Don Giovanni" is a fortnight off, intoned the priest, while Mr. Macpherson and Mr. Basiola were the conquering and captive kings.

As often in the past, Mr. Tedesco was the messenger of war, Miss Ryan the unseen priestess with Mr. Setti's chorus, and Miss Deleporte leader of the temple dancers.

The opera ended just after 11 o'clock, a masterpiece of brevity as well as beauty in its interplay of voices and weaving of human destinies.

A significant tribute from the house marked Verdi's overture. There was utter silence, while the orchestra's first soft proclamation of melodies was heard at a time when the most fashionable parts of the theatre were only beginning to fill. The floor and balconies had been occupied from the start and the standees, if they have sometimes been more numerous, showed restraint and artistic consideration in acclaiming the returning stars.

As the Metropolitan is putting on one and even two added productions every twenty-four hours for the next week, it will be a nine-days' wonder when these opening events alone present nearly half the operas of an entire season.

To the sixteen already announced in a fortnight there is added a Philadelphia "Bohème" on Tuesday, increasing the company's activities to seventeen performances, all of different works, and among them the first of this year's special revivals, "The Girl of the Golden West," due tomorrow.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The opening of "Heads Up!" announced for the Alvin Theatre next Monday night, has been postponed until Monday, Nov. 11.

"War Within," the play by William Jourdan Rapp and Walter Marquiss, which the American Playwrights' Theatre is producing, will open in Hempstead on Nov. 15.

The second night's performance of "Bitter Sweet" at the Ziegfeld Theatre on Wednesday will be a benefit for the Public Education Association.

Anne Nichols's comedy, "She Walked Home," will close on Saturday, Nov. 9 in Baltimore for revision and recasting.

A preview performance of "Broken Dishes" will be given at the Ritz Theatre on Monday night for the Jewish Communal Centre of Flatbush. The play's official opening will be on Tuesday.

"Woof, Woof" will open in Hartford on Nov. 21 and begin a four weeks' Boston engagement the following Monday, Nov. 25. This musical show is expected here during Christmas week.

"The Booster" will be withdrawn from the Playhouse tomorrow night. "Lolly," the initial production of the New York Theatre Assembly at its playhouse, the Assembly Theatre, will close next week.

The production of "Grease Paint," a musical show, in which Cecil Lean and Clo Maufield were announced for the chief roles, has been postponed. Another musical piece, "The Doll Girl," based on Samuel Shipman's "First Is Last," has been abandoned. It had been rehearsing at the Gallo Theatre.

"Street Scene" will give a special matinee at the Playhouse today for the benefit of the Actors' Fund and that organization's recently organized Matinee Club.

Walter Hackett, an American playwright who for the last fifteen years has been living in London, will revisit New York this season, according to word from Edgar Selwyn's office. Mr. Selwyn plans to produce two of Mr. Hackett's plays here, "Other Men's Wives," opening at the Times Square Theatre on Nov. 11, and "Sorry You've Been Troubled," now running in London.

"From Now On," a play by Norman Foster, who is appearing in "June Moon," and by Harry Hamilton, has been bought for production by Harold Bepte. Priestley Morrison is announced to stage it.

Whether such productions as "A Wonderful Night," which crowded the huge Majestic stage last evening, should be enjoyed as music or as drama remains among the major problems of this shrinking universe. As music this one is not without its initial merits or its prestige. For, despite the loose promise of the flamboyant title, it is descended from Johann Strauss's "Die Fledermaus." Being of somewhat undetermined virtue, it was in and out of opera for many years after it was first produced in 1874 at Vienna, and it has masqueraded on the vulgar musical stage as "The Merry Countess" and "Nightbirds." Even in the democratic stylization of "A Wonderful Night" you may enjoy melodies superior—though not overwhelmingly superior—to the scores of the better modern musical plays. Once or twice they are beautifully sung. Mary McCoy as the capricious maid, Gladys Baxter as Madame Grunewald bring good voices and use them with more flexibility than Broadway is accustomed to hearing.

But even to the profane ears of the dramaturgists it is no unalloyed musical delight. There is not a good male singer in this superabundant company. And when they all sing—counts, countesses, princes, dukes, barons, flunkies, jailers and messengers—in the finale to the second act, they "sing loud" in the apologetic phrase of Bobby Clark. Otherwise, you wait for Miss McCoy and Miss Baxter and for the orchestra's overture.

If the purpose of going to the the waltz king of the Strausses is to provide a treat for the musical theatregoer, the adventure is hardly successful. The voices and the singing determine that.

Although the producers have staged the operetta in lavish style, the taste is generally distressing. At best the highly ornate and artificial mise en scene of nineteenth century musical pastiche is a difficult one for plain-eating, water Americans of 1929. The coqueteries of the men and the rogueries of the women need perfection in the acting for real enchantment. When the actors look so unhappy in an unfamiliar setting, and are even a little unsteady on their feet, you are not transported out of this jangled civilization into fairyland.

Last evening, in fact, this huge production was not working at perfection. When the prison warden failed to appear for his cue and then walked in blithely from the wrong side, radiating cheer and good fellowship to the last row of seats, the comedy for once seemed genuine.

They have set their multitudinous scenes on a revolving stage and do you the favor of letting you see the huge wheel go round like a solemn carousel. Watson Barratt has made the scenes opulent and spacious—halls baroque and princely, salons, buffets, conservatories and anterooms for mincing indiscretions. Costumes and sparkling decorations stare envious commoners out of countenance. Through these palatial quarters a company—nay, a crowd—moves and dances in huge mass formation.

Now, the real distinction of space is spaciousness. And the danger of densely populated productions is turning space into constricted confusion. So it is with the major scenes of "A Wonderful Night." When the curtain goes up on the outdoor café on a crowded night, the waltzers are reduced to hopping. When the gypsies appear in Prince Koslofsky's ballroom to dance to the swirling measures of a masterly czardas, they have hardly room enough for a good Margya stamp. Employing so large a company is generosity in the wrong direction, especially when the ensemble singing is so mediocre.

Even the waltz king cannot sustain a sprawling production. If theatrical direction has lost the art of staging these old kingdoms of dainty intrigue, we shall have to rely upon outdoor Summer concerts to preserve the melody.

De Haven to Wed Today.

A CAMPAIGN OF DILEMMAS.

An effort should be made to state the case of independent voters in this city election. No reference is necessary to the men and women who merely look for a party label and then vote the names under it without blinking. They will do after their kind. But there is a growing body of citizens here who are not sworn to obey a party boss, and who wish to do something more than "THAD" STEVENS did when he entered the House of Representatives late in an election contest and asked grimly of his party associates: "Which one is our particular scoundrel?" It must frankly be admitted that in the choice of a Mayor of New York for the next four years voters who think it their duty to discriminate between parties and between candidates, and to search out the highest good of the city as the cause which they earnestly desire to further, are faced by a series of dilemmas which give them pause.

Take the candidacy of Mayor WALKER. They recognize his engaging personal qualities, and perceive, without being able fully to explain, his remarkable popularity during his four years in the City Hall. His genial and blithe spirit is only a part of it. That he has unusual ability cannot be disputed. His ready grasp of complicated affairs, when they come before the Board of Estimate, has often astonished critical observers. When he applies himself, he can do wonders. But the difficulty has been that he has too often seemed only a part-time Mayor. His flashes of activity, followed by long withdrawals of attention, have somehow given the impression of a big plant only 35 per cent efficient. He has promised amendment in this respect, and there is certainly room for it. As the thing stands, there is warrant for what many people—even many Republicans — are saying about Mayor WALKER, to the effect that, anyhow, we now know the worst. Any change, they say, will be for the better. And it has to be added that behind him stands a party which, whatever we may think of it otherwise, represents a degree of continuity and responsibility which cannot be discerned on the other side of the political fence. But just as arguments like these may be beginning to weigh with the independent-minded citizen, he reads of Mayor WALKER going to Tammany formally and officially to make abject submission to its leader. Whether this was demanded of him, under penalty of losing support, or was volunteered by him the resulting impression is deplorable. The idea of making Tammany, with what it has been and is, coterminous with the Democratic party of the Greater City, must repel more citizens free to vote as they think, than it can attract of the other sort.

Yet they cannot turn to the chief opponent of Tammany in this campaign without misgivings. They are not blind to Mr. LA GUARDIA'S fetching qualities. He is a child of the common people; he bids fair to detach a part of the ordinary Tammany following; he is full of energy and hope; he is his own man, and strikes out without trammels or trepidation. Why should he not be regarded as the best club with which to hit Tammany over the head? There are two obstacles in the way. One is Mr. LA GUARDIA'S political record. He has been everything by starts and nothing long. This inevitably creates the fear that in the City Hall he would not be a dependable and stable Mayor. He has, of course, like any other man, the right to change his mind, but if he changes it too often or too suddenly he cannot blame cautious citizens if they fear what he may do next. And so far as he is backed by a political organization, it is by one which neither in public motives nor individual personnel is one whit better than Tammany. Furthermore, in his campaign thus far Mr. LA GUARDIA has had too much the air of reaching out for any stick with which to beat a dog. He has made hundreds of charges, but very few of them has he driven home convincingly. After his nomination he pledged himself before the campaign was over to produce "a bill of particulars." But it has been largely a bill of insinuations, of challenges, of rough defiances, of personal accusations without substantiating proof. These things may, to be sure, find excuse in the pressure upon Mr. LA GUARDIA to attempt to stir up excitement, yet they must have an effect of causing sober New Yorkers to question his judgment and his constructive ability.

Concerning Mr. NORMAN THOMAS, the dilemma troubling many is of a different order. Here it is no question of character or a dubious political alliance. The chief doubt concerns the effect of a vote for him by those who have not the slightest sympathy with the political dogmas of the Socialist party. Many say they will support him as a "protest." This will be on the ground that his intellectual and moral qualities place him head and shoulders above all the other candidates. But in protest against this protest vote, it is urged that it would be a vote "in the air." So it would be in the sense that Mr. THOMAS can have no hope of election. But a vote for him in the air might have the effect of clearing the air of the depressing assumption that anybody is good enough to run for office if only he gets a party nomination.

If anybody asks what the sum is of all this, it can be said only that it is an attempt honestly to set forth the facts from which independent voters must draw their own conclusions. To pretend enthusiasm or depth of conviction in this Mayoralty campaign would deceive no one. About it there has been little to uplift or inspire. The only exhortation which the actual situation seems to warrant, is one to keep the eyes open, to weigh all the evidence, to put first in thought the welfare of the city, and then, after deciding on which side the balance of argument, however slight, appears to lie, to vote as men and women fully persuaded in their own minds.

THE ONTARIO ELECTION.

Premier FERGUSON, the Conservative leader, has not only shown himself an efficient administrator in the last six years, but he is one of the shrewdest of politicians. The present Legislature of Ontario was elected Dec. 1, 1926. Why didn't he wait till the expiration of that four-year period which is in theory the average life of Legislatures, except when a Ministry is beaten or some fundamental policy is submitted to the voters? In 1926 Mr. FERGUSON went to the people after three years on the question of liquor control. This year no problem of policy was to be settled. It was a foregone conclusion that the Conservative Government would be sustained. The conclusion was inevitable that the Premier expected a Federal election next year and wanted to hearten his party by an imposing victory, and also to enable it in Ontario to give its undivided attention to the Federal campaign.

The victory is even larger than he can have hoped. He has increased his majority. The Opposition is a collection of dribbits. It was very hard one time to tell what the campaign was about. Lumber and waterways and road-building, stimulation of agriculture and industry, the municipal income tax, and so on, were talked about. The only tolerably clear issue was that of liquor control; and this was not absolutely limpid. The Progressives were simon-pure Drys. The Liberals were divided. The most that they could agree on was the demand for another plebiscite on rum. No man knoweth whether Mr. SINCLAIR, the Liberal leader, is Wet or Dry. Mr. FERGUSON is an old opponent of plebiscites; and he can take the result of this election as implying that none is needed.

Mr. SINCLAIR attacked Mr. FERGUSON as "the one-man power." In his last words before election he cried that "the revolt against autocracy" has taken definite form in a swing "toward Liberalism." As he looks at the number of seats his party has lost, he will have to admit that he isn't a good judge of the direction of "swings." Still, Ontario democracy is safe. There will be at least one United Farmer in its Legislature, and there seem to be Progressives and Liberals enough to form a football team, if they coalesce. The campaign was languid and the vote was light. The weather was unpleasant, but thousands of Conservatives must have stayed away because they knew their votes weren't needed.

In the matter of revenue and of order and sobriety, the Ontario Liquor Control act has worked well. It satisfies the preponderant public opinion. It isn't perfect, nor will it ever be, but it is an immense improvement on the system that it supplanted. Mr. FERGUSON promises amendments. For one thing, he is going to have the price of beer reduced. That ought to be a notable gain for genuine temperance. Canada generally is taking the practical as against the doctrinaire view of the liquor business. The United States looks on enviously. Sometimes it sees across the border familiar American types. For example, the Ontario clerical Dry who would sooner vote for "a yellow dog" than for the Hon. GEORGE HOWARD FERGUSON.

BANK RATES COME DOWN.

Three incidents in yesterday's financial markets, each in its own way, threw a vivid light on the causes and significance of the Stock Exchange collapse. The reduction of the Bank of England's official discount rate to 6 per cent, as against the abnormally high 6½ per cent rate fixed at the end of September, meant that the break-down of Wall Street speculation, the ending of its insatiable bidding-away of European money-market resources, have relieved financial Europe from its sense of impending trouble. The lowering of the New York Reserve Bank's rediscount rate to 5 per cent, instead of the 6 per cent rate established at the end of August, is recognition by the Reserve Board and the Reserve Bank managements that the peril which had so long overhung our own credit structure and business organism during speculative Wall Street's grasp at every facility of credit is now a matter of the past. The wholly unparalleled reduction of $1,060,000,000 in New York brokers' loans, reported yesterday for the week ending Wednesday, gives some idea of the magnitude to which the recent speculative use of credit had extended, and the thoroughness with which the loans piled up to support the speculative structure have been released by the downfall of the market.

We shall hear no more of 10 and 20 per cent call-money rates on the Stock Exchange, or of 9½ per cent rates for thirty-day collateral loans. There will be no need hereafter to warn the banks against diversion into the speculative market of money needed for the legitimate use of trade. We have already seen the end of the crumbling-away of the Bank of England's gold reserve against its currency and its deposit liabilities to shore up the New York bank position while Wall Street was insisting that there could be no end to its own drafts on the country's credit resources. All of these facts are plainly recognized by yesterday's action of the two great central banks, as is the further fact that a wild and abnormal chapter in financial history has been definitely closed and a new chapter of financial sanity opened.

MR. HOOVER TO THE SENATE.

The President's statement yesterday about the chaotic condition into which the United States Senate has fallen, strongly expressing his conviction that there should be some kind of tariff legislation before the special session ends, may be considered from two different points of view. One is that of the Executive who is also the leader of the Republican party. He cannot give way to the counsels of despair which have come to him from Administration leaders in the Senate. They have told the President that they are reduced to impotence by the combination of the insurgent Republicans with the Democrats, and that it would be just as well to surrender at once and adjourn with nothing done. As against this open admission of failure the President was bound to make one more appeal for action. He declared that he could not believe that "the United States Senate is unable to legislate." He urged further attempts to reach a compromise, so that some kind of tariff bill could pass and be sent to the House for conference. But in the act he virtually asked that the flexible tariff provision, which the Senate has already voted down, should be included in the measure. It is certain, however, that this part of his request will be treated by the coalition Senatori as an appeal, not for a compromise, but for an abandonment of their cause. Already Senator BORAH has shown that he so takes it.

While it thus appears that President HOOVER has done what he conceives to be his duty and has endeavored to clear his own skirts of blame if the tariff bill should entirely fail, doubt remains whether the Senate will be able to pull itself together as he hopes. A close observer of the facts might indeed conclude that the Senate, as at present constituted, is really unable to legislate on any highly controversial question. This is not solely because it is without rules to close debate. Even if General DAWES were still Vice President and had succeeded in getting the Senate to adopt rules which would enable it to do business like other legislative assemblies, he would not be able to get together a party majority. The Republican ranks are sharply divided and no way of making them close up is apparent. The Republican leaders would not be so desperately anxious to quit unless they perceived the hopelessness of the struggle. As a result of the demand by the President the agony will doubtless be prolonged, but the end cannot be far off. Should some sort of patched-up compromise bill yet be passed, it would be miles away from what the President desired, or what the Republican party can accept without hanging its head. Thus the special session of Congress is almost certain to be written down in our political history, so far as concerns the tariff, as wasteful and futile.

BRITAIN IN INDIA.

Nationalist sentiment in India has been singularly credulous and badly informed if it believed that the MacDONALD Government was on the eve of bestowing dominion status on the people of Hindustan. Rumors to that effect have been so persistent that a formal denial by the Viceroy on his return from England seems to have become imperative. That Mr. MACDONALD would venture on such a step without consulting Parliament is in itself inconceivable. Whatever may have been the "mandates" behind the Laborite plurality in the general election, it is certain that India was not among them. This is aside from the fact that for nearly two years the Simon commission has been studying the very problem of constitutional change in India, and that Mr. MACDONALD, at the time of its appointment, was a hearty supporter of its aims and the methods it embodied. All three Parliamentary parties are represented on the commission.

If the original design, now reaffirmed, is carried out, procedure with regard to India will be simple. The Simon commission will present its report early next year. Upon that basis the British Government will invite to conference representatives of India and, as it now appears, of the Native Indian States. When the conference has arrived at "the greatest possible measure of agreement," a joint Parliamentary committee will be named for the purpose of drafting an appropriate bill. The Simon commission has been going about its work apparently undeterred by the hostile reception it met from the Nationalists on its visit to India, and in disregard of the anticipatory veto on its recommendations pronounced by the extremists. Part of the hostility it encountered was presumably due to recognition of the fact that the Simon commission will not recommend the full measure of independence demanded by the ultra-Nationalists. But a great deal of resentment was aroused by the omission of Nationalist spokesmen from the commission.

On the second point conciliation should not be difficult. When the Simon commission was set up, Mr. MACDONALD hastened to point out to the resentful Nationalists that the omission of an Indian representative was far from being a slur upon native aspirations. On the contrary, for the British Government to make its own inquiries and then to confer with representatives of India was to concede the latter almost the standing of an independent power. A minority of Hindus on a British commission could, under certain circumstances, be described as having been outmaneuvred or outvoted by their British colleagues. That objection would not hold against a solid Indian delegation meeting with a British delegation on an equal footing. This argument, restated with all of Mr. MACDONALD'S warm persuasiveness, may yet serve to appease India's wounded pride.

WEST POINT-ANNAPOLIS.

With the best of intentions to restore the annual football game between West Point and Annapolis, General SMITH and Admiral ROBISON met at Washington only to part without reaching a compromise. Secretary GOOD and Secretary ADAMS issued statements which did not end the deadlock. The situation calls for an arbitrator who should have no relation with either the Military or the Naval Academy. At the meeting in Washington General SMITH offered no proposal looking to a compromise, and Admiral ROBISON proposed nothing that satisfied General SMITH. Annapolis did not change its position at all, striving to convert West Point to the rule that only three years of football, inclusive of playing at colleges, should be allowed, while West Point stood out for the principle that there should be no eligibility rule for the cadets.

If one places these government service schools on the same plane with the colleges, the three-year rule seems to be sound. But General SMITH insists that they cannot be placed on the same plane, for West Point and Annapolis are engaged in training young men to become officers of the army and the navy. He goes on to argue that playing football is a part of their training, developing manhood and qualities of leadership and bringing out strategical and tactical skill; therefore that each institution should put the pick of its players on the field without regard to the three-year eligibility rule. It was devised by the colleges for their amateur interests after flagrant cases of "professionalism" had worked injury to the game.

There is no doubt that Annapolis took up the three-year eligibility rule in good faith and in the true amateur spirit. If West Point refused to follow suit, there was bound to be a controversy, in a statement given out for General SMITH occurs this declaration: "I "then pointed out to him, [Admiral "ROBISON] that what he was asking for was not eligibility, but "parity; which charge he admitted." It would be regrettable if parity were dragged in. West Point with 1,200 cadets and Annapolis with 2,000 midshipmen, and the average age slightly higher at West Point. One institution has won about as many football games as the other. They both want to play football with each other. A way should be found to settle the controversy. But coercion by Congress would only spoil sport.

HOMAGE TO MME. CURIE.

Last night's tribute by the country's leading scientists to Mme. CURIE, following upon the ceremony in Washington at which the President presented her with $50,000 to buy radium, derives particular interest from the character of the recipient. Of her work the world has long heard praises. Scientists have frequently borne testimony to the immense value of radium and have pointed out that its uses are as yet but inadequately developed. To her patience and skill, to her courageous, whole-hearted devotion to the work of her laboratory was due this gift to the world.

Yet, when the world asks for the privilege of compensating her, she shrinks away and insists that she is of no importance in the picture. It is told of her that when, eight years ago, President HARDING presented her with the gram of radium subscribed by the women of America, she was given also a deed conveying this gift to her in person. She protested that this could not be, and accordingly had a paper drawn assigning her rights in the gift to the Institut du Radium in Paris, to be used in the work of her laboratories in the event that she died. Otherwise, she explained, it might become a part of her estate and so be divided among her heirs and be lost to science.

President HOOVER, in presenting the money to Mme. CURIE, dwelt upon the fundamental importance of scientific research and lauded Mme. CURIE'S devotion to the search for truth. This doubtless pleased her most of all the compliments paid to her, for Mr. HOOVER recognized the outstanding characteristic which has made her work of such transcendent value. The old saying that those who would find themselves must lose themselves is exemplified in scientists who, like Mme. CURIE, forget their own individuality and think only of their search.

Mme. CURIE'S selflessness long prevented her from capitalizing her success, even for the benefit of science. As it was impossible to overcome her scruples, it was necessary to circumvent them. This was done by the committee of women of America, headed by Mrs. WILLIAM BROWN MELONEY, which in 1921 and again this year raised the money with which to present radium to the institutions in which Mme. CURIE was interested. In the present instance the radium is to go to the Curie cancer hospital and laboratory in Warsaw in her native land.

Delicate health — unfortunately further impaired by a heavy cold caught on the steamer coming to America—has prevented Mme. CURIE from doing many things she had hoped to do on her brief visit. This is a loss to her admirers who had hoped to see her. But her well-being is of prime importance, so that her friends are the first to urge her to place herself under no additional strain before her return home.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

No "Unwritten Law" for Italy.

Some of the recent reforms wrought by the Fascist Government arouse the suspicion that they are intended quite as much to give pain to the neighbor on the other side of the Maritime Alps as they are to elevate the morale of Italy. Possibly it is going too far to say, as one exiled Italian professor remarked, that if the French had not made the guillotine ridiculous the Italians would not have restored capital punishment, but it is nevertheless perfectly true that Italy has chosen several of her subjects for reform among the most cherished traditions of French life.

Now another Franco-Italian institution has been smashed in Italy by the rebuke administered to an Assize jury which had merely followed Latin precedent in freeing the perpetrator of a crime passionel. Signor Rocco, Minister of Justice, will have no "unwritten law" in Italy. In denouncing the conduct of judge and jury in this particular case in a note addressed to all the Presidents and Procurators General of the Italian Assize and Appeal Courts, he speaks of "the persistence of this residue of barbarism," and declares that the "law must prevail" and that those jurists and jurors who permit "a deplorable and morbid sexual mentalism" to make a mock[illegible] of the law will be severely dealt with in the future.

The particular case which led to these instructions is one in which a Fascist engineer put his domestic servant to spy on his wife and, accepting the maid's report without giving his wife a chance to speak, shot her dead as she clasped his knees trying to explain her innocence. The Assize jury declared the husband to have been "temporarily insane" and sent him from the court a free man. Thereupon the Fascist Minister of Justice denounced the verdict as "scandalous" and called both bench and bar to a greater sense of their responsibilities.

Noise by the Truck-Load.

The latest step in the anti-noise campaign in this city will probably bring both comfort and dismay to sufferers from the local din. Cheer lies in the news that an official commission is to tour the city for the next three months, collecting "samples" of noise as a preliminary to soft-pedaling the hullabaloo. Qualms arise at the thought that the investigators require a truck for their collecting, so heavy and so numerous are the noises that they expect to encounter.

The truck will be equipped with sensitive machinery for detecting and measuring the intensity of sound. It will pass through the city highways and byways, collecting its noxious load, which, when complete, will be dumped on a laboratory table and studied by expert investigators, to be known as the Noise Abatement Commission. Minor committees will study various off notes in the grand cacophony: effect of noise on human beings, noise survey, building code and construction, practical application of remedies.

In an attempt to discover the chief sources of noise and the time of day at which it is most objectionable, a questionnaire will be circulated. It is to be hoped that the most miserable victims of the city's pandemonium will be able to find a quiet spot in which to retire for a tranquil hour or two to list their grievances.

Setting Them Right.

As vigilant in behalf of his constituents as he was of his team-mates when he was a Harvard football captain, Representative HAMILTON FISH Jr. has addressed a letter of great erudition to the editor of The Middletown Times-Herald. This editor, turning some days ago from the stock market to the subject of who was our tallest President, fixed on GEORGE WASHINGTON. "He was six feet three inches * * * taller than LINCOLN * * * the tallest of them all."

This was an opportunity to see that the people of Middletown did not dwell under such a misstatement of fact, and Mr. FISH was quick to avail himself of it. He cited several imposing references to prove that WASHINGTON was six feet two inches in his stockings and LINCOLN six feet four. But with the interest of his constituency at heart, Mr. FISH did not content himself with a mere refutation of the original error. He passed on to other physical statistics of the Presidents.

Thus we learn that MADISON was the shortest, five feet four; POLK the leanest, CLEVELAND the stoutest, VAN BUREN "tidiest" and TAYLOR "the most careless in dress." The people of Putnam and surrounding counties are to be congratulated on their Congressman. He watches the errors fall.

A Modest University.

In an age of large schools, large funds and whirlwind campaigns it is refreshing to read of the modest and leisurely aspirations of Alfred University, a small college in Western New York. Its centennial comes in 1936; it has $300,000 already raised for a new dormitory, and it hopes to obtain another $700,000 by the time Alfred is 100 years old. This is at the rate of $100,000 a year. Citizens who generally read of "drives" and note speeches by inspirational orators saying "We must have another million by sundown" will be favorably impressed.

It is a night's ride by a fast train from the State's metropolis to its western boundary, and so Alfred University is not particularly well known in New York City. Nor has it the advantage, which St. Lawrence University has, of chancing to have enrolled some years ago a student by the name of OWEN D. YOUNG. Yet had he been born in Western instead of Northern New York, that good fortune might have come to this other small college.

One name in the list of speakers at Alfred's dinner, however, ranks high among American educators. It is that of EDWIN HERBERT LEWIS, dean of the faculty of Lewis Institute in Chicago and a widely respected among professors of English and connoisseurs of American poetry written in the classical mood. The author of "Physics and Poetry" may not have the ability to raise money, but in many circles the fact that he is an Alfred alumnus will arouse interest in that institution.

Relief for the Ticker.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Stock tickers have come in for a large share of the blame in the recent financial hurricane. It is said that new designs are being prepared that may speed things up. Why may they not do better than that?

Is it not possible to have a double installation—two sets of tickers, and have one set handle a given set of quotations and the other the balance? They could be divided in halves alphabetically or stocks on one ticker and bonds on the other or some way that would cover the situation. Cost would be negligible to unnecessary losses saved.

As it is now, a buyer is called on to diagnose and prescribe after his purchase is dead. Double and after a while triple service would be bedside work. GEORGE N. COLE.

New York, Oct. 30, 1929.

Y. W. C. A. NEEDS $242,000.

Sum Must Be Raised by Nov. 16 to Balance the 1930 Budget.

The Young Women's Christian Association of the City of New York will begin a campaign on Nov. 6 to raise $242,000, the amount needed to balance the budget for 1930. It is necessary to appeal to the public for this sum, because of the non-income-bearing activities and services offered to women and girls in the city.

Such services include the girl-reserve program, with its many activities for girls between the ages of 10 and 17 years; the club work and general social activities of the older members, the program for industrial girls, the service rendered by the room registries to girls who are seeking rooms, the religious work program, advice on personal problems, vocational advice and the maintaining of information desks for the convenience of the public as well as for women and girls.

New York expects the Y. W. C. A. to give high-grade service in housing, education, recreation, employment and other services to girls and women in the city. The branches and centres in New York, however, are both assets and liabilities to the Y. W. C. A. With sixteen separate buildings, four Summer camps and two week-end houses to maintain, the sum expended for heat, light, power and general upkeep alone is very large, and when the expense of other overhead items and of administration is added, the total is high. This cost is offset in measure by the income resources of the association—tuition fees paid for classes in the educational and physical educational departments, membership fees, income from the various housing centres, cafeterias, from employment fees, the interest on endowment, cash discounts and other funds.

During the past year 42,540 self-supporting business women were housed in Y. W. C. A. residences, hotels and apartments, while more than 8,240 were turned away for lack of space; 10,287 women applied to the rooms registry for carefully investigated and reasonably priced rented rooms; 1,412,032 meals were served in cafeterias and dining rooms; 9,552 young women were placed in positions; gymnasia had an attendance of 163,834, swimming pools 79,342, educational classes 151,437, business and industrial girls' clubs 30,296, and young girls' clubs 46,694.

If these vital channels of service are to be kept open during 1930 in buildings that are well maintained and properly manned, the Y. W. C. A. must raise $242,000 before Nov. 16. A contribution to the Y. W. C. A. is an investment in higher standards for New York girls, and a curtailment of its work would be felt throughout the city.

Readers who are interested in maintaining this work for women and girls can help by sending checks payable to the Y. W. C. A. of the City of New York, 129 East Fifty-second Street.

GOVERNORS ISLAND PIERS.

More Pretentious Plan Is Recalled and Advocated.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The plan of William T. Donnelly, described in THE TIMES to place piers for 1,000-foot ocean liners on Governors Island, recalls the more pretentious one of a leading engineer early this year to extend Manhattan Island six miles down the bay. Extreme as the latter proposal may seem, it carries a suggestion that, in part, might answer to solve three of the city's present urgent problems.

One would be enough long docks for the mammoth ocean liners. Another is refuse disposal, sanitary, relatively odorless and perhaps income-producing by modern incinerators. Not least in importance are enough septic tanks to care for the city's sewage, now a serious menace to health.

Furthermore, the advantages of this addition to the city area, to a non-professional citizen, would seem to be so many sided as to fully warrant the cost—or, at least, a thoroughgoing study of the same.

PROGRESS.

A Connecting Bulkhead.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The proposal of William T. Donnelly to locate piers for 1,000-foot vessels on Governors Island is only partly right.

There is but one logical location for such piers, and that is along a bulkhead to be built connecting Governors Island with lower Manhattan. This provides ample space for a large number of piers to be built as the necessity for them arises. Furthermore, the requirements of the near future are likely to be not only for 1,000-foot vessels, but for 1,200-foot vessels. There is liberal space for the vessels to manoeuvre, and for docks, waiting rooms, examining rooms, vehicles and a marginal railway.

It is advisable to provide not only for immediate needs, but also for the requirements of a not-distant future. There is no other suitable location combining all the requirements.

OLD CARS.

Like toppled broken bestles
We leave them by the road,
In lots beside old houses,
In a gulch or wood.

The seasons leave them changeless;
Years seek more brittle bone,
The difference is a morning
Finds two instead of one.

Humped and toothless widows
In their fusty black,
They find the earth's doors bolted
Against their going back.

Happier ships by far
That sink and win to glory
Than cars secure on land
Denied both death and story.

A prize of $500 for sculpture given by William O. Goodman of Chicago was awarded to Mario Korbel for his work called "Sonata." Howard Heinz of Pittsburgh contributed a $500 prize for landscape, still life, or marine, which was awarded to Hovsep Pushman for his canvas "When Evening Comes." A prize of $500 contributed by an anonymous donor from California and known as the "Golden State Prize" was won by Carl Wuermer for his work "Summer Landscape."

DEPLORES HIGH CABLE COST

Australian Journalist Sees Dominion Handicapped in Respect to Us.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—America has the advantage over Australia in the transmission cost of cable messages, Guy Innes of the Australian newspapers' cable service, declared today in addressing the Institute of Journalists on cabling news.

"Anglo-American cable tolls being cheaper, longer and perhaps more graphic stories may be sent for the same money and the need of condensation is not so great," he said.

Mr. Innes emphasized how completely the world's news is covered in the dominions, adding: "It is no exaggeration to say that a better summary of it may be obtained in Sydney or Melbourne than in London."

Australians, like Americans, are greatly interested in the doings of the Prince of Wales, Mr. Innes said, and the greatest cable story since the war was the King's illness.

"Every Australian read with anxiety ending in heartfelt thankfulness every word of the columns of cables dispatched to the Commonwealth in that trying period," he asserted.

HEADS WOMEN'S COLLEGE.

Miss Constance Warren Elected President of Sarah Lawrence.

The trustees of Sarah Lawrence College at Bronxville, N. Y., have elected Miss Constance Warren, principal of Pine Manor, Wellesley, Mass., as president, to succeed Mrs. Marion Coats Graves, who resigned last July. It was announced yesterday. Sarah Lawrence College, now in its second year, is the first chartered junior college in New York State. Its students are girls.

Miss Warren graduated from Wellesley College in 1904, took her master's degree in history at Columbia University the following year. She taught history in the New Haven (Conn.) High School, then at St. Timothy's in Maryland and later for six years at Brearly School, New York. After two years as head of the Louisville Collegiate School, she was appointed to a similar position at Dana Hall, Wellesley, in the newly organized Pine Manor, remaining there for eleven years and becoming principal last year.

She will assume her duties as president after Thanksgiving Day.

MAYFLOWER BID REJECTED.

Only One Offer, $15,786, Was Made for Former Presidential Yacht.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Only one bid was received for the former Presidential yacht Mayflower today when the time limit for offers expired, and that was for $15,786 from the Boston Iron and Metal Company of Baltimore, which planned to scrap the vessel. The bid was rejected as inadequate, and new offers were called for, returnable March 31, 1930.

The Mayflower was bought by the navy in 1896 for $430,000 and was reconditioned a few years ago at a cost of $180,000. It was condemned as unsuited for naval operations last Spring after President Hoover in the interest of economy had discarded it as a yacht for his special use. It is now tied up at Philadelphia.

EDUCATORS HONOR STERN AT FUNERAL

School and City Officials and Jurists Pay Tribute to Board of Education Officer.

LAUDED BY DR. G. SCHULMAN

M. B. Blumenthal Delivers Eulogy for Fraternal Order—Service Conducted by Masons.

Members of the Board of Education attended the funeral of M. Samuel Stern, vice president, yesterday morning at the Park Avenue Synagogue, 50 East Eighty-seventh Street. The Board of Superintendents, virtually all of the District Superintendents of Schools, other educators, jurists and public officials were also present.

"We may sum up the career of M. Samuel Stern as having contained three principles mightier than death—Justice, Honor and Love," the Rev. Dr. Gabriel Schulman said in a sermon eulogizing the educator.

"He made his way in life by assiduity, application, sincerity and self-sacrifice," the speaker continued. "If is known that he preferred to go through life alone, without the blessedness and strength of the married state, in order to help his sisters, to live, with them, to strengthen and to support them, not only by his means but by his presence."

Dr. Schulman summed up Mr. Stern's career in business and the field of education and told of his philanthropic and fraternal activities. Cantor Sukoenig assisted at the services.

Friend Delivers Eulogy.

A eulogy was delivered by Maurice B. Blumenthal, a blind representative of the Independent Order, Free Sons of Israel, and a friend of Mr. Stern for many years.

"I think," he said, "that the outstanding trait of this man was the sincerity and intenseness with which he applied himself to the rendition of service, whether the service was that of a son, brother, employer, public official, citizen or friend."

Twenty members of National Lodge F. and A. M. conducted a Masonic funeral service in which they were led by Jacob J. Biksles, master of the lodge; Samuel W. Ottinger, secretary, and Maximilian Zipkes, chaplain. Burial was in Mount Hope Cemetery.

Memorial services for Mr. Stern were held in all of the city's schools, and in the afternoon the Board of Education met to pass resolutions recognizing his many years of service.

Teachers' Groups Represented.

Most of the employes of the Board of Education attended the funeral. The administrative buildings in New York and Brooklyn were closed. Delegations from all the teachers' associations were also present, as well as a group representing the Independent Order, Free Sons of Israel.

Among those present were President George J. Ryan, Mrs. Robert McAleenan, Ralph R. McKee, C. C. Mollenhauer, William J. Weber and Joseph Miller Jr., secretary of the Board of Education; Dr. William J. O'Shea, City Superintendent of Schools; William A. Boylan, Harold G. Campbell, Dr. Charles Lyon, Edward Mandel, Dr. M. M. Sheehan, Dr. Gustav Straubenmuller, John E. Wade and Miss Margaret J. McCooey, associate superintendents.

Also Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen, Supreme Court Justices Mitchell May and Thomas W. Churchill, former Supreme Court Justices Jeremiah T. Mahoney, Mitchell L. Erlanger and William N. Cohen; Municipal Court Justice Leopold Prince; County Judge Algeron T. Nova of Brooklyn; John Dietz, Commissioner of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity; Carl Seeman, James J. Hines, Maurice Bloch, minority leader of the Assembly; Samuel Sturtz, Henry J. Hyman, State Senator Bernard Downing, Deputy Police Commissioner Nelson Rutteberg, Chief Inspector John J. O'Brien, Frank Briarly, Democratic leader of the Fifteenth Assembly District, and Mrs. John F. Curry, wife of the leader of Tammany Hall.

Another of Mr. Shea's early activities will be the production, in association with Charles Knox Robinson, of "The Patriarch," a play by Boyd Smith, which was tried out last Spring in Providence and Provincetown. After it has been presented at the Mount Vernon theatre Mr. Shea expects to bring the play to New York on Nov. 25 with a cast including Philip Wood, Marian Grant and Howard Phillips.

Brazilian Ex-President Returns.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SAO PAULO, Oct. 31.—Epitacio Pessoa, former Brazilian President and now a judge of the Permanent Court at The Hague, will arrive in Rio de Janeiro tomorrow and it is rumored that there is a possibility that he will be a factor in the coming Presidential elections, possibly running for office again.

Einstein Builds Refrigerator In Miniature for Households

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—Professor Albert Einstein's penchant for toying with problems of everyday technique which suggest less profundity than his theory of relativity has enabled him to construct a miniature refrigerator capable of producing artificial ice or cold air for domestic use.

It involves the application of a current of light and while the device has not yet been perfected it is now being subjected to practical tests in the laboratories of the Allgemeine Electrizitaets Gesellschaft, which intends to exploit Dr. Einstein's discovery. If successful, it will make possible the production of cheap household refrigerators.

THOUSANDS MOURN AT BURTON'S BIER

Ohio Senator's Body Is Buried Near That of Myron Herrick in Cleveland Cemetery.

BISHOP McDOWELL SPEAKS

Pays Tribute at Last Rites Saying Statesman Will Walk With Worthiest Public Servants.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 31.—Cleveland and the United States paid final respects to Senator Theodore E. Burton today as his body was laid to rest near the grave of Myron T. Herrick, dean of American diplomats, in Lake View Cemetery.

The body of the Senator arrived at the Union Station here shortly before 9 o'clock, accompanied by relatives, friends and a group of Senators and Representatives designated by their respective houses to represent them at the funeral.

Federal officials and influential Republican leaders who had fought the Burton fights met the body at the station and it was brought to Public Music Hall under military escort, where it lay in state until afternoon.

It was estimated that more than 10,000 persons passed by the bier. Hundreds waited their turn outside the hall beneath overcast skies with an intermittent rain falling.

Miss Grace Burton, niece of the Senator, was deeply affected by the evidences of the city's last farewell. She waited for a time beside the casket while thousands passed by in tribute.

Only official representatives, relatives and close friends were able to crowd into Euclid Avenue Congregational Church where the funeral services were conducted. Thousands waited outside in the rain. The services were conducted by the Rev. Ferdinand Q. Blanchard, the pastor, from an altar banked high with flowers. The highest praise was given the dead Senator in the funeral oration of Bishop William T. McDowell of the Washington Area of the Methodist Episcopal Church, who was at the Senator's bedside in Washington when he died Monday night.

"Tried by all the severest tests of statesmanship, this man may walk with the worthiest public servants of any State or country," said Bishop McDowell.

CONTRACTOR INDICTED IN BRONX FIRE INQUIRY

Second Man Faces Trial for Perjury in the Building Racketeering Case.

A Bronx grand jury, which is investigating racketeering in the building industry of that borough, yesterday returned an indictment for perjury against Giuseppe Sindona, 45 years old, a lathing contractor, of 3,054 La Salle Avenue. Seven other witnesses were summoned to tell what they knew of malpractices to which have been attributed over $3,000,000 damage in a dozen fires in unfinished buildings.

It was reported the indictment was for testimony given by Sindona, which was later contradicted by the records of the United Lathing Company of which he was one of the sixteen members. Following the presentation of a true bill, Justice Louis A. Valente of the Supreme Court, issued a bench warrant and Sindona was arrested. He will be arraigned today in the Bronx County Court.

A similar indictment was returned two weeks ago against Frank F. Scelzi, 28, of 754 Pelham Parkway South, a director of the Williamsbridge Investment Company, which shares joint offices with the United Lathing Company and the Plasterers' Information Bureau at 3,550 White Plains Avenue. The books of all three organizations were seized by District Attorney McGeehan several months ago and it is believed Assistant District Attorney Sam Foley used some of the records to refute Sindona's testimony.

The last fire suspected of having been set by racketeers occurred Monday in an unfinished six-story building at 183d Street and Amsterdam Avenue. The blaze did $250,000 damage and caused the death of a plasterer who was trapped on the top floor. Fire Marshal Brophy, who investigated, learned that Henry O. Heuer, secretary of the firm erecting the building, is a member of the grand jury which is conducting the inquiry in the Bronx.

GERMANS MOURN PARKER.

Praise Mixed Claims Umpire and Send Sympathy Message to Widow.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—News of the death in Washington of Judge Edwin B. Parker provoked expressions of genuine regret today at the German Foreign Office, where the dead jurist's achievements in the sphere of international arbitration had earned for him considerable esteem.

It was in his capacity as arbitrator on the Mixed Claims Commission, however, that Judge Parker's services were most highly rated here and it was freely conceded that his impartiality and appreciation of numerous inherent difficulties confronting the commission largely made it possible to liquidate the maze of American-German claims in a spirit of friendly understanding.

NORMAN TREVOR, NOTED ACTOR, DIES

Star of Stage and Screen for Many Years Succumbs to Brain Malady in California.

HE WAS BORN IN INDIA

Once a Champion Athlete and Olympic Competitor—Began London Stage Career in 1897.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 31 (AP).—Norman Trevor, a veteran of the stage and later a figure in motion pictures, died late last night in a hospital at Norwalk, Cal., it was learned today. He was 52 years old and death was caused by a brain malady, hospital attaches said.

Norman Trevor, who is dead in California, had been ill for several months, his daughter, Doris Trevor, 1,014 Lexington Avenue, said yesterday.

Mr. Trevor, after a long stage career in London and New York, was last seen here in "The Captive," in which he supported Helen Menken at the Empire Theatre in September, 1926. In recent years, however, he had devoted himself to the screen rather than to the legitimate stage.

Once a Jute Merchant.

Born in Calcutta on June 23, 1877, Mr. Trevor was educated at St. Xavier's College in that city and, before entering the theatre, was engaged in the jute trade in India. As the all-round champion athlete of India from 1893 to 1900, he was a member of the British Olympic team in Paris in 1900 and, during his athletic career, won more than 120 prizes.

In 1905 Mr. Trevor went to England and was first seen on the stage of the Apollo Theatre in London in 1907. His career as a leading man in the British theatre was distinguished. He first attracted attention by his performances with the Play Actors with whom he appeared in 1908 and 1909. Beginning in April, 1909, he toured England with his own company in modern and Shakespearean plays, his London success culminating in the management of the Savoy Theatre, where he produced "A Cardinal's Romance" and "Seven Sisters." In 1913 at the Ambassadors' Theatre he played in "Anna Karenina" and later in the same year came to New York.

In this country Mr. Trevor was first seen in September, 1914, as Richard Burdon in "The Elder Son" at the Playhouse. Subsequently he played in Barrie's "A Kiss for Cinderella," "An Ideal Husband" and "Foot-Loose." One of his principal rôles was that of Gerald Fitzgerald in "Enter Madame," in which he opened at the Garrick Theatre in August, 1920. He scored other successes in "All Dressed Up," "Young Blood" and "The Goose Hangs High."

In Pictures Since 1924.

Since 1924 Mr. Trevor had had important motion-picture rôles in "The Foreign Legion," "The Man Who Found Himself," "Wages of Virtue," "The Song and Dance Man," "New York," "The Music Master" and "Sorrell and Son." For the filming of the latter picture he went to England in 1927 with H. B. Warner.

In April, 1928, after an affidavit of insanity filed against him in Los Angeles by H. B. Warner, Mr. Trevor was paroled on the promise of friends to place him in a sanatorium. At a hearing held at that time Mr. Warner, a lifelong friend of the actor, said Mr. Trevor had been discharged as cured from a Santa Monica, Cal., sanatorium in August, 1928. Mr. Trevor was recommitted this Fall when an aggravation of his condition was reported.

Miss Trevor said she had ordered her father's body cremated, the ashes to be forwarded to New York for a private service.

The actor's wife, from whom he had been separated, is not living in this country. She was last reported to be in India.

C. H. WACKER DIES; BEAUTIFIED CHICAGO

Noted Drive Was Named for Former Head, 73, of Plan Commission of City.

LED IN WORK FOR 35 YEARS

He Saw Many of His Ideas Carried Into Effect and Was Honored by French Architects.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Charles H. Wacker, former chairman of the Chicago Plan Commission, the leader of many projects which have added to the beauty of the city and contributed toward the convenience of its citizens, died today at his Lake Geneva home after an illness of several months. He was 73 years old. His civic services have been recognized by the naming of Wacker Drive after him.

Born in Chicago, a son of the late Frederick Wacker, he attended the Chicago public schools, Lake Forest Academy, and later studied in Stuttgart, Germany. After traveling in this country, Europe and Africa he joined his father in 1880 in establishing the malting firm of F. Wacker & Son, later the Wacker & Birk Brewing and Malting Company, of which he was president from 1884 to 1901.

For thirty-five years, beginning with the World's Fair of 1893, of which he was a director, Mr. Wacker had devoted a large share of his time and energy to his native city, and where others failed he succeeded in bringing about improvements in its planning. In 1909 he was appointed permanent chairman of the Plan Commission, and he performed the duties of this office for seventeen years, being succeeded by James Simpson, the present chairman. Virtually all of his ideas for the beautification of the city were wholly or in part realized.

Under the direction of Mr. Wacker the lakefront was changed from a hideous shore line to one of the finest avenues in the world. His leadership also witnessed an unprecedented era of building construction that is still in progress. He was an officer of a score of civic commissions or associations, director and member of the executive committee of the Chicago Chapter of the American Red Cross, former president of the Chicago Relief and Aid Societies and the United Charities of Chicago.

In 1921 he received the medal of honor of the Société des Architectes Français.

JACQUES DOUCET DIES, PARIS ART DEVOTEE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—Jacques Doucet, who before the World War enjoyed a world-wide reputation as a leading Rue de la Paix dressmaker, is dead at his home in Neuilly.

The sale of his collection of eighteenth century French masters in 1912 brought the highest prices ever obtained in auction rooms anywhere up to that time. Since then he had collected only modern and ultra-modern art. His great wealth enabled him to acquire many works of Degas, Cezanne, Vangogh and Daumier.

His own fine taste was exemplified in the little palace he built to house Picasso's masterpiece, "The Young Ladies From Avignon." The building was in Arabian Nights style and contained other art treasures, including early Chinese and negro sculptures.

M. Doucet's "Snake Charmer," a masterpiece by Douanier Rousseau, goes to the Louvre under the terms of his will.

Moving Spirit in Revolutions Once Fled to Africa—Also Imprisoned as Conspirator.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LISBON, Oct. 31.—Dr. Antonio José Almeida, President of Portugal from 1919 to 1923, who was an ardent Republican even during the days of the monarchy, died today at the age of 63 after a long illness. He was Portugal's only President who completed his term of office.

Dr. Almeida was one of the organizers of the revolution of 1910, which brought about the republic, and was appointed Minister of the Interior in the first provisional government. He participated in the Republican uprising at Oporto in 1891, after the failure of which he went to the Portuguese colony of St. Thomé to practice medicine.

He returned to Portugal in 1906, when he was one of four Republicans elected to Parliament. Subsequently he was imprisoned by the agents of João France on charges of conspiring against the monarchy.

First Jailed as Schoolboy.

When still a boy, José Almeida began his lifelong devotion to the cause of republicanism in Portugal. He was only 15 years old when he wrote for a students' paper at Coimbra, called The Ultimatum, an article entitled "The Last Braganza," which earned him three months' imprisonment.

During his administration the foreign relations of Portugal were greatly improved. He made peace with the Vatican and received officially the King of the Belgians and the President of Argentina. His visit to Brazil was considered to have aided his country economically and politically.

He proudly related that 30,000 men had passed through his room in four years, and he said that many had benefited by his advice.

DENIES RADIO 'CZAR' RUMOR.

Former Governor Smith Says He Is Not to Head Industry.

Former Governor Alfred E. Smith denied yesterday that he was to become allied with the radio industry as its "czar." He said that he had no such offer and knew nothing about it.

The report current in radio circles yesterday was that Owen D. Young, chairman of the Board of the Radio Corporation of America, and David Sarnoff, vice president of the RCA, had made the arrangements with Mr. Smith, at a salary to be $150,000 a year with a five-year contract effective Jan. 1, 1930.

A representative of the Radio Corporation said that the report was news to them.

"We are only one part of the radio industry," he said, "and obviously could not appoint any one to supervise the industry. That would be up to the Radio Manufacturers' Association."

Edmund Geddes, executive vice president of the RMA, said that he knew nothing of the report.

"There has been no such discussion among RMA members," said Mr. Geddes. "We contemplate no czar. The radio industry does not need one."

FIGHT BEGINS TODAY FOR NEW FALL TRIAL

Counsel Will Seek Stay of Judgment in Case of Ex-Secretary Facing Fine and Prison.

30 ERRORS ARE ALLEGED

Justice Hitz's Charge to Jury Will Be Attacked as Prejudicial to the Defendant.

SINCLAIR PHASE A TARGET

Testimony on Payments to Be Called Immaterial—Fall, Still Ill, May Attend Court.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Whether or not Albert B. Fall, ex-Secretary of the Interior, goes to prison or is permitted to remain at liberty on parole or suspended sentence will be decided in the next few days, Mr. Fall was convicted Friday of having accepted a bribe of $100,000 from Edward L. Doheny as the price of leasing the Elk Hills naval oil reserve.

The fight to save him from a felon's cell will begin tomorrow when a motion for arrest of judgment will be argued before Associate Justice William Hitz of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia.

The motion for an arrest of judgment was filed Monday by Frank J. Hogan, chief counsel for the Secretary.

Just what the government's position will be in the matter of a prison sentence for Mr. Fall has not been disclosed.

Mercy May Not Be Opposed.

He can be sentenced for a maximum of three years, or fined an amount equal to three times the bribe charged in the indictment, which fine in this instance could be $300,000.

Because of the feeble condition of the convicted man, who is still confined to his room in the Hotel Mayflower, the general opinion is that the government will not oppose mercy. In its verdict the jury asked that mercy be accorded the defendant.

In the matter of the motion for a new trial, Mr. Hogan has filed thirty exceptions to Justice Hitz's rulings during the trial and his final instructions to the jury.

The principal exceptions are to the justice's admission of the testimony concerning the Sinclair payments to Fall, which aggregated over $300,000, and of which evidence of transactions involving $269,500 were placed before the jury by government counsel.

Fall May Be in Court Today.

The defense lawyers will also argue that Justice Hitz's charge was, in parts, erroneous and improper, and in one or two specific instances prejudicial to Fall's position before the jury. In their formal exceptions as filed in the court they go so far as to say that, near the end of the charge, Justice Hitz's words amounted to an invitation to the jury to find Mr. Fall guilty.

If the motions are denied, the next step will be an appeal to the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia and the liberation of Mr. Fall on bail until the appeal is disposed of.

The date of Mr. Fall's appearance for sentence will also be settled tomorrow. There is some talk that he may appear tomorrow and that he will know his fate before the court day ends.

MEXICANS TO GET FUND FOR STUDY NEXT YEAR

Guggenheim Foundation Announces Morrow Will Head Committee to Select Scholars.

The first Mexican scholars to receive fellowships from the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation for study in Europe will be selected early next year, it was learned yesterday with the announcement by the trustees that Dwight W. Morrow, Ambassador to Mexico, would head the Committee of Selection.

The grants were made possible last June through the gift of an additional $1,000,000 to the foundation by former Senator and Mrs. Simon Guggenheim, who established it in honor of a son. Other Latin countries also will benefit by it, and selections of recipients in them will be made later.

Since the foundation was established in 1925, 230 scholars have received aid from it, among them being Stephen Vincent Benet, who wrote the poem, "John Brown's Body," during his term of appointment, and Professor A. H. Compton of the University of Chicago, who received the Nobel physics prize in 1928.

Dr. Eyler N. Simpson, a specialist on Mexico on the staff of the Institute of Current World Affairs, will be secretary of the committee, and in charge of its Mexican activities. Other members were announced as follows:

JAVIER SANCHEZ MEJORADA, Mexican Minister of Communications and Public Works.

PROFESSOR MOISES SAENZ, Sub-Secretary of Education.

CARLOS CONTRERAS, architect.

The establishment of the fellowships "has been received with the keenest interest" in Mexico, Dr. Frank Aydelotte, president of Swarthmore College and Chairman of the Advisory Board of the Foundation, reported after a visit there last Summer. "This is a period when ideas and institutions in Mexico are undergoing rapid change. It is a period when the greatest opportunities in the country are open to young men, and when there is the eagerness on the part of the leaders of the younger generation to secure the experience and training necessary to enable them to discharge public duties efficiently and intelligently and to build a new civilization on the foundations laid by the revolution."

Francis H. Brownell, Roger W. Straus, Carroll A. Wilson, Charles Earl, Charles D. Hilles.

FLOWER HOSPITAL OPENS FUND DRIVE

DINNER STARTS CAMPAIGN

Dr. Honan Praises Action of the Trustees—Dr. Schroeder Approves the Plans.

Assurance of $1,127,000 of the $2,000,000 needed to construct and equip a new 300-bed building for Flower Hospital on its present site at York Avenue and Sixty-fourth Street was announced last night at a dinner in the Hotel McAlpin opening a three-week public campaign to complete the fund. The announcement was made possible by the action of the hospital's board of trustees, who have assumed full responsibility for $1,000,000 of the amount needed. A total of $127,000 already has been subscribed.

Dr. William Francis Honan, Professor of Surgery in the New York Homeopathic Medical College, which is associated with Flower Hospital, acting as toastmaster at the dinner, praised the board of trustees for their action taken Monday night when the financial world was still in a turmoil. The entire campaign received last night the unqualified endorsement of Commissioner William M. Schroeder Jr. of the Hospital Department, who was present at the dinner.

Stresses Coordination.

Special emphasis was placed on the value of the coordination of medical schools with hospitals by both Dr. Honan and Commissioner Schroeder.

"The enlargement of our school is planned because we believe that medical education, when it goes hand in hand with actual hospital practice, is of as great a value to the community as the work of healing and prevention itself," Dr. Honan said.

Commissioner Schroeder predicted an advance in the facilities for the education of nurses as well as physicians in the city.

"We shall endeavor to better the nursing situation by centralizing the teaching of nursing in a single training school. We expect to offer a college degree to nurses who complete a four-year course in such a school, as the plan is developed," the commissioner said.

Commissioner Schroeder showed statistically that the ratio of hospital beds to the population in this city is 1 to 147.

The new hospital will be completed by 1931 and will rise fifteen stories. The present buildings, built for the most part in 1890, have become obsolete and inadequate to meet increasing demands on the only general hospital on the east side between Forty-second and Seventy-second Streets, it was pointed out.

Twenty-Year Program.

A twenty-year program, which includes the erection of a new nurse's home and training school and a dormitory with capacity for 250 college students at a cost of $10,913,000 is also planned. This program provides for construction, equipment and endowment of a research building for the Medical College, which is one of the seventy-three Class A medical schools in the United States.

The present sum sought is to be raised by the issuance of 50,000 participating certificates at $40 par value. The amount has been underwritten by a Flower Hospital Health Syndicate comprising members of the campaign executive committee, which includes Eversley Childs Jr., Clifford Hemphill, James M. Mathes, Berson S. Prentice, Parry D. Sayles, Frank D. Waterman and Dr. Claude A. Burrett, director of the hospital and dean of the New York Homeopathic Medical College.

At the dinner last night, attended by 500 volunteer workers, the speakers, besides Dr. Schroeder, included State Senator Bernard Downing, Dr. Claude A. Burrett, Dr. Horace Ayres, Professor of Gynecology and Obstetrics at the Medical College, and David Q. Hammond of the board of trustees.

Mayor Walker, who was scheduled to address the meeting, was unable to attend on account of an emergency engagement.

AWAIT STOLEN TRIPTYCH.

Yugoslavs Pleased That Cleveland Is to Return It.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELGRADE, Oct. 31.—Great satisfaction has been caused here by the official announcement that the director of the Cleveland Museum has informed the Yugoslav Consul there that he is restoring the famous fourteenth century triptych to Zagreb Cathedral.

During a recent inspection of Zagreb art treasures by the Yugoslav art expert, the cathedral chanter was amazed to find the triptych in their possession was a worthless copy of the original, which had mysteriously disappeared.

Investigation showed it was stolen by the Dalmatian adventurer, Marcovich, who, under the name Count Pyslik-Inan, had been living as an art expert for some months in the tower of Zagreb Cathedral. The triptych was sold through an art expert in Paris to a New York dealer, who in turn sold it to Cleveland.

SEVEN LIVES LOST IN LAKE COLLISION

VICTIMS HAD NO WARNING

Many Were Trapped Below Decks When Ship Rolled Over—Wife of Steward Among Missing.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 31. (AP).—Two big lake freighters were in collision in a heavy fog twenty miles off Port Washington today. One of them, the Senator, sank with a probable loss of seven lives. It was the third major lake tragedy near here within ten days, and only heroic rescues kept the casualty list from including the Senator's entire crew of twenty-eight.

The ore carrier Marquette, headed for Indiana Harbor, Ind., rammed broadside into the Senator, laden with a cargo of 241 autos. The Senator rolled quickly over and sank before its crew had a chance to man the life-boats.

Fifteen managed to cling to life-rafts, and were picked up forty-five minutes later by the fishing tug Delos H. Smith of Port Washington. Three others were saved by the Marquette, which stood by for a time, although badly damaged itself and in grave danger. Three more were saved by the Thomas Walters, another freighter. One body was recovered, but the six others on board have not been accounted for.

With its prow split, the Marquette quickly began drawing water, but was able to keep afloat until tugs, answering S O S calls, came to its rescue and towed it into port at Milwaukee.

Crash Came Without Warning.

The crews of both freighters were agreed that the crash occurred so quickly and without warning that it was difficult to say how it happened. Captain W. F. Amsbary, skipper of the Marquette, declined to comment. Captain George Finch, commander of the Senator, is believed to have gone down with his ship.

The Senator was headed for Detroit and points East. She left Milwaukee this morning. The Marquette set out from Escanaba last night with a load of ore. The time of the collision was fixed at 10:40 A. M., but the disabled Marquette did not make port here until dark.

Mrs. Matthew Gormley, wife of the Senator's steward, was believed to have been among those lost. One of the survivors said he saw her slip from the raft and sink. She was among the last to leave the boat.

Captain Amsbary, reluctant to talk at all, refused to say anything after he had talked to representatives of his company, the Cleveland Cliff Iron Company of Cleveland, who met him at the docks. He admitted the Senator had not been sighted until just before the crash.

Survivors Tell of Crash.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 31.—The steamship Marquette crawled slowly into Milwaukee harbor tonight to tell the story of how the Marquette rammed the Senator.

A gaping hole in her bow, and tons of water in her hold, gave evidence of the tremendous force with which the two freighters came together. With a half dozen smaller craft as her escort, the Marquette crawled slowly into dock at Jones's Island, while ships' whistles blew.

The collision occurred about 10:40. The deck watch and the men in the wheelhouse of the Marquette saw the Senator suddenly appear out of the fog. The lookout shouted full speed astern, and the boat rocked as the propeller changed direction. Only a moment intervened. Then the sharp bow of the Marquette crashed into the larger ship with a sudden shock that sent seamen scurrying to the deck.

It was all over in five or six minutes. Captain Walter F. Amsbary kept the bow of the Marquette wedged into the hole it had made in an effort to stem the rush of water into the hold of the distressed ship, but his efforts were futile.

Many are believed to have drowned in their cabins or jammed in the companionways. There was no time to grasp life-belts or lower boats, and those who came out of it alive saved themselves by jumping into the water when the ship rolled over.

Climbs Through Hole.

"I was in bed when the bump came," said Leonard Bossi of Sutlerville, Pa., a watchman aboard the Senator. "I ran to the deck with nothing on but an undershirt, and at that moment the ship gave a sudden lurch to port.

"I was thrown against the railing on the bow, and as I looked up I saw the bow of the Marquette. I heard a man from the bridge shout, 'Catch hold of these ropes and pull yourself aboard. Hurry, before it's too late.' I grabbed the ropes and swung up to the hole in the Marquette's bow and crawled in through the hole. When I got on deck the Senator had gone under."

William Filbeck, an auto driver, of Deerfield, Kan., followed Bossi through the hole in the Marquette's bow. He walked about in a stupor the rest of the day, unable to recall what had happened to him.

Norman C. Derosier of Westwood Cal., a coal passer, was in bed when the crash came, but dashed to the deck.

"I saw the captain of the Senator waving his hands and shouting orders as he stepped from the wheelhouse," Derosier said. "Just as he set foot on deck he slipped and fell into the water. The deck then was on a sharp slant. He disappeared in the water in about three or four minutes the ship was under."

Ralph Ellis of South Bend, the radio operator, was at his set when the ships collided:

"The jolt knocked me out of my chair," he said. "I looked out and saw that terrible scene, and then jumped back to the desk to send out the distress signal. I sent SOS once, and then the batteries went dead with an awful sizzle as the water reached them. I was thrown into the water, and somehow—I can't remember now—I was dashed out of the cabin and taken into the fishing boat."

The Nicholson Universal Steamship Company, owners of the Senator, announced tonight that there may be more dead, as several new seamen shipped with the Senator when it left Milwaukee this morning.

Seeks Utilities Board Data.

The Community Councils of the city of New York, with offices in the Municipal Building, have issued a questionnaire with a view to obtaining the public viewpoint upon the subject of the Public Service Commission law and its operation, it was announced yesterday. The results will be filed with the Commission on Revision of Public Service Commission Law. The questionnaire seeks information on the handling of complaints by the commission.

Keeper at Sing Sing Half Century Today; Saw Convicts Cowed by Lash and Stripes

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, Oct. 31. Alfred Conyes, whose career spans the gap between the medieval prison practices of the last century and today and whose memory is a veritable "who's who" of famous criminals, will celebrate his fiftieth anniversary as a keeper at Sing Sing prison tomorrow.

He has worked under twenty wardens, met about 60,000 criminals and, with one exception, is believed to have been inside prison walls longer than any inmate or any other keeper. The exception is Jesse H. Pomeroy, Massachusetts convict who has been in prison for fifty-three years.

Appointed to his post on Nov. 1, 1879, Conyes knew the era when prisoners were paddled, hanged by the wrists or lashed or clubbed when keepers carried nightsticks and used them; when convicts wore stripes and marched in lock-step to their posts; when their heads were shaved and talking among themselves was a crime. He witnessed the riots of 1883 and 1913.

Conyes saw the first death house to house an electric chair, built by prison labor, one of the construction gang being Thomas Pallister, who, after being released, killed a policeman, was returned to prison and incarcerated in the death house, and then escaped during a stormy night in 1903.

Conyes did sentry duty on the walls on July 7, 1891, while four men died in the first executions in the Sing Sing electric chair.

"Warden Brown gave me a rifle and told me to keep the crowd at bay," Conyes reminisced. "He drew a line on the grounds and told me to shoot anybody who crossed it without permission. Because of this order, the warden was always referred to after that as 'Dead-line Brown.'"

Among the noted prisoners with whom Conyes came in contact were Carlyle Harris, executed for poisoning Helen Potts, his secret bride; Dr. Robert Buchanan, who killed his second wife in order to rewed his first one, and Charles Becker, the police lieutenant, convicted of instigating the killing of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler.

Others who were not famous when they went into prison became so in its annals, he said, by their ingenious escapes, such as David Murray, who had himself nailed up in a packing case and shipped out as a consignment of shirts. There also was George Carter, who successfully followed Pallister's escape with a disappearance that still is unsolved.

However, John McAllister, a burglar from the Bronx who escaped ten years ago, Conyes called the most ingenious of those who escaped. He made an effigy of himself of soap and dough and false whiskers that lay on his bunk and fooled the keepers while he got a night's start on his pursuers.

"Life in prison doesn't appeal to most men, I know," Conyes said, "but I have enjoyed it. I believe in prison reform to a reasonable degree. So does our warden. Of all the wardens I have served under, I have found the greatest pleasure in working with Warden Lawes."

MME. CURIE WARNS OF PERILS IN RADIUM

Only Experts Should Use It, She Says at Cancer Society Dinner in Her Honor Here.

TELLS OF WORK IN FRANCE

She Also Hails Progress Made in America at Her Only Public Appearance in New York.

Caution against the therapeutic use of radium by untrained hands was voiced by the discoverer of the element, Mme. Marie Curie, at the third annual dinner last night of the American Society for the Control of Cancer in the Hotel Plaza, where she was the guest of honor.

Mme. Curie's attendance at the function, which was attended by about 400, marked her only public appearance in New York on her present trip to this country.

Mme. Curie's brief speech was read by Mrs. Robert G. Mead, member of the Finance Committee of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, while the guest of honor stood beside her. After Mrs. Mead had completed the speech, Mme. Curie said "Thank you," and apologized for not being able to speak herself. The address was broadcast over station WOR, and was as follows:

"I wish to thank the committee for inviting me to come to this dinner. It has been a pleasure for me to be here and to see so many of my old friends. I wish to express my sympathy with the object of this society and I have listened with satisfaction to what has been said about the progress achieved in the United States in the use of radium in the therapeutic field.

"I would like to say on this occasion that, as a result of the work done in the medical section of the Radium Institute of Paris under Dr. Regaud we have become more than ever convinced that radium should only be used in the therapeutic field by experts. In order to qualify as an expert it is our belief that several years of special training should be required. In preparation for the opening of the Radium Institute in Warsaw the chief physician is now completing his second year of work with Dr. Regaud, and the physicist who will be in charge will have spent three years in my laboratory in Paris.

Other speakers were:

Dr. JOHN C. A. GERSTER, chairman of the New York City Committee of the Cancer Society.

Dr. HOWARD CANNING TAYLOR, president of the American Society for the Control of Cancer.

HELEN BROWN BARON.

The occasion also was intended to arouse interest in the early diagnosis and proper treatment of cancer and to promote the sale of Christmas booklets by the cancer committee designed to finance the year-around law educational program.

Dr. Gerster announced that next Sunday, with the permission of Cardinal Hayes, a leaflet will be distributed in the Catholic churches throughout the Archdiocese of New York. The leaflet contains a letter of the Cardinal commending the educational work of the New York committee. The chairman also expressed thanks for the free service given by advertising agencies, motion picture houses, radio stations, hospitals and clinics and to railway companies.

Mrs. Meloney, in her tribute to Mme. Curie, emphasized the difficulties under which the scientist labored in her earlier days.

Dr. James Ewing outlined the educational work accomplished by the society during the past ten years and said that there are at present 125,000 cases of cancer each year in the United States and more than 500,000 in the rest of the civilized world.

HELD NIGHT SCHOOLS NEGLECTED IN 1924

L. R. Alderman Found Classes Overcrowded and Poorly Led in Report Just Published.

FAVORED LONGER SESSIONS

Would Have High Schools Open 14 Hours a Day, but Wanted Recitation Time Cut.

Neglect of the evening schools was charged to the Board of Education in the report submitted by the 1924 cooperative and constructive school committee of fourteen experts, whose findings have just been made public by the board in a printed volume of 1,834 pages.

The first report on evening schools was made by L. R. Alderman of Washington, D. C., educational specialist of the United States Navy and formerly State superintendent of schools in Oregon, after a four-month investigation of the system.

Mr. Alderman found that the evening schools were worthy of much more attention than they have had.

He reported that, while in a few cases there was "an artificial drumming up of classes for mere numbers," the great majority of classes were full and some overcrowded, with "too little attention paid to these eager young and middle-aged people who were sacrificing in order to become better citizens."

City officials, who disagreed with Mr. Alderman's conclusions, included their criticisms in the general report. Officials in charge of the evening schools, however, at a meeting last Spring admitted that the schools are insufficiently financed and equipped.

Mr. Alderman urged a reorganization of the day and evening high schools on a basis of continuous sessions, without study periods.

"If the schools were in session from 8 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock at night," Mr. Alderman said, "many students who now drop out of school for financial reasons would continue and the high school plants would accommodate probably twice as many students as they now do."

Closely related with this suggestion was another which would reduce the time spent in school by day high school pupils. Mr. Alderman held that the work of high school pupils, like that of college students, should be done mostly out of school and that recitations in each subject should be reduced from five to three a week, leaving more time for visits to libraries, museums, municipal departments and centres of industry.

Some criticisms were put in the form of questions. A few were:

"Who is trying to inform the people of New York that it is not desirable from any point of view to keep little children below 9 in organized work or organized play for more than three hours a day?

"With this in mind, who is trying to solve the problem of providing a suitable place for the thousands of children of mothers who work all day and cannot see to them as mothers who are better situated might?

"What can be done to bring about a real working organization among the district superintendents?

"Who is trying to substitute some constructive idea to replace the old last-century idea, that promotions are made for political reasons only?

"Whose business is it to see what questions should be really studied and a solution reached rather than dismissed with the sentence, 'New York is such a big city nothing can be done about it'?

"In the continuation schools what is wrong when children say they get so little out of their time spent there?"

OSBORN GIVES DATA ON CITY PARK ACRES

He Replies to Thomas Charge That the Administration Twisted the Facts.

SOCIALIST MAKES RETORT

Declares His Important Statements Are Not Challenged and Insists New York Lags on Parks.

William Church Osborn, attorney, leader in welfare movements sent an open letter yesterday to all New York newspapers replying to the statement of Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for Mayor, that the Walker superiors have been misrepresenting the administration's accomplishments in park improvements. The letter follows:

"In one or two recent speeches Mr. Thomas charges that the statements of the Walker Administration as to parks and playgrounds 'are uncertain and need debunking. Controller Berry boasts that the administration has added 2,600 acres of park lands. The Citizens' Committee gives the figures as 1,367 acres.' Mr. Thomas again states, 'the boasted achievements of the present administration in the matter of playgrounds consists of providing $500,000 a year . . . only six playgrounds are contracted for at the present time.' As chairman of the recent conference on parks and playgrounds, I have had occasion to look into the performance of this administration in the matter of parks and playgrounds. First, as to Mr. Thomas's charges of fact, disregarding the political talk in his speeches:

"The facts: Mr. Thomas is not straight on his facts. In the Citizens' Committee report beneath the figure of 1,367 acres actually acquired is stated the approval of the acquisition of additional lands amounting to 604 acres. During the Summer, which has intervened between the preparation of the Citizen's Committee statement and the present time, the Controller has completed many of these purchases and has also taken under contract other properties, so that the total of park lands acquired, and under contract since Jan. 1, 1928, are 2,494 acres at a cost of $10,196,787.50.

"An additional 124 acres is due to the acquisition by Controller Berry of some lands under condemnation proceedings and by gift it thus appears that Mr. Thomas's first statement of fact leads to a wholly wrong inference and that Mr. Berry's claim of adding 2,600 acres of park lands is substantially correct. Besides this the Walker Administration has appropriated in four years approximately $10,000,000 for the improvement of parks and playgrounds and forty-six playgrounds have been opened.

Calls Second Statement Wrong.

"His second statement that only $500,000 a year has been provided for playgrounds and that only six playgrounds are contracted for at the present time is wrong. Five hundred thousand dollars was provided in the budgets of 1928 and 1929 for the purchase of playground sites; $500,000 is also provided for in a proposed 1930 budget for additional playground sites and $500,000 for the equipping of these sites. Further, $6,000,000 from the sale of unused real estate has been appropriated and largely expended, as appears from the report of the Controller of May 15, 1929, at page 2, $3,000,000 for parks and $3,000,000 for open-air playgrounds. An additional $6,000,000 from similar sources is expected to be used in the same way. The Controller is now in process of securing additional park and playground lands.

"Mr. Thomas states, 'Only six playgrounds are contracted for at the present time.' I am informed that more than fifteen playground sites are at the present time under contract. The reason of delay in expending the money was that the Municipal Assembly had to enact a law giving the Controller authority to purchase playground sites, and since the passage of that act the matter has proceeded rapidly.

"I am informed that the appropriations for improvements of parks and playgrounds by tax notes and serial bonds since Jan. 1, 1920, have been $9,920,048.97; that the budget for park purposes for 1925 was $4,175,767.50 and in 1929 was $3,793,104.25, an increase of practically 40 per cent. Mr. Thomas is certainly right in thinking that this city needs more parks and especially more playgrounds. He is certainly wrong in thinking that this administration has not taken an active and sincere interest in meeting the deficiency."

Mr. Thomas replied last night to Mr. Osborn's letter with the following statement:

"Before I answer certain of Mr. Osborn's specific statements, let me point out that he does not challenge my really important statements, which were and are that twelve years of Democratic rule have left New York at the foot of the list in the matter of parks and shockingly ill-provided in playgrounds.

Sees Lack of Supervision

"The playgrounds we have are not properly used or properly supervised. The parks we have are scattered among five commissions and even in a borough like Queens there has been no park plan adopted and very inadequate park provisions made. All that Mr. Osborn does is to say that in addition to the 2,367 park acres actually acquired, mostly in Queens and Richmond, the Controller has certain other contemplated purchases in various stages of progress, some of which have been so recently completed that not even the administration's Citizens' Committee knew it. I am glad the stimulant of election has suddenly got such rapid results.

"As to playgrounds, the very conference to which Mr. Osborn refers asked for $10,000,000 over a term of years. It got $500,000, beginning as late as 1928, in the budget. This, I know, has been supplemented by the use of funds from the sale of real estate. It is quite uncertain whether there will be a continuance of similar funds. Mr. Osborn may be right that fifteen playground sites are at the present time under contract, but no such optimistic news has been contained in any former report. Not a single one of these playgrounds has been opened.

"I do not agree with Mr. Osborn that the reason for the delay in spending money has been the need of a law giving the Controller additional authority to purchase playgrounds. That law could have been passed at any time within the last four years. What stood in the way was the inability of General Berry to devote his time to the question, the choice of political appointees to select sites and the general policy of Tammany Hall to do as little as possible except just before election. That is why playground space in Manhattan is 46.6 per cent adequate, 54.9 per cent adequate in Brooklyn and 70.4 per cent adequate in the Bronx."

Thoughts of Will Rogers On the Late Slump in Stocks

To the Editor of The New York Times:

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 31.—Sure must be a great consolation to the poor people who lost their stock in the late crash to know that it has fallen in the hands of Mr. Rockefeller, who will take care of it and see that it has a good home and never be allowed to wander around unprotected again.

There is one rule that works in every calamity. Be it pestilence, war or famine, the rich get richer and the poor get poorer. The poor even help arrange it. But it's just as Mr. Brisbane and I have been constantly telling you, "Don't gamble"; take all your savings and buy some good stock, and hold it till it goes up, then sell it. If it don't go up, don't buy it.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

WIDOW GETS ESTATE UNDER DUNLAP WILL

Hat Manufacturer Expressed Regret for Wrongs Done Her—Earlier Will Revoked.

DAUGHTER GETS NOTHING

J. F. Moran Left Many Bequests to Charity in Disposing of $1,000,000 Property.

Expressing regret for his mistreatment of his fourth wife, now his widow, the will of William Allen Dunlap, son of the late Robert Dunlap, founder of the hat business bearing his name, was filed with Probate Clerk Killeran yesterday in Surrogate's Court. It revokes an earlier will which gave his entire estate, estimated as "at least $1,000" by his lawyers, and names the widow, Ora M. Hinson Dunlap, formerly the Countess Compusano, sole legatee. The estate includes $400,000 in trust funds created for the testator by his parents.

"Being conscience-stricken at the wrong I have done my dear wife," begins the testament, dated eleven days before Mr. Dunlap's death on Oct. 24, "in cutting her off during our separation from inheriting trust funds I willed to her at the time of our marriage, together with all my possessions, which I was able to legally dispose of. I here and now want to right that wrong and I declare null and void and hereby revoke any will I have made in favor of any one else. I am moved to do this because my wife has been the only one who has ever stood by me in my time of need and illness and I often feel afraid to go to sleep with the thought on my mind that I have done so great a wrong."

The will, penned by a friend as Dunlap lay upon his deathbed, is signed in a wavering hand. By its terms, his daughter, Lavender Dunlap, who resides with her mother at 17 East Ninety-sixth Street, is deprived of all share in the estate.

For many years the testator and the fourth wife were involved in litigation in the New York courts. They were married in Salt Lake City in 1926. Under a pre-nuptial agreement, Mrs. Dunlap declared in one suit against him, he was to give her $2,500 quarterly, but paid only $500.

In his first will, executed Nov. 2, 1923, Dunlap bequeathed all he owned to his daughter. In another document, dated July 14, 1926, he left everything to "my intended wife, Ora Mabel Hinson, generally known as the Countess Compusano." Mrs. Dunlap was the widow of an Italian aviator.

The will of Joseph F. Moran, shipbuilder, filed yesterday for probate, leaves most of his estate of more than $1,000,000 to his widow, Adeline Stillwell Moran of 465 Park Avenue. She gets $300,000 outright, real estate, stock and her husband's interest in the Atlantic Basin Iron Works, Brooklyn, and the residue after the payment of $83,000 in specific legacies to fourteen religious and charitable institutions and three persons.

The institutional bequests include $5,000 each to:

Sisters of Peace, Jersey City.
St. Ann's Home, Jersey City.
Nursing Sisters of the Sick Poor, Brooklyn, N. Y.
St. Vincent de Paul Societies of St. Patrick's Church, Jersey City, and St. Stephen's Church, Brooklyn.
Holy Family Hospital, Brooklyn.
St. Peter's Hospital, Brooklyn.
St. Catherine's Hospital, Brooklyn.
Catholic Orphan Asylum, Hopewell, N. J.

The Immaculate Conception Day Nursery of Brooklyn gets $2,000 and St. Edmond's Home for Crippled Children, Philadelphia, and the Catholic Church of Mount Hope, N. J., $1,000 each.

To Miss Cleanthe Carr of the Park Avenue address, a niece by marriage, Mr. Moran left $20,000. Two employes, Wong Wing and Katie Keller, got $2,500 each.

The wife bequeathed Mrs. Moran to distribute the testator's clothing among "the needy poor." Mrs. Moran has been described as "the best dressed woman in the world" by Paris and London newspapers.

The testator died on Oct. 21.

GANGSTER FOUND SLAIN IN BROOKLYN STREET

Police Question Friends of Joseph Masella, but Get No Clue to the Shooting.

Joseph Masella, a 23-year-old gangster and racketeer, according to the police, was found dead of bullet wounds early yesterday morning in Twenty-eighth Street, between Third and Fourth Avenues, Brooklyn.

After several hours identification was made through the fingerprint records in Manhattan Police Headquarters. Questioning of friends of the dead man produced no definite clue to the murderers, according to the police.

Chief among those questioned was "Mrs. Evelyn Rizzo," said by the police to be Evelyn Liquori, estranged wife of Ralph Liquori, a butcher of 2,533 East Fifteenth Street, Brooklyn, who also was questioned. Rose Viale, 19 years old, of 2,788 West Fifteenth Street, Brooklyn, was likewise examined.

FERRARI AIDES HELD ON THEFT CHARGES

Labate and Tavormina Accused of Appropriating Funds of Bank Absorbed by City Trust.

DUMMY CONCERN INVOLVED

Labate Testified for State That He Delivered $20,000 to Mrs. Warder.

WARDER TRIAL ON TODAY

Former Banking Superintendent Faces Severe Cross-Examination in Bribery Case.

Two former associates of the late Francesco M. Ferrari, both of them former officers of the Atlantic State Bank in Brooklyn, were arrested yesterday and last night on charges of grand larceny growing out of the investigation of the affairs of the defunct City Trust Company.

They were J. Vincent Labate and Louis Tavormina. They will be arraigned today before Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins in the same court room in which Labate testified last week at the bribery trial of Frank H. Warder, former State Superintendent of Banks.

J. Vincent Labate, a former officer of the Atlantic State Bank in Brooklyn, and an associate of the late Francesco M. Ferrari in other enterprises, was arrested in Brooklyn yesterday on two charges of grand larceny arising out of the investigation of the affairs of the defunct City Trust Company. He will be arraigned this morning before Justice Arthur S. Tompkins in the same court room in which last week he testified at the bribery trial of Frank H. Warder, former Superintendent of Banks.

Labate was a State's witness and testified he delivered $20,000 cash to Mrs. Warder from Ferrari. His testimony was later excluded on the ground that there was no corroboratory evidence that Mrs. Warder was empowered to act for her husband.

$116,750 Theft Charged.

The charges on which he is being held are specifically the appropriation from the bank of $116,750 on April 12, 1928, on a check drawn on the Delta Securities Company for the purchase of Bank of America stock and $11,545 on Oct. 25, 1928. The Delta account was heavily overdrawn and it is said that Labate was aiding Ferrari in this transaction. The check was made payable to E. E. Cert, a stock broker. The Delta Securities Company, evidence at the Moreland Commission investigation has shown, was one of Ferrari's many dummy corporations used in the manipulation of the bank's funds.

The $11,545 check was made payable to Louis J. Cohen, Inc., and was, ostensibly, for repair work and painting of the Williamsburg branch of the bank. Cohen said that he merely endorsed the check, that he did not get the money and that he did not do the work.

All of these matters have been the subject of investigation by the special grand jury which is still considering City Trust cases. Labate's arrest was ordered by Assistant District Attorney Louis Goldstein.

Labate, who lives at 4,044 Seagate Avenue, Brooklyn, maintained the same unruffled calm when arrested by Detective Thomas Fitzgerald that characterized his appearances on the witness stand in the Warder trial and the Moreland investigation. He says he is a grocer now. He was at one time president of the bankrupt Federal Securities Corporation, another of Ferrari's enterprises.

Tavormina was arrested at 10 o'clock last night, on the order of District Attorney Charles J. Dodd, at his home, 3 Folsom Avenue, Glendale, Queens. Tavormina, who is 47 years old, lives there with his wife and two children. He was locked in Brooklyn Police Headquarters. He is charged that on Oct. 25, 1926, Tavormina appropriated to his own use $11,545 from the funds of the Atlantic State Bank, of which he was at that time vice president. This bank afterward was absorbed by the City Trust Company, and Tavormina became vice president in the latter bank.

Warder Trial Resumes Today.

Tavormina was arrested two weeks ago on a charge of appropriating $98,000 of the City Trust Company's funds by manipulating checks. He was arraigned before Justice Tompkins and released in $12,500 bail, which was furnished by a surety company. He was out on this bail when he was arrested last night.

Warder's trial will be resumed at the Supreme Court room in the Criminal Courts Building this morning. No hearing was held yesterday because Justice Tompkins had to appear in Westchester to impanel a special grand jury there.

Mr. Warder spent the day in the country, it was reported, resting in preparation for the conclusion of his testimony today. It is certain that he will undergo a severe cross-examination by the prosecution. Assistant District Attorney Harold W. Hastings, who presented the City Trust evidence to the grand jury with special Assistant Hiram C. Todd, was in conference yesterday with Anthony Di Paola, former cashier of the bank; George Egbert, chief bank examiner, and George Forster, another examiner. The prosecution was making plans for the cross-examination and the conference, it was understood, was for the purpose of outlining points of attack.

ACTS ON WAGNER'S PLEA.

Adams Urges Desirability of Giving Navy Yard Employes Time to Vote.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The desirability of giving the civilian employes at the Navy Yard in Brooklyn time in which to vote on election day in the Mayoralty campaign was communicated to the commandant of the Navy Yard today by Secretary Adams in response to a plea of Senator Wagner.

The Senator called upon Mr. Adams at the department and protested against the practice of counting time off against the employes for the period they are absent for voting. The Secretary made no ruling on the question, but sent a telegram to the Navy Yard calling attention to the situation and asking that it receive consideration.

DARTMOUTH DRIVE FINISHED BY YALE

VARSITY ALERT ON DEFENSE

By ROBERT F. KELLEY.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 31.—With a cold drizzle descending on the practice field a few hundred yards away from the Bowl, where Howard Ehmke's tarpaulin invention covered the playing surface, Yale's football squad contented itself with signal work and dummy scrimmage today, finishing its real work for the game which is outstanding in the East this Saturday.

The field was slippery and treacherous underfoot and Coach Stevens took no chances with actual scrimmage, contenting himself with yesterday's workout against the freshmen, when the Yale varsity had more success against the youngsters than in their two previous meetings of the season.

Tomorrow there will be only the lightest sort of work. If the weather clears and the Bowl can be used without exposing the field to more rain, the team will go to the scene of Saturday's action and run through signals and kicking practice. Otherwise the team will drill on the practice field.

Dartmouth In Hartford Tonight.

Dartmouth will arrive in Connecticut tomorrow, but will not be in New Haven until a few minutes before the game. Tomorrow night the Dartmouth team will stay at a hotel in Hartford and then leave in autobuses for New Haven in the morning.

This afternoon in signal drill the varsity used what has come to be regarded as the probable starting line-up Saturday. Hickok was at left end, Marting at left tackle, Tyson at left guard, Palmer at centre, Greene at right guard, Vincent at right tackle and Barres at right end, with Bob Hall, Snead, Miller and Dunn in the back field. Loeser, regular left guard, had a late class and was unable to practice.

Another team, with Albie Booth calling the signals, ran through formations. The ends were Walker and McEwan, the tackles, Stewart and Hawley; the guards, Linehan and Hard, and the centre, Phillips. Austin, Ellis and Taylor were in the back field with Booth.

Varsity on Offensive.

Later this team faced the varsity in supervised scrimmage up here. The scrubs went through a long defensive scrimmage against the varsity.

The scrubs also used forward passing plays of the Dartmouth variety. The varsity had very good success in stopping them.

The ticket sale continued today with no abatement and with every sign that the Bowl will be nearly filled on Saturday. Yale senses a chance to repeat the great victory of last week over Army, and Yale men are anxious to be in at a game which may prove this year's team to be the best of recent years at New Haven.

SPECIALS TO NEW HAVEN.

Two of the Trains Tomorrow Assigned to Dartmouth Club.

New Yorkers who travel to the Yale-Dartmouth game tomorrow will have several special trains to New Haven at their disposal as well as the usual service to the city, it was announced yesterday by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company. Two of the specials have been assigned to members of the Dartmouth Club, the first leaving at 10:40 A. M. and the other ten minutes later. They will arrive at their destination at 12:45 and 12:50 respectively.

Regular trains also will make the run, the first leaving at 8:25 A. M. and stopping at Stamford and Bridgeport. Others leave at 8:35 and 9:15. The first special train, which will not stop before arriving in New Haven, will leave at 9:35, others following at intervals until the last at 11:30 A. M. The first return train will be ready at 4:50 and will leave when filled.

W. & J. ENDS PREPARATION.

Lengthy Drill Completes Work for Lafayette Game.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 31.—Washington and Jefferson's preparation for the important Lafayette engagement of Saturday was practically finished tonight. Coaches Ride and Amos sent their protégés through the last hard workout of the week and will rest their hopes of victory on what has been accomplished since the Temple game of last week.

There was no scrimmage, but a lengthy drill was held in the rain. It was stated after the drill that the same team that started the contest against Temple would appear at the beginning of the Lafayette combat.

LAFAYETTE SQUAD DEPARTS.

Leaves for W. and J. Game After Holding Short Workout.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Pa., Oct. 31.—A light signal drill, with punting and passing practice, constituted a short workout for the Lafayette team today before leaving for the game with Washington and Jefferson.

The team entrained for Greensburg tonight and received a great send-off from the student body, which marched to the station headed by the college band. Twenty-five players were in the party, which will remain in Greensburg until Saturday morning, when it will board buses for the sixty-mile ride to Washington.

PENN STATE LEAVES TODAY.

Edwards and Eschbach Not to Play Against Syracuse.

Special to The New York Times.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 31.—A Penn State squad of twenty-six players will leave tomorrow morning at 7:30 for Syracuse, N. Y., where the Lions will meet the Orange elevens Saturday.

The squad went through a final workout this afternoon on New Beaver Field. Edwards and Eschbach, varsity end and centre, respectively, are the only members of the squad not in the best of condition, and these players are not expected to see service for another week.

Yale-Dartmouth Game to Go On Air, McNamee Announcing

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 31.—Arrangements were made today for the broadcasting of the Yale-Dartmouth football game Saturday. Previously it had been stated that it would not be broadcast, but Harold F. Woodcock, manager of Yale athletics, said tonight that great pressure has been brought to bear and that broadcasting would begin Saturday at 1:30 P. M. with Graham McNamee at the microphone.

It is the belief here that the closing of the New York stock market on Saturday will greatly swell the attendance.

It is estimated that about 70,000 will see the contest.

FOOTBALL REVENUE $1,000,000 AT YALE

ATHLETICS COST $424,227

$385,109 More Paid to Visiting Teams—Other Expenses Reduce Surplus to $1,471.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 31 (AP).—Football is again a million-dollar sport at Yale. The report for the fiscal year ended June 30 last, issued tonight by Treasurer George Parmly Day of the Yale Athletic Association, indicates that the figure went over the million mark, although the exact figures are not given.

In two previous years the gross revenues in sports went over the million mark. For the year ended June 30, 1928, the gross sports figures was $1,119,280.10, out of which was paid $385,109.91 to visting teams, which left gross net revenues from sports of $734,170.19, which compares with $755,230.75 as the gross net in the 1929 report after payments had been made to visiting teams.

The expenses of seventeen departments of sports of $424,227.33 leaves an excess of revenue over expenses of $329,009.42. Deduction of expenses, such as interest, taxes and administration of $103,656.88, left a net revenue of $225,346.54, to which the surplus of June 30, 1928, is added, making the total $227,611.36, out of which came property accounts of $226,140.15, leaving the surplus on June 30 last as $1,471.21.

The association has net liabilities of $592,146.55 for real estate and advances on various projects for athletic development, but these liabilities are being reduced each year out of an appropriation made from the net revenues and from other sources.

ELEVEN AT BROWN POLISHES AIR GAME

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 31.—Forward passing featured Brown's football preparation for Holy Cross today. Coach McLaughry kept the first and second teams on the field practicing the passes, then switched to a detailed drill on a defense for the type of aerial game Holy Cross is expected to play.

Captain Bud Edwards was in uniform for the first time this week and participated in the signal drill, but there is some doubt that his ankle injury will permit him to start against Holy Cross. Eden is ready to fill his halfback post. Frank Gurll, quarterback, and Lee Marshall, fullback, returned to their regular posts. Schneider, another casualty in the Syracuse game, worked at centre and expects to start Saturday's game.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 31.—Despite a soggy field, Holy Cross's squad worked for more than two hours today perfecting a defense against the Brown plays and formations. Captain Clancy, O'Connell, McColl and Weiss were excused from the workout. All will be ready for Saturday's game except Weiss.

Griffin was at fullback for Clancy, Dougherty replaced O'Connell, with Baker back at his old post.

MARSTERS RETURNS TO DARTMOUTH TEAM

NIMS WILL BE AT GUARD

Crehan, However, Will Be Ready for Service—Youngstrom Emulates Booth—Squad Leaves Today.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 31.—Today for the first time this week the coaches managed to get the complete Dartmouth first team together for a fairly light workout. Al Marsters and Hal Andres were back in the line-up completely recovered from slight sprains. They ran through dummy and signal practice with their usual speed. Crehan, guard, reported in street clothes and followed the team, watching assignments he has missed.

Charley Nims will start in Crehan's place against Yale Saturday, but should he slow up Crehan will be ready for service. The coaches consider Crehan in shape, but wish to spare him because of his slow recovery, George Pettingill and Ed Rollins are both ready to back up Nims should they be needed.

Most of today's work was on defense against Yale plays, the three first elevens working against Swede Youngstrom's Blue team. Coach Cannell stressed defense against any forward passing Yale might do.

Youngstrom, Dartmouth line coach, stepped into the line-up of his blue-jerseyed team. He played the position Albie Booth will be in on Saturday, and succeeded in running and passing as Booth might be expected to.

The opening workout consisted of skeleton scrimmage for the reserve ends and tackles. Teams A and B were transferred to Memorial Field for dummy scrimmage on Green plays. Whitehair substituted for Booma in this work. With this exception the line-up was that which probably will start against Yale. It is believed that the Team B back field under Longnecker will see much service.

The squad of thirty-nine will entrain tomorrow morning with no further practice. The headquarters will be at the Hotel Bond in Hartford, Conn. The men will motor to New Haven Saturday morning.

TWO INJURED BACKS IN SHAPE FOR COLGATE

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Colgate's shortage of halfbacks caused by minor injuries to Stollwerck, Conroy and Terry, all within a couple of days, was relieved today when it became known that only Stollwerck would be lost to Colgate for the intersectional game with Hampden Sidney Saturday.

Stollwerck's muscle bruise has been mending slowly, but Conroy and Terry are expected back in uniform for the final signal drill tomorrow.

Coach Kerr kept his varsity and second teams intact throughout most of a two-hour formation drill today. He used Li'ster, a sophomore, in place of the veteran Macaluso at the bucking position, but shared the time at the ends between Sullivan, Stramiello, Orsi and Abruzzino. Confident of the strength of his team, the Colgate coach has ordered a daily rehearsal of the familiar formations as preparation for the Hampden-Sidney meeting.

ST. JOHN'S VARSITY DRILLS WITH JAYVEES

Goes Through Dummy Scrimmage at Dexter Park—Leaves for Baltimore Today.

Instead of staging its planned scrimmage with the junior varsity eleven, the St. John's College football team had a dummy scrimmage with the jayvees at Dexter Park yesterday on account of the rain. The practice was short and the jayvees demonstrated Loyola College plays to the regulars.

The St. John's squad, which will meet Loyola tomorrow, will leave today for Baltimore, where it will work out on Johns Hopkins University's field. Coach Lynch announced his starting team as follows:

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 31.—Princeton claims the distinction of having engaged in the first intersectional football contest, according to data recently uncovered in the university files. The Tigers also participated in the first football game ever to be played in the United States. In the first game ever played Princeton met Rutgers in 1869. The Rutgers eleven emerged victorious, 6-4.

Princeton played the University of Michigan here on Nov. 4, 1881, in the first intersectional gridiron contest. The account of the game with Michigan was found in an old scrapbook containing newspaper clippings, presented to the university by a member of the class of 1882. The account read: "The day was clear, the grounds in good condition, but the weather was exceedingly cold. This, combined with the high wind which prevailed during the entire game, rendered long-distance kicks or passes unsafe. Except in the absence of Horton of Michigan, both teams were in full force."

The line-ups were:

CITADEL BOWS, 27-14, TO SOUTH CAROLINA

BOINEAU GOES OVER TWICE

Special to The New York Times.

ORANGEBURG, S. C., Oct. 31.—The University of South Carolina defeated the Citadel eleven, 27 to 14 today. The Charleston cadets could not stay the strength and fleetness of the Carolina backs.

Boineau accounted for two Carolina touchdowns. A pass, Rhame to Stoddard, produced a third. The fourth was accomplished on a line plunge after the ball had been advanced on a series of passes, end runs and penalties.

The Citadel scored its first touchdown through the runs of Wilson and Whittington. A pass from Wilson after his 55-yard run produced the other.

South Carolina (27).		Citadel (14).
Powell	L.E.	Carlisle
Watson	L.T.	Roberts
Faughey	L.G.	Johns
Beall	C.	Skeelton
Leardo	R.G.	Quiesby

C. C. N. Y. CONCENTRATES ON LATERAL PASSING

The City College football squad went through its last scrimmage of the week last evening in preparation for the Rensselaer Polytech game at the Lewisohn Stadium tomorrow afternoon. The scrimmage was a long one and a hard one, taking up the major part of the three-hour practice period. It was played against the junior varsity, with the scrubs using Rensselaer plays.

Lavender backs were again groomed in the lateral-passing plays which worked successfully against George Washington last week, and it is extremely likely that this method of attack again will be used tomorrow. To this end Coach Parker had every back go through the lateral formations, with the Bienstock, Targum and Schlessinger combination working effectively. Harry Schneer and Morris Dulberg, auxiliary ball-carriers, who were substituted for the regulars later in the scrimmage, also took a turn at passes.

In the line Parker started the seven men who will probably open against R. P. I. tomorrow. At the ends he selected Sid Tatarsky and Gordon Lebowitz, Eddie Dubinsky and Sam Heinstein played at tackle, Tommy Atkins and Abe Marcus were at guard and George Timlansky was at centre.

ARMY WORKS LATE ON A SOGGY FIELD

SCRIMMAGE IS ABANDONED

Passing, Punting and Drill for Linemen in Fundamentals Occupy West Pointers.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Army practically finished its preparation for the South Dakota game today. Except for a light warm-up tomorrow afternoon the soldiers are ready. Today the men were worked until after dark, floodlights enabling them to carry on until supper time.

The continuance of the light rain which began falling yesterday made for a wet, soggy ball and treacherous footing. The scrimmage session with the scrubs originally planned for today had to be abandoned. "Soft" scrimmage, passing and punting were indulged in.

Linemen had a light workout and reverted to fundamentals such as blocking and tackling, with Head Coach Biff Jones doing the demonstrating.

Group work for the backs and ends held the attention of the squad following a blackboard lecture. During the chalk talk South Dakota plays were explained. The scrubs were at work on an adjoining field assimilating Illinois plays, with which they will test the Army's defenses in the practice sessions next week. Army meets Illinois at Champaign Nov. 9.

ROCKNE APOLOGIZES FOR SCOUT'S PRESENCE

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 31 (AP).—Explanation of an apparent violation of a football scouting pact between Georgia Tech and Notre Dame was made today in a telegram from Knute Rockne, coach of the South Bend eleven, to W. A. Alexander, gridiron mentor of the Yellow Jackets.

The telegram was in the form of an apology from Notre Dame for having a scout present last Saturday at the Tech-Tulane game in New Orleans. Rockne said confusion caused by his illness had resulted in the scout's being sent to New Orleans by mistake, and he assured Alexander that the information gathered there was not used in preparing for the game here this Saturday.

Rockne's telegram read:

"In stress and strain of illness past three weeks, got mixed up and Mills went to New Orleans and scouted you. However, assure you stuff not used. Looks like I will be in bed another three weeks, more or less. It's a tough situation. Hope we have a nice game Saturday. I apologize for Mills going to New Orleans. Was entirely my fault due to confusion. Kindest regards."

The Georgia Tech coach wired immediately in reply:

"Thanks for telegram. I figured the situation as it happened. Kindest regards and my best wishes for speedy recovery."

BOOKS CARNEGIE ELEVEN.

Georgia Tech to Suspend Series With Notre Dame for Two Years.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 31 (AP).—Negotiations were completed tonight for games between Carnegie Tech of Pittsburgh and Georgia Tech of Atlanta in 1930 and 1931, L. W. Robert of the Georgia Tech athletic board announced tonight. The games will take the place of the Notre Dame contests on the Georgia Tech schedule, it was explained.

The Georgians will play Carnegie next year in Pittsburgh and the 1931 game will be played in Atlanta.

Mr. Robert said that Notre Dame and Georgia Tech had agreed to suspend their football series for two years. The game next Saturday in Atlanta will be the last until 1932.

COLUMBIA PLAYERS LEAVE FOR CORNELL

BLEECKER IN FIRST LINE-UP

Columbia's football squad left for Ithaca last night, where it meets Cornell in the annual game tomorrow at Schoellkopf Field. Hopes of a Blue and White victory are running high among the supporters of Coach Crowley's team, and tonight a special train carrying hundreds of Columbia undergraduates and alumni will leave for Ithaca, insuring plenty of support for the Lions.

The Lions are scheduled to arrive in Ithaca early this morning and will make their headquarters at Freeville, ten miles outside of Ithaca. A light drill at Schoellkopf Field this afternoon will conclude Columbia's preparations.

Bleecker Works Out.

Captain Bleecker worked out yesterday with the first team, and indications point to his being able to play tomorrow. The hip injury which the Lion leader received early this week has responded to treatment.

The only regular whose condition is worrying Crowley is Joe Stanczyk, fleet-footed fullback. Stanczyk injured his right leg in the Dartmouth encounter and was kept out of the Williams contest last week. The loss of Rube Hall, reserve fullback, who started in Stanczyk's place against Williams, has necessitated Crowley being forced to play Stanczyk. Hall fractured his right wrist last Saturday and was being considered as the starting fullback against Cornell.

The Morningside squad went through a long dummy scrimmage yesterday at Baker Field, the first team opposing Mike Sesit's junior varsity eleven for more than an hour. Defensive tactics also were stressed.

Jayvees Use Cornell Plays.

Garbed in red jerseys and displaying the attack expected from Cornell, the junior varsity team gave the regulars a brisk session. No tackling was allowed and the plays were run through at half speed in order to familiarize the squad, especially the reserves, with the exact details of the Cornell attack.

The probable starting line-up of the Lions is: Van Voorhees and Edling, ends; Captain Bleecker and Tye, tackles; Banko annd Weinstock, guards; Campbell, centre; Liflander, quarterback; Hewitt and Scott, halfbacks; Stanczyk, fullback.

The personnel of the squad:

Ends—Van Voorhees, Edling, Art Hill, Fritz Costigan, Gordon Spencer, Charley Althaus, Art Weberman, Vic Nervistrom.
Tackles—Bleecker, Tye, Al Trinka, Carl Gansle.
Guards—Banko, Weinstock, Frank Nobbetti, Romeo Japar.
Centre—Campbell, Bill McDuffee, Shelley Wood, John Deems.
Quarterbacks—Liflander, Charley Joyce, Hashon Gulbransen.
Halfbacks—Hewitt, Scott, Earle Carlstar, Jimmy Sheridan, Tim Reilly, Don Mosser.
Fullbacks—Stanczyk, Bill Buser.

CORNELL PRACTICES ON INDIVIDUAL DUTIES

Ends, Backs and Linemen Drilled Separately for Columbia—Alexander at End.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 31.—With a light drill today, featured by the individual coaching of ends, backs and linemen, Cornell practically completed its work for the Columbia game here Saturday.

Charging practice for the linemen, punting and passing for the backs, and getting down under kicks for the ends, comprised the first half of the workout. The practice was concluded with signal drill.

Alexander, right end, again replaced Rousseau. If Alexander's injured knee permits, he will see action throughout the game. Blackstaff has apparently ousted Tuller at left guard, although the converted sophomore back gave a good account of himself against Princeton.

There were no changes in the back field, but the second-string set of backs has been brought along rapidly and has proved itself a powerful reserve unit. For this game at least, Cornell will have all its available players ready for action.

N. Y. U. Women's Team to Play.

The New York University women's field hockey team will play the Connecticut Agricultural College girls today at 3:30 o'clock in Central Park at Sixty-fifth Street. The Connecticut girls defeated the Violet team last week, 3 to 2.

Public Is Asked to Prevent Drinking at Vanderbilt Game

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 31 (AP).—The Vanderbilt University Athletic Association today issued a statement requesting "the cooperation of the public to prevent drinking and drunkenness at the Alabama game Saturday and the subsequent games."

The statement pointed out that "all tickets are sold subject to revocation, and the athletic association gives notice to the public, which includes the student body, that it will revoke the license of any who may be found drunk or drinking at the games."

The university authorities and the athletic board have joined in requesting the Chief of Police to furnish additional policemen to enforce this requirement, the statement added.

HARVARD TEAM SET FOR FLORIDA GAME

Long Signal Drill and Defense Against Rival's Plays Held —No Practice Today.

O'CONNELL NOT TO START

Ben Ticknor Likely to Be at Centre Against Southern Eleven—Wood Still at Quarterback.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 31.—The Harvard football eleven completed its preparation for the game with Florida today with a long signal drill on a slippery field and rather an intense defensive session against Florida plays. Roscoe Fitts, former Harvard and Columbia kicking coach, again did the punting on the run with one foot and then the other to emulate Quarterback Crabtree of Florida.

Tonight the varsity team was dismissed by Coach Horween with orders to keep away from the football field tomorrow. Therefore there will be no Friday practice and most of the varsity players will attend the annual game between the freshmen and the scrubs. It was definitely decided today that O'Connell will not start against Florida, although he will be on the field.

Gildea Definitely Out.

Ben Ticknor was not out for work today, nor was Gildea. Richards was at centre, but Ticknor is the more likely starter Saturday. Gildea is definitely out of the game.

Barry Wood continued at quarterback among the starters today and once again Elliot Putnam was at left halfback. Putnam also ran the team, while Mayo returned to the back field with Devens and Harper. Using Wood with the regulars may be something which may not work out, but the fact that Wetmore will be the first quarterback replacement in the Florida game indicates that Putnam's tryout as a halfback will be thorough.

Kuehn continues to keep ahead of Davis and Faxon for the berth at left tackle, while Bill Ticknor, if he does play tackle, will again simply shift with Captain Barrett in some of the running plays.

Wood Is Good Punter.

Halfback Huguley has practically no chance to get into Saturday's game, which is another reason it is desired to have Wood in the back field. Next to Huguley, Wood is the best punter on the team.

A crowd of 40,000 is expected Saturday and during the afternoon there will be a play-by-play report of the game at New Haven between Dartmouth and Yale.

Harvard's last rush line line-up included Harding and Douglas, ends; Barrett and Kuehn, tackles; Trainor and W. Ticknor, guards, and Richards, centre.

FLORIDA SQUAD CONFIDENT.

Drills at Washington for Test With Harvard Tomorrow.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—A confident University of Florida football squad worked out at the Georgetown University field today, en route to Cambridge where it meets Harvard on Saturday.

Fresh from their triumph over Georgia last Saturday, the Gators were in high spirits with Coach Bachman sending the team through a course of limbering up drills and signal exercises. Even a few aerial were unleashed.

The Gators will present a novelty at Soldiers Field Saturday in an effort to reverse the decision gained by Harvard in the last game between the two institutions in 1922. Today on the Hilltop field the entire squad was repeating the signals in sing-song manner after they had been called by the quarterback and the men swung into action at the given number with all the rhythm of a symphony.

CHANGE IN LEHIGH LINE.

Elkin Replaces Insel at End in Practice for Muhlenberg.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Oct. 31.—The Lehigh University squad engaged in light practice today in preparing for the annual invasion of Muhlenberg. The starting back field had Davidson calling signals, with Pinkney and Pitts at halfback and Van Blarcom at fullback. It was believed this would be the starting quartet.

The line was the same as on previous days, with the exception that Phil Elkin was at left wing instead of Bill Insel. At the other wing post was Bob Mazy. Myers, a sophomore tackle, promoted to the varsity this week, replaced Haas. William (Tubby) Miller was at the other tackle berth. The guards were Tommy Ayre and Bill Blackmar, while Joe McLernon was snapping the ball.

PRINCETON READY FOR CHICAGO CLASH

Roper Is Pleased With Snap and Spirit Shown in Practice—Expects Hard Game.

RESERVE BACKS NEEDED

Tigers, Trailing at 18-7, Made Uphill Fight to Win Last Contest in 1922 by 21-18.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 31.—Whenever football men gather to swap experiences and talk over the memorable games of the past, almost unfailingly the subject comes around sooner or later to the never-to-be-forgotten struggle between Princeton and Chicago in the mid-West in 1922.

In that game a Princeton team that had no claim to distinction other than the characteristic of all Roper elevens—its vigilance to capitalize the mistakes of its opponents and the genius for doing the unexpected in the pinch—came from behind in the final period, when trailing at 18 to 7, to win by the margin of 21-18.

That victory evened the score between Princeton and Chicago, for the year before the Maroon had come East to gain a 9-0 victory in Palmer Stadium. On Saturday, Alonzo Stagg, the dean of football coaches, with a record of thirty-eight years of service on the midway, will bring another Chicago team to Princeton and, in spite of the fact that the mid-Westerners have not had an impressive season to date and have been badly bit by injuries in the back field, Bill Roper and his assistants are looking for another bang-up fight.

Two Are Left Behind.

Two of the strongest back field members of Stagg's cast, Burgess and Temple, have been left behind to nurse injuries, according to word from Chicago.

The snap and spiritedness with which the Tigers went through today's practice session, which included a half hour's scrimmage and during which considerable time was spent on passing and kicking, indicated the dangerous mood in which the Maroon will find Princeton. There wasn't a wasted moment, with Roper, in hip boots; Keene Fitzpatrick, Al Wittmer, Stan Keck, Johnny Stinson and Rosengarten driving the men at top speed on a muddy field.

At the end Roper expressed himself as entirely pleased with the spirit of the team. Its comeback in the Navy game was the tip-off that the Tigers have at last found themselves, and Roper declared that it wasn't only in the last five minutes of that game when they scored two touchdowns that his charges showed their fighting qualities, but that their work had pleased him from the very start.

Well Fixed in Line.

"We are badly off for reserve backs," said the Princeton coach, "but we are well fixed in the line, even with Moore out, and the boys are giving everything they have."

The team will line up with Hitty Leo and Yeckley at the ends, Captain White and Barfield at the tackles, Duncan and Mestres at the guards, Caldwell at centre and Witmer, quarterback; Scarlett and Lowry, halves, and Zundel, fullback. Trix Bennett will substitute for Wittmer, Levick for Zundel, and Reinmund, Janney, Carey and Vogt are in reserve as halfbacks.

25 ON CHICAGO SQUAD.

Maroons Entrain for Princeton Game—Leave Two Backs Behind.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31 (AP).—Coach Amos Alonzo Stagg and twenty-six of his University of Chicago football players departed at noon today for their intersectional skirmish with Princeton.

Red Burgess and Joe Temple, regular halfbacks, were left home to recover from injuries, while the rest of the squad was in fair condition. Pain forced Stagg to give up plans for a short workout before entrainment. The Maroons will stop at Trenton, N. J., tomorrow, going over to Princeton for a workout in the afternoon.

LIGHT PRACTICE IS HELD.

Wesleyan's Sophomore Back Field Makes Good Showing.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Oct. 31.—Coach Wood drilled his Wesleyan charges on a soggy field today. There was no hard work for the varsity because of the heavy casualty list. Drive and speed were emphasized, and the sophomore back field, which will be used against Trinity on Saturday, worked well.

Wood himself called the numbers in a signal drill on some of the plays which will be used against the Blue and Gold. Wells, who was injured in the Bowdoin game, is back in the line-up and will play this week-end.

Running Plays Stressed by N.Y.U. in Practice

N. Y. U. PUTS STRESS ON RUNNING PLAYS

AERIAL DEFENSIVE SOUGHT

With only two days remaining prior to the game with Georgetown, Coach Chick Meehan took the New York University varsity football team to the Yankee Stadium yesterday and sent it through a two hours' drill in a rain. The practice was designed mainly to perfect the Violet's running plays.

Besides a rehearsal of formations which N. Y. U. will use against the Blue and Gray, the drill consisted of kicking, passing and signal practice with a wet ball. Four teams were used in the signal drill, which went off smoothly and with much precision.

Meehan had Charlie Marshall and John O'Herin practicing punting for more than thirty minutes, Marshall several times booting the muddy ball over fifty-five yards. In the passing drill Vic Connor, Al Gaudet and Beryl Follet threw the passes, with Jerry Nemecek and Marshall on the receiving end. Several of Connor's throws exceeded forty-five yards.

The Violet coach expects Georgetown to launch an aerial barrage against the N. Y. U. eleven and has spent considerable time in building up a defense against this type of attack. The Hilltoppers have a light but shifty back field and the forward passing game has been their forte.

Although Coach Meehan substituted men frequently during the signal drill, Team A, composed of Follet, Myers, O'Herin and La Mark in the back field and Nemecek and Marshall, ends; Concannon and Captain Grant, tackles; Sargisson and Chalmers, guards, and Schneider centre, received the major share of the attention and gave the impression that the Violet coach intends to start this line-up tomorrow.

The Violet squad will go through a short workout today at the Yankee Stadium and then will leave for the Travers Island home of the New York A. C. until shortly before game time. This is the first time that Meehan has ever taken this step to insure privacy for the team previous to a home contest.

MOONEY, GEORGETOWN, INJURED IN SCRIMMAGE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—A severe blow was dealt the Georgetown eleven today on the eve of departure for New York, where N. Y. U. will be met Saturday. Captain Jim Mooney came out of the final preparatory scrimmage with a cut above his left eye which required four stitches to close.

At Union Station today as the squad entrained Coach Lou Little announced that the big tackle and star punter will be in the game regardless of the severe laceration, but he feared the injury might cause his removal from the game.

The problem of devising some kind of protecting guard for the injury was uppermost in Little's mind. It is probable that some innovation will be developed to that end.

Mooney's absence from the engagement would be a serious blow to the Hilltop squad as his punting is expected to play a major role in the battle.

Georgetown Team Arrives.

RUTGERS SHIFTS MADE TO SPEED BACK FIELD

Greenberg Sent to Fullback in Practice—Horton and Roberts Used at Left Half.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 31.—Trying to speed up the Rutgers back field, Coach Harry Rockafeller made two changes in the line-up today, but has not announced whether they will be permanent. Greenberg was shifted to fullback and George Latimer, fast sophomore halfback, replaced Greenberg in that position.

Horton and Roberts alternated at left half and Drake again called signals. Grossman was not used during the early part of the session, but it is not likely that he will be replaced at fullback.

Tom Smoyer returned to right tackle, replacing Fischer, who was in the line-up yesterday, and Julien was used at left end. Digney being drilled in defensive plays with the team.

Squad Divided Into Two Teams Tries Mass. Aggies Formations.

Special to The New York Times.

AMHERST, Mass., Oct. 31.—The Amherst College football squad, divided into two elevens, went through a forty-five-minute scrimmage today to get accustomed to the M. A. C. formations and plays.

The first team was made up of varsity regulars, while the second-string men represented the Aggie eleven, and optimism was expressed by Coaches Wheeler and Stallings over the way in which the varsity repeatedly turned back its opponents. The offense also was stressed, but at present is rather weak due to the temporary loss of the team's best running backs, Grosskreutz and Homer.

FORDHAM VARSITY DRILLS WITH CUBS

PRACTICE IS HELD INDOORS

Long Signal Session Completes Day's Work—Maroons to Be Guests of N. Y. U.

Rain yesterday forced the Fordham football squad indoors, where Coach Frank Cavanaugh had his men go through a long drill in signals and in perfecting a defense for the aerial game which it is expected the West Virginia team will use in its game with the Maroon eleven on election day at the Polo Grounds.

The varsity lined up with Kloppenburg and Davis, ends; Foley and Cannella, tackles; Wisniewski and Tracey, guards, and Captain Siano, centre. Pieculewicz, Fisher, Murphy and McMahon were in the back field.

In the drill, Coach McNamara of the yearlings, who scouted the Southerners, worked with the freshmen against the varsity. The first-year men used the West Virginia air game, while the first-string team watched the scrubs attempt to break up the formations. After each play, Coach Cavanaugh stopped the proceedings to give a detailed explanation to the entire squad. He then put his regular line-up on the defensive while the scrubs looked on. Captain Siano and Jim Murphy again were the main figures in breaking up the pass formations.

The day's activities were closed with a long signal drill, with Fisher running the team. Johnny O'Shea called the signals for the second team and he is likely to see service in one of the two games which the Maroon will play next week. Cavanaugh is giving all of his substitutes plenty of signal practice since he expects to use them frequently in the next two contests. Fordham plays Boston College four days after the game with West Virginia.

Jack Cottey announced that the ticket sale for the game with Fra Rodger's Mountaineers is the biggest since the N. Y. U. contest. The Fordham players will be the guests of N. Y. U. tomorrow and will witness the Violet's battle with Georgetown.

WEST VIRGINIA TAPERS OFF.

Special to The New York Times.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 31.—With the abandonment of hard work as preparation for the game with Fordham at New York Tuesday, the West Virginia University squad is certain to be in physical condition for a hard game, it was reported today. Eddie Bartrug, halfback and only cripple, is recovering rapidly.

OCTUPLE SCULL USED BY PRINCETON OARSMEN

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 31.—An innovation in rowing equipment in the form of an octuple scull was tried out by oarsmen at Princeton University for the first time today. The idea of the boat was conceived by John Schultz, rigger at the university boat house. The new boat has been named Princeton 2d in honor of the Princeton 1, a shell launched in 1874 and the first boat ever to be put on the waters at Princeton.

The new rig calls for eight scullers instead of eight sweepswingers. It was built by rerigging an old shell with new seat slides and foot braces. A complete set of oars and other accessories needed to complete the boat were presented to the university by an anonymous donor.

In the first tryout of the boat Coach Gordon Sikes of the 150-pound crews, and a former varsity coxswain, held his old position again. The other members of the first crew were picked in accordance with the results of recent sculling races. The work-out consisted of a row up to the dam and back.

Rutgers Back Gains 14 Pounds Since Start of the Season

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 31.—Jack Grossman, fullback on the Rutgers varsity football team, has gained fourteen pounds since the start of the season. He now weighs 204 pounds.

Grossman, a sophomore and a star of last year's freshman team, is the fastest man on the Scarlet eleven. He is a triple threat man and is one of the most consistent ground gainers on the team. In the Catholic University game last Saturday Grossman ran 60 yards to a touchdown after receiving a punt.

PURDUE TEAM OFF TO FACE WISCONSIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 31 (AP).—While Big Ten football teams which will become invading forces Saturday were taking short workouts this afternoon before catching trains, their hosts went through long mid-week practices.

Purdue dashed through an offense drill in rain and mud before leaving, thirty-four strong, for Madison, where it will risk its championship chances against the Badgers Saturday. Woerner was at the end vacated by Eb Caraway's injury, while Trimble worked at Stears's guard spot, although the latter is expected to be in shape to start against the Badgers. A big demonstration was held as the squad left Lafayette.

Coach Thistlethwaite drove the Badgers through a long defensive session against Purdue plays. Rain and mud failed to shorten the drill, Wisconsin's last before it attempts to upset the rampant Boilermakers.

The Illinois varsity looked much better than at any time this week against Northwestern plays. The squad will leave for Chicago tomorrow noon.

Coach Dick Hanley sent his enthusiastic Northwestern squad through a defensive drill against Illini plays. The air of optimism persisted at Evanston. Hanley concentrated on his sophomore halfbacks, on which the burden of gaining against Zuppke's veterans rests.

Indiana also put in a short session on a muddy field before heading for Minneapolis, where it hopes to surprise and upset Minnesota's giants Saturday. Coach Page took thirty-one men, including several still afflicted with minor injuries. The Gophers received another long lesson in halting Hoosier plays.

Chicago's Maroons left at noon for Princeton, N. J., while Ohio State drilled for the last time before starting its journey to Pittsburgh.

Rain and cold weather drove the Michigan squad into the field house, where Coach Harry Kipke polished up the Wolverine's blocking and tackling. Michigan will be idle Saturday, as will Iowa. The Hawkeyes' varsity line reported after a three-day vacation and performed brilliantly in stopping the freshmen, who used Minnesota formations.

BOSTON COLLEGE KEPT BUSY

Special to The New York Times.

NEWTON, Mass., Oct. 31.—The Boston College varsity got its first experience handling a wet ball today when Coach McKenney, who hitherto has sent the Eagles through their drills indoors during rainy weather, gave the entire squad a long session outside, polishing the attack for the Duke game Saturday.

The practice included a long punting drill and the centres had plenty of opportunity to handle the slippery ball in signal drill. Dummy scrimmage against Duke formations wound up the day.

MANHATTAN LEAVES TODAY.

Team Will Play Catholic University in Washington Tomorrow.

The football squad of Manhattan College will leave today for Washington, where the Jasper eleven will oppose Catholic University tomorrow.

The squad was sent through a signal drill yesterday in the school gymnasium which lasted about an hour. Coach Joe Schwarzer announced that James Giangreco probably would start at right guard in place of Search Cohen, who sustained an injury to his leg in the game against St. John's College last week.

NAVY SQUAD HOLDS FINAL SCRIMMAGE

Varsity Completes Hard Work for Tomorrow's Clash With Penn—Many Changes Made.

GUARD PLACES IN DOUBT

Swan and Chapple Go In for Captain Koepke and Eddy—Fullback Clifton Expected to Play.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 31.—Navy's hard work in preparation for the game with the University of Pennsylvania eleven in Philadelphia Saturday was completed today with a scrimmage, the varsity working against Squad B under game conditions.

Squad B was fortified by the presence in its back field of Whitey Lloyd, big halfback of last year's team. Lloyd ran back the first kick-off for fifty-five yards and made some good runs from scrimmage.

Coach Ingram changed both back field and line frequently during the practice and was by no means satisfied with the work of some of his linemen. At one point he took out Captain Koepke and Eddy, who were expected to start in the guard positions Saturday, and substituted Swan and Chapple, and the starters in these positions are now in much doubt.

Though Johnny Gannon took a full part in the scrimmage, Ingram said that he would not start him against Pennsylvania. Gannon has not played in a game this season on account of injuries, and Ingram thinks it would be a mistake to start him, though he expects to use him in part of the game.

On the other hand, Joe Clifton, big fullback, has progressed so well that he will probably start. Clifton had an almost useless arm up to Monday but simply would not hear of being out of the Penn game. The next day he was moving his arm freely and at present he seems to be in the best condition of the season.

With Clifton starting, Joe Bauer will be shifted to a wing position, Dale Bauer dropping out. The other backs will be Spring and Castree. This is the back field which started against Princeton. Spring was the most effective of the varsity backs during the scrimmage.

PENN TEAM DRILLS AT SEAVIEW CLUB

Squad Will Remain at Seashore Near Absecon Until Time for Navy Game.

Special to The New York Times.

ABSECON, N. J., Oct. 31.—Pennsylvania's varsity football squad of thirty-four players lost no time getting in togs after its arrival at the Seaview Golf Club today.

The Red and Blue, roused to a fighting pitch for the annual clash with the Navy at Franklin Field on Saturday, will remain at the seashore until a few hours before the game.

Under dull gray skies and with a light rain falling the varsity went through an offensive drill on the fairways. Passing and kicking were stressed.

Coach Lou Young had Hart Wilner, Walt Masters, Dick Gentile and Walter Opekun in the first-string back field and they probably will start against the Middies. Warren Gette, promising sophomore fullback, may alternate with Opekun.

Although Paul Riblett, flashy right end, has missed most of the practice this week on account of illness, he is expected to start the game with Sydney Gervin at the other wing. The latter has not played since the California game. Johnny Ball, veteran end, is also in shape again and may see action.

The players who made the trip to Seaview are: Captain John Ulr, Al Ratowsky, Warren Gette, Harry Warren, Walter Masters, Sydney Gervin, John Harrison, Bill Beaumont, John Ball, Tom Barrett, Bob Cullen, Jerry Ford, Bill Grumpner, Carlton Foster, Lew Harper, Joe Olexy, Nate Parry, Mort Wilner, Dick Gentle, Ralf Carlsten, Cassley Jump, Walter Opekun, Walter Magal, Frank Merrick, John Olsen, Charley Green, Bill Williams, John Osborne, Paul Riblett, George Stanford, Bill Ruffel, Curtis Morris, Len Tanseer and Jack Robinson.

N. Y. U. Cubs to Play Today.

College of Ozarks Wins, 6 to 0.

CONWAY, Ark., Oct. 31 (AP).—The college of Ozarks defeated the State Teachers' College eleven today, 6 to 0.

GOOD STILL SEEKS ARMY-NAVY ACCORD

TO CONFER WITH NAVY HEAD

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Notwithstanding the widened breach in football relations between the United States Military and Naval Academies as a result of the conference here yesterday of their two superintendents, Major Gen. William R. Smith and Rear Admiral Samuel S. Robison, Secretary of War Good and Secretary of the Navy Adams stand ready to continue their efforts to find a solution of the impasse over the three-year eligibility rule.

That there is not much prospect of success in the near future, however, was conceded at both the War and Navy Departments today. Even Secretary Good, in stating that he stood ready to attempt a reconciliation through conferences with Secretary Adams, said that, while he was eager to have the relations resumed, this should be done only under the conditions obtaining prior to the break two years ago.

Secretary Adams Silent.

Secretary Adams had no comment to make today but in his statement yesterday at the conclusion of the conference between the two superintendents revealed himself as standing as firmly behind Rear Admiral Robison as Secretary Good is behind Major Gen. Smith.

Both Cabinet officers took an active interest in the situation for the first time several weeks ago after President Hoover had suggested the desirability of having football relations resumed between the two academies. Interest in the situation has now turned to the possibility of further influence being exerted, either from the White House or from Congress, which also is eager to see the football games resumed between the two institutions.

Colleges May Have Some Voice.

It is recognized, however, that the college football world may have some voice in the matter through the possibility of a further development in its attitude toward the three-year eligibility rule. The Military Academy holds that the rule is designed primarily for colleges and universities and that it is unnecessary at either West Point or Annapolis, where high systems of honor obtain.

The navy has offered modifications of the three-year rule to the army, only to have them rejected, and in the circumstances it was felt at the Navy Department today that no further steps could be taken unless the navy was prepared to recede entirely from its position. There is as yet no sign of such a development.

Britten Censures Army's Stand.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (AP).—Representative Britten, chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee, today censured the position taken by the West Point authorities in not changing their rules of athletic eligibility so as to adhere to the three-year rule of participation, and expressed the hope that the government officials "would direct West Point to get together with Annapolis and reach a compromise on the regulations for the participation of athletes," in a statement here today.

He added that under the present rules the Naval Academy was "handicapped" in its athletic contests with West Point.

The position of Major Gen. William R. Smith, Superintendent of the Military Academy, in maintaining his stand was characterized by Britten as "showing that West Point is afraid to meet Annapolis unless given a favorable handicap." Britten said that if West Point maintained its present position it would mean there would be no Winter or Spring sports competition between the two academies.

WILLIAMS TRIES SIGNALS.

Stress Is Laid on Forward Pass in Long Practice Session.

Special to The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Oct. 31.—Coach Caldwell eliminated the regular Williams football practice today in preparation for the Union game Saturday, but gave the varsity a long signal drill in which plays and formations were used. Fowle, star halfback, was missing from the varsity line-up, but is expected to be back tomorrow.

Stress was laid on the forward pass. The first-string linesmen received special instruction on defense.

HOST HOME FIRST IN FORDHAM STAKES

CAPITAL TO MARGARET CAL

By VERNON VAN NESS.

Host was just that to a happy army of brave souls who traveled in the rain to Empire City yesterday and then took heed of the blazing hot tip which flashed around the course just before the running of the Fordham Claiming Stakes, the afternoon's feature.

Bob Odom saddled the three-year-old colt, which is owned by A. W. Wentzel, and though the colt had not raced since the Jamaica meeting and had not won since the session at Aqueduct, he was in fine fettle for this particular test of a mile and seventy yards.

There were only three against him, and the consensus was that the T. M. Cassidy pair of Turf Writer and Indian Scout would have the race all to themselves. On this basis, the entry was favored at 7 to 10 and gained wide support, with Host held at 8 to 5 until the tip on him floated around, whereat his price dropped to 3 to 2 and closed at these figures, while his supporters scampered to back him.

Scores by a Half-Length.

At the end of the race, Host had a margin of half a length, going easily and with enough left to have made it more if he had been pressed and if Jockey Fisher had thought the occasion demanded more at the finish. Turf Writer was second and Joe Marrone III was third. Since the entry was out for place and Joe Marrone III was out for show money, there was no consolation whatever for the form players and the jubilation was only for Host's guests.

Elston, with a double to his credit for the day, had the mount on Indian Scout and took him to the front when the four broke slowly but evenly. With Turf Writer at his heels, Indian Scout made the going into the stretch and right up to the furlong pole. At this juncture, however, Fisher made his move on Host and brought him up to the Cassidy pair.

Indian Scout had enough by that time and slipped out of the picture. Host went to the front and quickly gained a length lead, but wasn't pressed even though Turf Writer came along fast. The latter made some gain in the final fifty yards, but did not loom dangerously. The race was won last year by the Canyon Stable's Peavo. Considering the slow track, Host's time of 1:46 was good.

Eight maidens went to the post in the Capitol Purse at six furlongs and a wave of last minute betting cut down the price on Margaret Cal from 11 to 5 to 3 to 2 to make her the favorite. She won by a head from Jove, the third choice, and Sun Pride, the second choice, was third.

Margaret Cal Off in Front.

Margaret Cal got off in front, and without undue urging by Jockey Wholey led the field the entire distance. In the last fifty yards it looked as though Jove would catch the filly, but W. Smith failed to force the issue and lost the decision. However, the result served to hearten the form players after they had been beaten in the opening race.

The next race, however, tumbled a favorite when P. S. P. Randolph's chestnut gelding, Sturdy, under a well judged ride by Elston, got the verdict by half a length. The form players literally suffered from the start in this race for the favorite, Peter, dwelt at the post when George Cassidy got the field of nine away. Rose Omar broke on top and set the pace to the final furlong with Tin Hat close by and Sturdy next. Peter came from last to a contending spot but could not catch the leaders.

At the sixteenth pole, Elston set Sturdy down and he had enough speed and courage left to go to the front and win under a drive. He paid 11 to 5 and the triumph gave Elston a double, for he had ridden Flying Max in the first race.

Smart Field Is Named for the $70,000 Classic, Feature of Track Opening.

COE'S ENTRY IS FAVORED

Caruso and Black Majesty to Carry Colors of New Yorker—Muddy Track Is Forecast.

By BRYAN FIELD.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 31.—Hallowe'en night in this city finds the natives deeply interested in what may prove to be Maryland's richest race, exceeding in value even the classic Preakness. Football and the stock market are forgotten in a discussion of the merits of the seventeen youngsters which have been named for the tenth Pimlico Futurity, which will gross more than $70,000 if all go to the post.

A gloomy, rainy day drew to a close, leaving the prospect for a muddy track for the inaugural tomorrow of the Maryland Jockey Club's Fall meeting, which, figuratively, will put its best foot forward with the Futurity as the opening number.

A capacity crowd of 30,000 is expected to witness the race, which is over the mile and one-sixteenth distance for the first time. Crowding and intereference, which frequently occurred when the race was started from the mile post, which was near a turn, caused the change to the longer distance. If seventeen go to the post it will set a new record in the number of starters.

Whitney Stars Not to Run.

New York is strongly represented in the test, which was won last year by High Strung, the outstanding 2-year-old of that year. This year Whichone, Boojum and Hi-Jack, the three placed horses in the Belmont Futurity, are missing from the race because of Harry Payne Whitney's decision to retire his great pair of 2-year-olds and the mishap which overtook Hi-Jack. But there is class in plenty in the race, and W. R. Coe's pair of Caruso and Black Majesty look like the favorites.

Caruso was kept out of the Spalding-Lowe-Jenkins Handicap with a view to shooting him in the Futurity. He is the iron horse that has been campaigned so heavily this year, winning several stakes and gaining third behind Boojum and Whichone in the Hopeful. Whitney has entered a pair in Mad Kiss and Murky Cloud, but these two have only a little of the class of Boojum and Whichone, and are outsiders.

William S. Fleischer's Splinch, Walter J. Salmon's Swinfield and Clifford A. Cochran's Flying Heels and M. L. Schwartz's Quarter Deck are among the other New York owned horses named. A. L. Alexandre's smart filly Red Rag is here for the race, after her great performances in and about New York.

Carries Hopes of West.

Galaday, another filly, which will carry the hopes of the West, is considered a formidable competitor. Caruso is being more highly regarded as he is asked to carry only 122 pounds, which is heavy enough for such a race, but still considerably less than he has toted in previous tests, which he has won or come close to winning.

The day's program will be the beginning of a thirteen-day meeting which is expected to be among the best in the history of the Maryland Jockey Club.

MORDROM BRINGS TOP OF $3,800 AT SALE

Allen Pays Highest Price at Empire City—Butler Sells String of Eighteen for $10,835.

Mordrom, a son of Morvich and Dromore, brought the top price at the Fasig-Tipton sale of horses in training in the paddock at Empire City yesterday. He is four years old and only recently won the Rainbow Stakes. He brought $3,800, being purchased by H. P. Allen. He was owned by Benjamin Block, who also disposed of three others, all sons of Morvich. His Mottree went for $800, Morpat for $600, and Morlon for $400, all three to J. Byer.

The Beginner, sold for dissolve a partnership, was bought by H. J. Fry for $1,500. This was the second highest price paid at the sale. On the whole the figures were low and the bidding unexciting. Johnny Callahan, former jockey, now a trainer and owner, sold Lady Peggy for $100. Temerity was disposed of by the Raritan Stable for $225.

The same stable sold Bridesmaider for $625; W. A. Rosen sold Anthony for $250; Prince Boso went for $200; Bo Ballot brought $600; Cadiz brought $200; Torrent, $700; Sugar Heart, $100; Glen Eagle, $440; Plama Wings, $600; Bootlop, $310.

Little Sport went for $175, being sold by Bud Fisher to W. McMath. Mount Streets sold for $150; Flying Yankee $50, and Vanita Boy $35.

In a later and separate sale, James Butler, owner at Empire City, sold eighteen of his stable, practically all of which had been bred at his East View Farm. The highest price paid was for Mote, a 5-year-old son of Spur and Motte. He went to George Phillips for $1,500. As a juvenile Butler had great hopes for Mote, but he went to the post only once as a 2-year-old and finished second. However, he started as a 3-year-old and won several stakes but at 4 and 5 he has not been a top-flight horse. All told the Butler sale netted $10,835.

OLD KICKAPOO WINS IN MUD AT AURORA

Foster's Entry Takes Moveaway Handicap, Feature Event of the Closing Day.

AURORA, Ill., Oct. 31 (AP).—The Fall meeting of the Exposition Park Jockey Club wound up the racing program today under dismal conditions, rain falling throughout the afternoon, making the track a sea of mud.

The Moveaway Handicap, a sprint of five and one-half furlongs, for all ages, the featured attraction, was won by O. L. Foster's Old Kickapoo, with Trieze, from Lewis & Kemp's Stable, a close second, and Old Dutch, from J. D. Ferguson's string, third. Gold Mint saved his entrance fee when he finished fourth. Only six started. The event was worth $750 to the winner, which paid his backers $4.78 for a $2 mutuel ticket.

Old Kickapoo, always close up, went into the lead at the three-furlong pole and, though tiring in the stretch, was ridden out to win by a length. Trieze, away slowly, improved his position to the stretch, where he came fast, but could not get up, and finished second, two lengths in front of Old Dutch.

HAS 13 PARS, 5 BIRDIES

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 31.—Horton Smith of Joplin, Mo., the young professional who was the leading money winner in the open golf tournaments last Winter, returned a score of 67, five under par, over the Columbia Country Club course today to head a field of 116 starters in the first round of the Oregon open championship.

Smith stroked his way around to thirteen pars and five birdies by sheer accuracy with his putter. Several times he was called upon to hole difficult putts, some of them as long as eight feet, but he never missed, and usually his ball was rapped with unmistakable confidence straight into the centre of the hole.

Two young homebreds completed the eighteen holes several strokes behind the leader. E. Dudley of Wilmington, Del., and Mortie Dutra of Tacoma, Wash., tied at 69, and Craig Wood of Bloomfield, N. J., was 70, two under par.

Walter Hagen, British open champion; Tommy Armour, former United States open champion; Neil Christian, the Oregon P. G. A. champion, and Olin Dutra of Los Angeles, winner of the San Bernardino open this year, were grouped at 71.

The defending titleholder, Dr. O. F. Willing, the local dentist who was runner-up in this year's national amateur championship, had a score of 73.

The field will be cut to fifty and ties after the second round tomorrow. The final thirty-six holes will be played Saturday.

Two Major Leaguers Embark On Tour of World as Seamen

Sailoring has become the job of two professional baseball players in their leisure season, according to The Associated Press. Ray Dobens of the Boston Red Sox pitching staff and Con Hurley, an outfielder, formerly with Toledo and now slated to go South with the Senators next Spring, are ordinary seamen on the liner President Garfield on a cruise around the world.

They will hit twenty-two ports, including Singapore on Christmas Day, and will be back Feb. 2, in time for the Southern jaunt. Dobens and Hurley were teammates at Holy Cross College. They casually announced that they were going to sea and sailed from here on the President Garfield on Wednesday.

FAIRWAY ALSO IS VICTOR

Lord Derby's Entry Captures the Jockey Club Cup—Palais Royal Second, Saracen Third.

NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 31 (AP).—Lord Dewar's two-year-old filly, Grace Dalrymple, won the Dewhurst Stakes today by a length and a half from A. B. Walker's Bennachie. The Aga Khan's Taj Shirin finished third. The race was the last of the two-year-old championship events of the flat-racing season.

The winner, a filly by Gainsborough-Cypher, started at five to two against, Bennachie at 100 to 8 and Taj Shirin at 100 to 8. Seven two-year-olds ran. The distance was seven furlongs.

Lord Derby's Fairway cantered to the wire to win the Jockey Club Cup by three lengths from Palais Royal, with Saracen third and last, four lengths back.

Fairway, by Phalaris-Scapa Flow, winner of the classic St. Leger a year ago, started odds-on favorite at four to six. Palais Royal was at seven to four and Saracen 100 to 8. The race was over the 2¼ mile course.

DEAL TO SELL BROWNS REPORTED IN TORONTO

Price Is Put at $2,750,000—Denials of Proposed Sale Made in St. Louis.

TORONTO, Oct. 31 (AP).—The Toronton Star today reported that A. D. Bell, passenger traffic manager of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company is negotiating with Phil Ball, owner of the St. Louis American League of Baseball Club, for the purchase of the Browns at a price of $2,750,000.

The matter will be discussed on the hunting grounds of Northern Ontario where Mr. Bell, Mr. Ball and others will be guests at the home of Edward Bridges of MacGregor Bay.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 31 (AP).—Both officials of the St. Louis Browns and the Missouri Pacific Railroad denied reports from Toronto that the local American League club had been sold or that negotiations to that end were under way.

A. B. Sharp, secretary to A. D. Bell, passenger traffic manager of the Missouri Pacific, issued the following statement:

"E. H. Reynolds, assistant to President Baldwin of the Missouri Pacific, stated there must be some mistake in the story and emphatically denied that the Missouri Pacific or any official of it is interested in the sale or acquisition of the Browns or any other baseball club."

At President Ball's office his secretary declared that these had not been any talk of selling the Browns.

Sports of the Times

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

By JOHN KIERAN.

SEGMENTS from recent conversations on the general subject of the well-known game of intercollegiate football:

"That was funny when Detroit and Dayton were playing a night game, and all the lights went out as Detroit started an end run."

"What happened?"

"The play stopped. Everybody on the field stopped dead."

"Seems to me it would have been a cinch for the ball carrier to walk down in the dark and score a touchdown."

"Yeah, but the lad with the ball said afterward that he got confused and couldn't see which way to run in the dark. He was afraid of going the wrong way."

"You officiated up at one of those Syracuse night games, didn't you? How do they go?"

"Fine. They draw big crowds. The players have no trouble handling the ball, either. The only difference I notice is that you don't get the color in the crowd that you get in afternoon games. The stands are dark, and you can't see—you know—the flowers, pennants, fancy hats and coats and all of that."

A Debate Over Measurements.

"Say, how do you turn the ball when you want to measure it for a first down."

"The ball should be placed just as it was held by the ball carrier when he was downed."

"You referees waste a lot of time measuring on second downs. It holds up the drive of a team. I'd rather have my team concede that it isn't a first down."

"You can't concede it if the other team wants it measured. They can do that just to get a temporary halt if they wish."

"Is that so? He comes from up our way. Quincy High School. I never thought he'd be a great player."

"Well, he looks like a great player to me."

"Talking about football teams, that Davis and Elkins outfit is good. They made about three substitutions in the whole game, and they didn't even take a drink of water between quarters. Just walked down the field and stood there, waiting for the referee to hurry up with the ball."

Just Guessing.

"How about Yale and Dartmouth?"

"That's too tough to pick, but I like Dartmouth—swell ends, a string of fine backs and a good line."

"Well, I like Yale. Say, by the way, what did Cagle say to you when he was leaving the game at Cambridge."

"Oh, yes. I mean to bring that up. Hutchinson came in to substitute for him. I asked Red who would be captain. He said 'Hutchinson.' Then he said he wanted to talk to Hutchinson. I said 'Sorry, Red; officially you're out of the game, and it's against the rules.' I'm wondering whether or not I was too technical."

"No. You were going according to the rules."

"Yes, but I think the rule was meant to prohibit an incoming playerr for communicating with any other player until one play has passed. However, it works both ways the way it is worded."

Ancient Days.

"I'll never forget that Dartmouth-Syracuse game in 1915—wasn't it?—that was played in rain, snow and sleet. Boy, it was cold!"

"Was the ground frozen?"

"No. It was churned up into a soupy lake. I remember Fat Spears diving for a loose ball, and when he grabbed at it the blooming ball floated away."

"I remember those Syracuse-Colgate games when the hotels used to move all the furniture out before the football crowd came in."

"Yes, and I remember a Navy game I was officating in years ago, and a Navy player was hurt. I let the trainer come out, and then I let a Navy doctor come out, too. That was one more than custom calls for, but I was afraid the boy might be hurt and I wasn't going to hold off the rescue squad. But when one of the big birds of the Academy wanted to stalk out there, I stopped him. He insisted. I stood firm. Finally he shouted 'I represent the President of the United States of America, and I demand that you allow me on the field!' 'You represent what?' I asked him. 'The President of the United States of America!' he shouted again. 'Have you got that in writing?' says I. That stopped him cold. We had a hot argument after the game, but we've been fine friends ever since."

Technical Points.

"I remember picking up a ball and running half the field for a touchdown, and the referee called me back. He tried to blow the whistle before the ball was free, but the whistle stuck. So he called me back."

"I've seen that happen. You don't need the whistle to make it official. The referee can signal it with his hand."

"How would you rule on this? A man receives a kick-off and tries a lateral pass immediately which is intercepted by an opposing player and carried over the goal line?"

"It's a touchdown."

"It is not. The ball is dead where it was intercepted. Under the new rule any ball recovered by the kicking side is dead where it is recovered. The only way the kicking side can score a touchdown is to kick over the goal line and recover it back there. The ball is dead there for a touchdown."

"Do you keep a timer on your bench to check against the field judge?"

"Yes, but I might as well have a calendar. We're always four or five minutes out of the way."

"What do you do when you send out a substitute and the captain refuses to accept him?"

"I send out a substitute for the captain."

"Suppose he refuses to accept that one, too. What do you do then?"

"I guess you just sit there and think up bright things to tell the captain on Monday."

"Well, I've got to start an off-tackle dash for a train. Move we adjourn."

Adopted unanimously.

ALEKHINE IN DRAW WITH BOGOLJUBOW

20th Game, Adjourned From Previous Day, Halted After 48 Moves at Rotterdam.

DUTCH HONORS ARE EVEN

Each Has Won and Drawn Once in This Series—Contest Today Will Be Played at Amsterdam.

ROTTERDAM, Oct. 31.—In spite of the fact that he had the advantage of a pawn plus, which, however, was a backward one and could not be utilized, Dr. Alexandre Alekhine of Paris today had to concede a draw to E. D. Bogoljubow of Triberg in the twentieth game of their match for the chess championship of the world.

Eight additional moves from yesterday's play, a total of forty-eight, were made by the masters before they came to an agreement, following a repetition of moves with their respective rooks.

Consequently, the draw which Bogoljubow could have had by perpetual check yesterday but renounced, came to him in the end.

This result leaves the honors even for the Dutch series thus far, including the two games at The Hague. Each has won a game and drawn one. The present score of the match is: Dr. Alekhine 9, Bogoljubow 5, drawn 6.

The twenty-first game is scheduled for tomorrow and Saturday at Amsterdam, where the twenty-second game also will be contested.

Maxie Rosenbloom, the clever Harlem light-heavyweight, who is hailed by many boxing followers as the successor to the crown recently vacated by Tommy Loughran, signed articles yesterday to meet Yale Okun of the east side in the semi-final to the Phil Scott-Otto Von Porat bout at Madison Square Garden on Dec. 9. The card is being arranged for The New York American Christmas Fund and will be completed in a few days.

Tom McArdle, Garden matchmaker, who is giving his services toward aligning a suitable card for the occasion, experienced considerable difficulty in obtaining an opponent for Rosenbloom. He broached the match with several light-heavyweights, among whom was Georgie Courtney, but was unable to come to terms. Okun accepted the opportunity readily, however, and plans to go into training immediately.

THORNE TO MANAGE YACHTING SYNDICATE

HEADS NO. 3 COMBINATION

By GROVER THEIS.

Announcement was made yesterday that Landon K. Thorne, well-known financier in Wall Street, had joined the syndicate of yachting enthusiasts who will build one of the four yachts that will compete next Summer for the honor of defending the America's Cup against the challenge of Sir Thomas Lipton off Newport beginning Sept. 13 and that he would be manager of the group that will operate the yacht.

Previously this contender has been identified as the Paul Hammond-George M. Pynchon boat, but the announcement issued yesterday refers to the group in charge as the Thorne syndicate. The yacht, which is one of those listed in the recent formal announcement of the America's Cup committee of the New York Yacht Club under the Hammond-Pynchon designation, is to be designed by L. Francis Herreshoff.

She will differ from her three competitors which will strive to represent this country in the classic international yachting event in that it will be wooden planked with a steel frame, a form of construction similar to that being used by Charles E. Nicholson, designer of Sir Thomas's Shamrock V, against which the American defender will compete. She will be built at Lawley's yards, Neponset, Mass.

Yachts Still Unnamed.

Although all of the four yachts that will engage in "observation" races next July and formal trials in August are still unnamed, their numbers were recently drawn from a hat, the boat of which Mr. Thorne will be manager having picked No. 3.

Competing against it in the preliminary events to select the final defender will be boats entered by the Gorge Nichols-J. P. Morgan syndicate, No. 1; the Frank C. Paine-John S. Lawrence syndicate from Boston, No. 2, and the Winthrop Aldrich-Harold S. Vanderbilt syndicate, No. 4.

Mr. Hammond, one of those with whom Mr. Thorne is now associated, would not comment further upon the brief announcement that Mr. Thorne would be manager, but indicated that further details would be forthcoming soon. Mr. Hammond is well known as a yachtsman, his entry Nina, manned by a college crew, having won the Queen's Cup in the 1928 ocean races to Spain.

Pynchon Successful Skipper.

Mr. Pynchon has had considerable experience as a sailor of large boats, his Istalena having scored heavily in the Class M in the Long Island Yacht Racing Association's series last Summer after getting off to a poor start in the early season. Incidentally, it is understood that his America's Cup contender will be a double-ender like the Istalena.

The designers of the three boats with which the one Mr. Thorne will manage will compete are Clinton H. Crane for the Nichols-Morgan entry, W. Starling Burgess for the Aldrich-Vanderbilt boat and Mr. Paine for the boat in which his name is coupled with that of Mr. Lawrence.

Mr. Thorne is not well known as an active racing yachtsman, but he will compete as a member of the New York Yacht Club when the preliminary tests and formal trials are held next Summer. Besides his New York Yacht Club affiliation he is a member of the University Club, the Union League and the Racquet and Tennis Clubs. He is a graduate of Yale, '10.

REISELT AND COCHRAN DIVIDE BLOCKS AT 18.2

Former Wins, 56-45, Then Loses by 51-50—Reiselt Leads in Point Total, 400-396.

Otto Reiselt, former world's champion, and Welker Cochran, ex-world's 18.2 balkline titleholder, divided the seventh and eighth blocks of their three-cushion match at Dwyer's Broadway Academy last night.

Each has now won four blocks, and in the event of a tie the winner will be determined on the point basis. Reiselt now leads, 400 to 396, having wrested the lead yesterday from Cochran, who was ahead by six points at the start of the seventh session.

Reiselt won in the afternoon, 56 to 45, in fifty-five innings. He had a high run of 8 and Cochran one of 7. At night Cochran triumphed, 51 to 50, in forty-five innings. Cochran's best effort was 6, Reiselt's 4.

PEERLESS BOWLERS WIN.

Take Both Prizes in Photo Engravers' League Matches.

The Peerless team captured both the high series and high game prizes in the weekly matches rolled in the Photo Engravers Bowling League at Dwyer's Broadway Academy last night. The Peerless team turned in a score of 2,603 for high series and 931 for high game.

George Edelbaum of the Knapp team won the high individual series with a score of 579. The high individual game score was made by Cosgin of Color Plate with a score of 225.

SPARTANS MAKE SWEEP.

Advance to Sixth Place in American National Bowling Event.

The Spartan team advanced from eighth to sixth place in the standing by winning three straight games from the Eagen Association in the American National Bowling tournament at Thum's Alleys last night. The scores were 909 to 806, 975 to 885 and 970 to 839.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Rise Sharply, Then React—Brokers' Loans Enormously Reduced.

The outstanding events in yesterday's financial markets became known either before the Stock Exchange had opened or after it had closed. When the early cables reported reduction of the London Bank rate to 6 per cent, the inference was safely drawn that our own Reserve Bank rate also would come down. Such reduction, from 6 per cent to 5, was announced late in the afternoon. The action of both banks was public recognition that the severe strain on home and international money markets, long imposed by the frantic stock market speculation, had been instantly and effectively removed by that market's thoroughgoing liquidation.

Since the Bank of England's rate is left by yesterday's reduction a full 1 per cent above the New York bank rate, a difference twice as great as existed even before the two banks raised their rates in August and September, it may be assumed that, in due course, the gold drawn to New York from Europe at the climax of the speculative craze will be sent back. This is altogether as it should be, and the lowering of the bank rates is itself wise public recognition of the fact that the menace arising from the speculative mania has been definitely removed. It is not, as similar reduction would have been if made when Wall Street demanded it, two months or more ago, a stimulus to reviving speculation. The new condition of things, on which the action of the banks is based, was strikingly indicated by the late afternoon's announcement that brokers' loans had been reduced more than $1,000,000,000 this past week.

It hardly need be said that this is far and away the most rapid and sweeping reduction since the reports on brokers' loans were first compiled in 1917. The largest reduction of 1920 was $118,000,000 in four weeks, or not quite 12 per cent. The total of brokers' borrowings in those days was trifling as compared with this year's vast requisitions, yet, even on a percentage basis, the past week's reduction has been no less than 16 per cent. Undoubtedly, the curtailment will go further, for the release of capital from Wall Street speculation and promotion will continue, and the total is even now down only to the figure of last June.

In two respects the brokers' loan report was highly illuminating. The detailed statement shows that the banks as a whole did not cut down their credits during Wall Street's period of agony. They added largely to their brokers' loans, probably "taking over" stocks to save imperiled clients; but the "loans by others," that newly invented use of company resources which was to guarantee successful speculation for all time, were cut down during the week by the extraordinary sum of $1,380,000,000. The other impressive teaching of the loan report is the fallacy (to call it by no more disrespectful name) of the prolonged contention that the increase of $2,000,000,000 in a year in such use of credit was caused by nothing but the "financing of trade through new industrial securities."

Yesterday's stock market continued the rapid recovery which had begun with the ending of outright panic, on the preceding day. This was wholly in accord with the usual order of events on such occasions, but so also was the abrupt and in some cases emphatic downward reaction which occurred yesterday afternoon in shares that had been pushed up most violently. Markets invariably choose to forget, when getting on their feet again after panic liquidation, that every such financial crisis leaves in the hands of banks or fellow-brokers great masses of stock taken over to relieve or save the larger victims of the crash. Stock held on such a basis is invariably sold again as soon as the market is in shape to take it; which explains, at least in part, why recovery in prices at such junctures is spasmodic, uncertain and always checked when it seems to be striking the old pace again.

The Bank of England's rate reduction was not recognition of return of gold in quantity to the Bank's reserve. A week ago, it had gained $13,000,000 gold since the 6½ per cent rate was fixed; yesterday's statement showed loss of nearly $4,000,000 this past week, wholly because of further shipments to Paris. But that outgo is probably temporary; it will be contrary to the usual course of events, at times like this, if the entire European gold market situation is not presently changed by a large return flow from America.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

Business will be suspended today and tomorrow on the security Exchanges, but will be resumed on Monday. Except for the suspension of trading on these markets, activity will go on as usual today in Wall Street and in other financial centres. The shutdown today was ordered so that the Stock Exchange and brokerage personnel may get a rest after the strain of the last week.

The Recovery Continues.

With trading confined to the three hours between 12 and 3 o'clock, the recovery on the Stock Exchange was extended yesterday in impressive fashion. Prices at the opening were well above the closing levels of Wednesday and for fully two hours the market continued to make good headway. Some irregularity cropped out in the last hour and for a time the market was subjected to rather aggressive selling pressure. There was another rally in the last few minutes, so that the market ended the week on a strong note. Much of the buying which came in yesterday was easily traced to the "outside public." Brokerage houses reported that Wall Street professionals furnished only a limited amount of the buying enthusiasm. The net gains in the main body of stocks were large.

Taking Up the Burden.

Bankers who have for long predicted that the time would come when the banking institutions would be forced to take over wholesale a huge portion of the brokers' loans for account of "others" had their point of view justified this week. In the statement of loans given out yesterday those for the account of others showed a drop of $1,380,000,000, while loans for out-of-town banks dropped $707,000,000. While the enormous drop in the total of loans accounted for some part of this change, local banks were forced to take up $992,000,000 of the difference. That the New York City banks were able at a time of such stress to expand their loans by such a huge total without any flurry in money rates and with only a small increase in borrowing from the Federal Reserve Bank offers striking testimony to the strength of these institutions.

The Monday Market.

Wall Street is already commencing to speculate about the prospects for Monday's market. Two developments yesterday, probably the day's most important, concerning the lowering of the rediscount rate and the big contraction of brokers' loans, were not announced until after trading had stopped. The general expectation in Wall Street was that there would be another wide advance at the resumption of trading at the first of next week. It was argued that persons the country over will have any opportunity to review the situation calmly in the interim, that financial resources can be marshaled for buying purposes and that, with traces of hysteria entirely absent from the market yesterday, entirely normal market conditions should prevail by the first of next week.

Purchases Made Too Soon.

It is one of the surprising and extraordinary developments that some of the heaviest losses of Monday and Tuesday were taken on stock which had been purchased on the Thursday of the first crash. It was just a case of purchasing stocks too soon, and it applied to many individual investors and to several investment trusts which were big buyers of stocks on a scale that day.

***

A Shower of Good News.

If kind words and deeds are to be of any help in the present situation, Wall Street has been getting them in profusion. Yesterday was a day of many constructive news developments, the reduction of the discount rates at home and abroad, and the contraction of more than $1,000,000,000 in brokers' loans being the two chief items. Numerous extra dividends were announced, and it appeared that all shoulders were to the wheel endeavoring to aid in the recreation of a feeling of confidence in the country's prosperity.

"Air Pockets" Again.

Just a week after Thomas W. Lamont used the phrase "air pockets" to describe the absence of bids under many leading Stock Exchange issues in the course of the break of Oct. 24, a new variety of air pocket was encountered when the Exchange was opened at noon yesterday. In this case, however, the air pockets were above many stocks, rather than below them. Openings in many issues were reported to have been delayed half an hour or an hour, owing to the inability of specialists to match selling orders with the large volume of buying orders which had accumulated. When these issues did open, finally, they showed astonishing gains in the initial transaction.

Dividend Declarations.

The unusual number of extra and increased common dividends declared this week provides a sharp contrast to the hundreds of new low marks established by common stocks as a result of the unparalleled selling. Some of the extra dividends conceivably would not have been declared at this time had it not been necessary for every agency and company to use every means within its power to reassure the public as to the sound condition of business and finance. Several of the increased dividends, it was understood, anticipated action that otherwise would have been taken next Spring. The dividend actions of the last few days indicate the substantial results of business during 1929 and are a potent expression of optimism for the coming year.

Withholding Advice.

Many of the wire houses which follow the custom of sending a letter to customers after the close of the market, analyzing the progress of prices and making recommendations for the following day, abandoned the practice last night. It was the general feeling that if regular letters were sent out to be read tomorrow morning, the impulse to act upon the advice given would have worn off by next Monday, the first market day upon which orders could be executed. One of the largest of the wire houses did prepare a letter last night but will mail it tomorrow night, so that customers will receive it in the morning of the next market day.

MONEY.

Thursday, Oct. 31, 1929.

Market's most important development came after the close of business, when the New York Reserve Bank announced a reduction in rediscount rate to 5 per cent from 6, effective Friday, Nov. 1. Elsewhere the market continued quiet and steady at unchanged levels and, notwithstanding another day of heavy withdrawals by banks, upward of $100,000,000 in loans being called, Stock Exchange rate remained at 6 per cent. Time money was traded for January and four months at 6 per cent, also unchanged. Acceptances and commercial paper were unchanged in discount.

SAYS BUSINESS NOW HAS OUTGROWN LAW

TRACES POST-WAR GROWTH

Rail and Utility Holding Companies and Chain Banks Come Under No Legal Restriction, He Says.

Special to The New York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 31.—The formation of gigantic organizations through industrial mergers and the development of powerful holding companies has nullified regulatory legislation, Senator Frederic M. Sackett said tonight in an address before the Transportation Club of Louisville.

According to Senator Sackett, anti-trust laws, banking laws and transportation laws have been rendered ineffective through the formation of super-corporative structures outside the scope of those laws.

The new wealth of the United States, piled up since the outbreak of the World War was given as the cause of these changes.

He said:

"The consciousness of changed conditions pervades the body politic today. With the emergence from debtor to creditor as a nation and the vast increase in capital resources has come a change from the prevalence of 'group power by agreement' to that of 'group power from wealth.' Our present legislation is well acclimated to the former, but let me direct your thought to the new conditions we face today, and to a consideration of these current laws in the light of the new day business methods.

"Take first the new industrial holding company. It is a creature of the new wealth; its securities today are easily floated in the new enlarged reservoir of credit. An industrial holding company is not engaged in commerce; it only owns the stocks of companies that are so engaged. It buys the stocks of competing industries, at least in sufficient quantity to become a dominant factor in each one. Its management has one policy for all those companies. What then becomes of our anti-trust protection?

"Take the newly developed railroad investor companies built to hold the stocks of railroads whose community of interests may be of great strategic value. Such companies can, if they wish, also acquire the stocks of equipment corporations; to which might be added even those of industries located upon some of the lines in which their stock interest is dominant.

"These security-holding corporations do not operate the railroads whose stocks they own. Over them the Interstate Commerce Commission can exercise no authority, because the Constitution limits the commission's authority to agencies engaged in interstate commerce.

"Consider wherein lie similarities in principle between the newly formed investment trusts and our savings institutions. While differences in the purpose of such companies may be admitted, yet the protection accorded the savings depositor does not surround the same man if he confides his capital to the managers of an investment corporation. England has had a long experience with this new class of semi-banking companies that are multiplying here so rapidly today, and the experience of England would warrant the thought that limitations by law would be in order both as to investments and publicity.

"This new wealth has broadened the organizing of public utility holding companies, and brought together in ownership widely scattered properties, with the consequent safety due to diversification of territory.

"There is no central authority, as was in the days when State commissions had ascendancy over the services of individual corporations operating in a single State. Those commissions have no power over the parent owner, whose patent rights or other proprietories may become the most influential features of its competitive situation.

"One other field in which group power through wealth presents new problems, lies in the spread of chain banking. It is perhaps our most modern business development, and for my purpose to be contradistinguished to branch banking.

"The location of branch banks is controlled under the McFadden act. Because the establishment of branches is so controlled, many financiers have taken advantage of the new supplies of liquid capital to form and float the super-bank corporation, which purchases the stocks of banks in many cities and States; in fact, owns and holds the stocks of a chain of banks. The effect is practically the same as the prohibited parent bank with branches.

"Is there need for control of the new form of business management, as we felt there was of the old form? If there is such need we can practically start anew, as the old laws so little govern now.

International Shares' Meeting.

Stockholders of the International Share Corporation will meet on Nov. 12 in Cleveland to act on increasing the authorized no-par common stock from 200,000 to 500,000 shares. Action will be taken also on a proposal to authorize 200,000 preferred shares at $100 a share.

Clearing House Exchanges At $3,853,000,000, Record

All records for clearing house exchanges were broken again yesterday for the second consecutive day. These exchanges, representing checks for payments made on the preceding day, aggregated $3,853,000,000. This total displaced Wednesday's record figures of $3,500,000,000. One year ago yesterday the exchanges were $1,900,000,000 at the New York Clearing House.

The tremendous expansion in these clearings is attributed almost entirely to the vast volume of trading in the security markets of this financial centre.

BLOCK-MALONEY CO. TO DISSOLVE JAN. 1

Peter J. Maloney and Son Will Retire, Former Retaining His Exchange Seat.

CHANGE LONG IN PROSPECT

Benjamin Block and Associates Will Continue Firm, With Headquarters in Present Location.

Dissolution of one of the oldest and best-known partnerships in Wall Street, that of the New York Stock Exchange firm of Block, Maloney & Co., will be announced soon. Peter J. Maloney and his son, Peter J. Maloney Jr., are to retire from the firm and the business will be carried on by Benjamin Block and associates.

The elder Mr. Maloney confirmed yesterday the report that the partnership was to be dissolved under an agreement reached some time ago. The change will be effective on Jan. 1. A new firm will be formed, with Mr. Block as the senior partner. The offices at 50 Broadway will be retained. The name for the new house has not been selected.

Mr. Maloney said that he was retiring from the firm because he wished to take life easy. After forty years in Wall Street he said he felt that he had earned a vacation.

"I have been working pretty hard and I would like to have a rest," he said.

It has been generally known in Stock Exchange circles for some days that the Block-Maloney team was to be split. Mr. Maloney said that whatever business he might do in the future would be cleared through Mr. Block's firm and that the relations between the two were entirely friendly.

The members of the firm besides Mr. Maloney, his son and Mr. Block are John Horace Block, William B. Anderson, Alfred L. Rosener, Alfred F. Straight, Frank O. Grattan and William B. Giles. Mr. Maloney Sr. and John Horace Block are the floor members. Mr. Maloney will retain his seat on the Stock Exchange, he said, and his son also will remain in Wall Street. Whether they will form a partnership has not been decided.

Mr. Maloney is, in point of service, one of the oldest members of the governing committee of the Exchange. He is also a member of the important committee on admissions and is vice chairman of the arbitration committee.

Mr. Maloney purchased his seat in February, 1909, but he began his Wall Street career twenty years earlier. The firm of Block, Maloney & Co. is one of the largest in the financial district, with branch offices in New York and Atlantic City.

Approves Pacific Cables Sale.

The House of Representatives of New Zealand has approved the sale of the Pacific Cables Company to the Imperial Communications Company, according to dispatches from Wellington, N. Z., yesterday.

CANCELS STOCK OFFERING.

Great Lakes Corporation to Refund $26,000,000 Subscriptions.

The Great Lakes Corporation, an investing and trading company, announced yesterday it would return more than $26,000,000 in stock subscriptions with interest at 6 per cent from Wednesday. It had offered $35,000,000 of stock, or 1,400,000 shares at $25 a share. The offering had been underwritten by Fisher & Co., the Guardian Detroit Company and Keane, Higbie & Co. The stock was offered in connection with a merger of various institutions into the Guardian Detroit-Union Group, Inc.

In explaining the withdrawal of the offer, the corporation's board said that, after having given careful consideration to the general market situation, it felt that no additional financial burden should be incurred by either individuals or financial institutions at present for the purpose of financing new enterprises.

BANK MERGER HERE VOTED

At meetings of stockholders yesterday the merger of the International Union Bank and Trust Company and the Madison State Bank was ratified. The new institution will be called the International-Madison Bank and Trust Company and will have resources in excess of $14,000,000 and capital funds of about $3,500,000. The new institution will have four offices, at Twenty-first Street and Fifth Avenue, 100 Park Row and First Street and Avenue A, Manhattan, and Eighteenth Avenue and Forty-seventh Street, Brooklyn.

Solomon Filling, president of the International Union Bank and Trust Company, will be president of the new institution. Raymond Guarini, president of the Madison State Bank, will be vice president.

Throckmorton & Co., which will celebrate today the eighth anniversary of the founding of the firm, will admit as a partner Alexander B. Johnson, a member of the New York Stock Exchange. It was announced also that John F. Fowler Jr. and Herbert G. Golding Jr. have been admitted as partners.

The firm was established by W. Irving Throckmorton, Victor Kafka and Ernest G. Peterson. In 1927 Walter T. Griffith was admitted as a partner. All are partners in the new firm. Mr. Johnson, the Stock Exchange member, is a graduate of Yale, and prior to joining the Stock Exchange in 1923 was vice president of the American Express Company.

$3,005,000 IN GOLD SHIPPED TO FRANCE

VIEWED AS AN EXPERIMENT

First Movement of Metal This Year to Any Principal European Country.

The statement of gold movements at the port of New York released yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank confirmed reports which had been current in banking circles that a shipment of gold to France had been arranged. The statement showed exports of $3,005,000. The only other shipment was one of $125,000, to Mexico, making total exports for the week $3,130,000. Imports were $149,000, which came chiefly from Latin America. There was no change in the amount of gold earmarked for foreign account.

The advance of the franc last week to above 3.94 cents made possible a transfer of the metal from New York to Paris. The shipment, in the opinion of bankers, was experimental, designed to determine whether the rate made transfers of greater amounts profitable. It was the first movement of the metal this year to any large European country.

Under the influence of the high money rates which have obtained in this market until recently there has been a heavy movement of funds to this market from Europe. England and Germany both contributed to the gold supplies here, but no movement from France occurred. France has been drawing heavily upon England. The collapse of the high money rates here resulted, however, in the last few weeks to a reversal of the flow of funds.

As a result of the lowering yesterday of the rates of the Bank of England and the Federal Reserve Bank, sterling moved erratically, with a spread of ⅜ cent between the high and low prices. Sterling cables opened down 11-32 cent at $4.87½ on news of the reduction of the British bank rate and held at that figure during the forenoon. Good buying came in later in the day as the belief that the local bank would cut its rate became strengthened and sterling rose to $4.87 15/16, to close firm with a gain on the day of 3/32 cent. Other foreign exchanges were quiet and little changed.

Extra Dividend of $300,000 For Each of 15 Spreckelses

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31 (AP).—Permission to distribute an "extraordinary dividend" amounting to $300,000 for each stockholder has been granted to the J. D. and A. B. Spreckels Investment Company here by the State Corporation Commission.

It is all in the family, however, because the stock is owned by fifteen persons bearing the Spreckels name. The dividend amounts to $4,500,000.

GOLD SHIPMENTS BARRED BY CANADA

Virtual Embargo by Government Revealed Following Article in London Financial News.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 31.—A virtual embargo upon exports of gold exists in Canada, it was revealed today by an inquiry caused by criticism of Canada's action, which was published in The Financial News of London, England. According to cable information, the article in today's Financial News is in part as follows:

"Since the early part of this year the Canadian Government has maintained an unofficial embargo on export of gold, but, at the beginning, the deviation of the Montreal exchange from its gold export point was not too conspicuous. It was not until a few days ago that it became evident there was to be no control at all of the fluctuations of exchange. And now to all appearances the Canadian dollar is at the mercy of adverse tendencies, material and psychological."

Inquiry locally reveals the fact that at the verbal request of J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, the banks have refrained from shipping gold, although Canada's money has been at a discount, which would have made it profitable to ship gold to New York.

While Canadian funds were at a discount of .2 per cent in New York today no move was made to bring about a better rate by means of shipping gold to the financial centre of the United States. It was this condition which brought to light the situation as it exists here at the present time.

Under normal conditions, gold would be shipped to New York from Canada when the exchange rate neared ¼ of 1 per cent.

GOLD EXPORTS RISE AS IMPORTS RECEDE

Shipment to France, the First Since July, 1,928, Swells the Amount Sent Out in October.

BRITISH RECEIPTS DECLINE

No Metal Comes From Canada—Argentine Contribution Is More Than Half of Total Received.

The movement of gold in October featured the first shipment of the metal to France since July, 1928. Exports aggregated $3,984,000, while imports were $11,203,000, compared with exports of $596,000 and imports of $14,450,000 in September, and $2,642,000 in exports and $12,687,000 in imports in October, 1928.

Argentina shipped $6,575,000 to this country last month, the largest importation for the month. This brings to $68,402,000 the total received for the year to date. Gold from Great Britain amounted to $1,009,000, following $61,368,000 received in previous months this year. Other than the shipment to France there was sent $619,000 to Mexico; $210,000 to Java, and $150,000 to the Straits Settlements. No Canadian shipments were made in the month. The balance for the ten months favors the United States by more than $227,251,000, against a loss at the corresponding date in 1928 of $416,908,000.

Gold movements given in the subjoined tables have been compiled by THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Comparison of gold shipments for October in the last three years follows:

Among the new listings were Commercial Solvents new common shares, making effective a ten-for-one split-up; Neisner Brothers, Inc., common, and United Stores Corporation Class A and $6 cumulative convertible preferred. In the investment trust class, Commonwealth and Southern Corporation common listing was the largest. Other corporations having additional shares listed were Commercial Investment Trust, J. C. ACTIVITY IN BOND LIST IS AT A RECORD PACE

Turnover of About $20,000,000 in Three-Hour Session, Declines Predominating.

Activity in the bond division of the Stock Exchange reached figures yesterday that indicated the record for the last ten years would have been broken if the trading day had been five hours long. In the three-hour session the transactions were close to $20,000,000. The recent record for five hours' trading is slightly above $20,006,000, the best figure transactions have reached since 1918, when trading in Liberty bonds carried totals above $40,000,000.

Rails, government issues and foreign bonds were the leaders. Under the volume that these issues were forced to stand they closed irregular to weak, although some railroad securities as well and Kreuger & Toll 5s in the foreign division showed gains for the day. Government issues were off slightly from the closing levels of Wednesday.

Convertible issues generally established new high levels. American Telephone and Telegraph 4½s rose 20 points at the opening and held the gain. Commercial Investment Trust 5½s went up about 5 points and were strong all day.

While railroad issues as a group were weak under constant volume selling, some in the higher grade list exhibited real strength, and several closed the day 2 points above their closing on Wednesday. The leaders in strength included New York Central 3½s, Southern Railway 4s and Santa Fe, Rocky Mountain Division 4s. New Haven convertibles gained a little more than two points.

Industrial and utility bonds were irregular. Chile Copper 5s and Hudson and Manhattan adjustment 5s each rose 2 points, while Kansas City Power and Light 4½s and American Telephone 5s showed fractional gains.

Foreign issues were active and generally weak except for Kreuger & Toll 5s, due in 1959, which advanced 3½ points, making up part of its losses of the three other days this week.

MOVE TO AID BONDS OF N. Y. RAILWAYS

Protective Committee, Headed by F. J. Lisman, Formed to Protect Holders.

SEEK INTEREST PAYMENT

A protective committee has been formed to protect the interests of the holders of New York Railways fifty-year consolidated mortgage bonds, Series A and B, in view of the letter of the Associated Gas and Electric Securities Company, Inc., of Oct. 25, to the bondholders stating that it would be most unwise to disburse for interest and dividends even though earnings were sufficient to cover such charges.

The New York State Railways, the protective committee contends, has earned and can pay its interest charges, which are due today. The committee is composed of F. J. Lisman, chairman; H. W. George, treasurer, of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company; Benjamin Graham and William A. Law, president of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company. The secretary is William G. Edinburg. Cook, Nathan & Lehman of 20 Pine Street are counsel.

Banking interests which originally sold the New York State Railways bonds were last night reported to be organizing a bondholders' protective committee, to be headed by a partner in Harris, Forbes & Co., and with an official of the bond house as secretary. Two large holders of New York State Railways bonds will serve on this committee, it was stated, and bondholders will be asked to deposit their holdings with the committee.

Associated Gas Urged Caution.

The Associated Gas letter said that "even though such a property (street railway company) did earn its interest or dividend charges, it would be most unwise to disburse that margin for interest and dividends, as the case might be, without leaving a substantial balance to provide for necessary changes or improvements involving incidental additions and betterments, when it is an industry the credit of which is so sad that no new money can be provided through new financing on any terms, no matter how liberal."

The members of the Lisman protective committee own and represent a substantial amount of the bonds, it was reported, and will act as a committee under a deposit agreement by which the Equitable Trust Company of New York is to serve as depositary. They propose to have an examination made of the properties and affairs of the New York State Railways Company "so that it may be determined in what manner the rights of the bondholders can best be safeguarded."

Proposed An Exchange Offer.

The New York State Railways owns traction lines in Rochester, Syracuse, Utica, Oneida and other cities in New York State. In denying any responsibility of the Associated Gas group for the payment of principal and interest on bonds of the company, the letter to bondholders made an offer to exchange "a limited amount of our securities on a basis not unduly wide of the present market for the railway bonds based on the more actively traded in issues."

To the holders of the bonds were offered in exchange Associated Gas and Electric Company $5 interest-bearing allotment certificates at $133 each on the basis of 10 per cent above the last sale price on the New York Stock Exchange on the day preceding the deposit or mailing of the subscription, but not more than 25 per cent of their amount.

Similar offers were extended to holders of bonds of other street railway companies in New York State by the Associated Gas group, which became interested in the properties at the time it acquired the Rochester Gas & Electric and other power and light properties from the Ellis Phillips interests last Spring.

UP-STATE TROLLEY IS SOLD.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKE GEORGE, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Assets of the Hudson Valley Railway, which ceased operations Dec. 1, 1928, were sold at public auction here today by Edmund J. Glacken, referee, for $321,010. The property sold consists of the station at Saratoga, valuable power sites on the Schreon and Hudson Rivers, rights of way, pole line agreements, franchises and rails.

Under a Supreme Court order the property was sold in three parcels. The first, consisting of all real estate and rights of way, was sold to Benjamin D. Anthony of Albany for $321,000.

Parcel 2, consisting of pole line agreements with other companies, and Parcel 3, franchises for operation through cities, towns and villages, and rails and ties, were sold to Paul W. Williams of Glens Falls, $5 being paid for each of the parcels. No other bids were received.

U. S. STEEL CLOSES DEAL FOR COLUMBIA

SALE EFFECTIVE ON FEB. 1

Transaction Is a Purchase of Assets —Acquired Concern to Be the Nucleus for Expansion.

Purchase of the Columbia Steel Corporation, the largest steel company on the Pacific Coast, was announced yesterday by the United States Steel Corporation. The price was announced as approximately $46,630,000, payable entirely in United States Steel common stock. The purchase will be consummated on Feb. 1, 1930.

Through the transaction the United States Steel Corporation acquires properties which its directors believe it needs for manufacturing operations on the west coast.

Announcement of the purchase was made by Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the Finance Committee, and James A. Farrell, president, shortly before 1 o'clock yesterday, after the adjournment of a directors' meeting which had begun at 12 o'clock. The official announcement was as follows:

Announces Exercise of Option.

"The United States Steel Corporation announces the exercise of the option which it has held for the past several months on the properties of the Columbia Steel Corporation.

"For several years the United States Steel Corporation has had under consideration the location of manufacturing operations on the Pacific Coast, and latter to serve the existing trade, as well as to prepare for the future growth of both domestic and foreign trade, by service from coast plants. It is economically logical that the corporation should establish itself in the Far West. Its nearest present manufacturing operations of any substantial character, in the North, are in Illinois, in the Chicago district, and at Gary, in the Indiana district; and in the South at Birmingham, Ala.

"The purchase of Columbia's properties has been determined upon by the United States Steel Corporation after an extended and exhaustive examination, inspection and study of the properties and their possibilities. The growing demands for steel of various kinds in Pacific Coast territory and the greater demands of customers for improved service make it desirable that the corporation have its own producing plants located there. This purchase of Columbia's properties affords a nucleus from which it is confidently believed the productive capacity on the Coast can be expanded from time to time, both to the interests of consumers and the territory. The present annual steel ingot capacity of Columbia is 740,000 gross tons, which is converted into a relatively narrow range of finished products. This will increase the United States Steel Corporation's proportion of the total annual steel ingot production of the United States, based on 1928 output, from 39.02 per cent to 39.52 per cent, an increase of ½ of 1 per cent.

"The properties are to be purchased at approximately $46,630,000 on Feb. 1, 1930, payment to be made wholly in common stock of the United States Steel Corporation."

No Exchange of Stock.

Mr. Taylor said that he wanted it emphasized that the transaction was not an exchange of stocks, that the United States Steel Corporation was purchasing the properties of the Columbia Steel Corporation for a specified valuation and would pay for them with common shares of the United States Steel Corporation. The officials of the Columbia Steel Corporation, he said, would liquidate their own company. It is understood that the plan of liquidation of the Columbia company entails the sale of the United States Steel common stock received for the properties and the cash distribution of the proceeds.

Late yesterday afternoon Mr. Taylor enlarged somewhat upon the terms of the acquisition. His attention was called to reports from San Francisco that the deal had been made on the terms of the original option calling for exchange of Columbia stock at 17 for United States Steel stock at 199.75, making the exchange ratio 11.75 shares of Columbia for one share of United States Steel. Mr. Taylor's statement follows:

"That is not quite accurate. Columbia's assets are sold for our stock, and in the liquidation of the Columbia company they may calculate a resulting price per share for their shares through the liquidation. But that is their matter and does not concern us at all, our purchase being of assets for stock. The price basis at which our stock is taken is approximately correct."

Columbia Formed in 1922.

The Columbia Steel Corporation was incorporated on Nov. 23, 1922, in Delaware as a consolidation of the Columbia Steel Company and the Utah Coal and Coke Company. In 1923 it acquired the Llewellyn Steel Company of Los Angeles; in 1925, the Milner-Dear-Lurch iron holdings of 921 acres at Iron Mountain, Utah, and in 1926 the Pacific Sheet Steel Corporation. It has plants at Pittsburgh, Torrance, Cal., Portland, Ore., and Ironton, Utah. It has under lease 160 acres of government coal lands at Columbia, Carbon County, Utah. This lease requires a minimum production of 10,000 tons a year and royalty of 12½ cents a ton to the government.

The company also owns 66 2-3 per cent of the preferred stock and 50 per cent of the Class A common stock of the Pacific States Cast Iron Pipe Company of Ironton, Utah.

The consolidated balance sheet of the company as of Dec. 31, 1928, valued lands, buildings, equities and leases at $28,002,141, and gave complete assets at $38,094,116. This total compared with $32,258,354 in total assets as of Dec. 31, 1928.

For the six months ended on June 30, 1929, the company reported income of $1,668,737, equivalent to 32 cents a share on the common stock then outstanding, as compared with $679,761 income for the corresponding period of 1928, equivalent to 22 cents a share on the common stock then outstanding.

BETHLEHEM STEEL'S PLANS.

$25,000,000 Expansion Not Affected by Stocks, Schwab Says.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 31.—The stock markets' fluctuations will have no effect on the carrying out of the Bethlehem Steel Company's $25,000,000 expansion program at its Sparrows Point plants, Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the corporation's board of directors, announced here today.

Mr. Schwab and Eugene R. Grace, president of the company, arrived today at Sparrows Point with a large party of officials of the corporation and made their annual inspection of the steel plant there and the shipbuilding plant on the Key Highway.

Questioned concerning the stock markets' outlook, Mr. Schwab laughed and turned to Mr. Grace, saying:

"We don't know a thing about it, do we, Mr. Grace? The future, however, looks optimistic. Outside of that I don't know a thing."

STRUCTURAL STEEL FIRM.

Orders in Week Slightly Lower, but Inquiries Increase.

Structural steel orders for the past week totaled 55,000 tons, against 58,000 tons in the preceding week, while inquiries amounted to 43,000 tons, against 38,000 tons the week before, indicating maintenance of a strong demand.

Among the important awards of the week were 12,200 tons for the Queens subway to the McClintic-Marshall Company, and 9,300 tons for the Salmon Building, New York, also to the McClintic-Marshall Company.

MONTH'S OFFERINGS TOTAL $610,082,000

NEW BONDS EXCEED STOCKS

Amount to $379,261,000, Compared With $89,713,000 in 1928— Tables of Comparisons.

New securities publicly offered in October amounted to $610,082,000, of which $379,261,000 was in bonds and $230,821,000 in stocks. The combined total for the month was slightly less than in September, when $611,856,992 in new issues were offered, but above October, 1928, when $509,841,000 was offered. However, the type of offerings in the past month was different from that of previous months.

Bond offerings exceeded stock issued in the past month for the first time in three months. They were also above the $249,806,000 offered in September, and greater than the $308,713,000 offered in October, 1928. New stock offerings were below the $362,043,992 offered in September and $200,828,000 in October last year. In the closing week of the month, due to the drastic decline in the stock markets, new offerings were practically nil.

Among the new issues brought out last month were $100,000,000 Texas Corporation convertible sinking fund 5 per cent gold debentures, due 1944; $60,000,000 New York City 3.75 and 4 per cent notes, dated 1929; $32,000,000 Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company first mortgage sinking fund 5s, due 1941; $30,000,000 Commercial National Bank & Trust Company forty-year guaranteed 5s due 1969; $13,500,000 Baltimore & Ohio Railroad 4½ per cent equipment trust Series F certificates, and $11,000,000 Hotel Waldorf-Astoria Corporation first mortgage leasehold sinking fund 7s, due 1954.

Leading Stock Flotations.

One of the largest stock offerings by a tire company in years was made last month by the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company in offering 800,000 6 per cent cumulative preferred shares. American Superpower Corporation offered 80,000,000 in 36 preferred stock and stock of the newly formed Marine Midland Corporation, amounting to $80,000,000 capital stock, was offered.

MARKETS IN LONDON, PARIS AND BERLIN

FRENCH STOCKS IMPROVE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The stock market responded well to the sudden lowering of the bank rate. Even before the welcome announcement there had been general recovery, influenced by yesterday's rallies in Wall Street. Gilt-edge securities were buoyant, notably the war loan, which closed 9-16 higher at £100⅝, and the funding loan, which rose ½ to £87.

Canadian Pacific leaped $11 to $219, while British railroads made substantial gains. General Electric advanced 4s to 47s. Associated Electric 2s to 32s and Hydroelectric $6 to $50. Columbia Graphophone gained £1¼ to £6¼, while His Master's Voice advanced 9-16 to £6 1-16.

Tobaccos were strong, with Carreras at 15, British-American at £6 1-32, Imperial at £4⅞. International Nickel jumped 4½ to 42. Oils improved all along the line, with Royal Dutch up £1¾ to £33½ and Mexican Eagles 1s 6d higher at 17s 9d.

The price of rubber rose to 9⅛d a pound, and shares also advanced. Among the Rhodesian coppers Bwana rallied strongly to 27s 6d, while Chartered jumped 3s 3d to 39s.

Money was cheaper in Lombard Street, with overnight loans offered as low as 4½ per cent. The discount market for a time was disorganized by the unexpected rise in the bank rate, but later steadied until three-month bills were quoted at 5 11-16 per cent. Sterling was dull at $4.87 19 32. The Bank of England announced receipt of £375,000 in sovereigns from New Zealand, and the sale of £1,718 of bar gold.

Tone Firmer in Paris.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—The downward trend of the Bourse in the last few days was checked this morning following a firmer tendency shown in Wall Street. The lowering of the Bank of England discount rate from 6½ to 6 per cent created a favorable impression in Paris and caused many stocks to improve, notably French rentes.

Improvement in the political situation also helped to strengthen the market's tone. The Curb Market also picked up. Rentes closed as follows: The 3 per cents, 78.85; 1917 4s and 1918 4s, 84.50; 1920 amortizable 5s, 125.30; 1928 5s, 101; 1920 6s, 105.40; 1927 amortizable 6s, 106.60.

Berlin Prices Irregular.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—A series of violent fluctuations marked today's session of the Boerse, due to various stimulating and depressing factors which came so suddenly that speculators and brokers had difficulty in devising measures to meet the changing situation.

The opening was firm, due to more favorable reports from the New York Stock Exchange and the fact that the monthly settlement day passed smoothly. Polyphone shares advanced 10, Siemens 9, Salzdetfurth 8, Schubert & Salzer and Reichsbank shares 6 points each. Celanese, Bavarian Motors, Charlottenhurger Wasser and Julius Berger also were in demand and firmer in price. The mining group improved 2 to 5 points.

Half an hour after the opening the situation changed suddenly and the market declined when it was announced that in view of expectations a referendum against the Young plan might after all obtain the required 10 per cent. Shortly after 1 o'clock London reported the reduction in the banking discount rate and instantaneously the tendency became again firm. In the last half hour speculators began short selling, which caused further fluctuations, and at the close only 50 per cent of the day's gains were maintained.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Sterling Rallies After Opening Decline—Bank Rate Changes Abroad and Here Factor.

The erratic movement in sterling yesterday, first a slump as a sequel to the unexpected cut in the English Bank rate, followed by an equally brisk rally on expectations later fulfilled that the local Reserve Bank rate would be dropped, thus offsetting the change abroad, held the attention of bankers and dealers to the exclusion of the movement in other currencies.

END GREEK LOAN PLAN.

Seligmans and Athens Government Terminate Agreement.

J. & W. Seligman & Co. and the Greek Government have terminated by mutual consent the loan agreement entered into between them on Jan. 25, 1929, it was announced yesterday. The reason for the termination was that the International Financial Commission refused to accept the mandate given it by the Greek Government nine months ago for the service of the loan.

Service by the International Financial Commission was a condition precedent to the opening of a credit and the purchase of bonds under the contract.

JAPAN'S EXPORTS DECREASE

Decline $14,400,000 in September, but Still Exceed Imports.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Japan maintained an excess of imports over exports in September, despite a marked decline in shipments abroad of raw silk and a large volume of raw cotton imports, according to a cable dispatch today from Acting Commercial Attaché J. H. Ehlers at Tokio.

Preliminary figures show Japan's September exports totaled $95,400,000, a decrease from the preceding month of $14,400,000, while imports totaled $70,000,000, or $11,000,000 lower than in August. Japan's foreign trade has developed an appreciably favorable balance each month since July, and it is anticiapted, Mr. Ehlers said, that the adverse merchandise balance for 1929 will be the lowest for several years past.

MANY JOIN MOVE FOR EXTRA DIVIDENDS

Marmon Motor Car Declares Quarterly Ahead of Time to Hearten Stock Circles.

The Consolidated Gas Company and other corporations joined yesterday in the movement to declare extra dividends at this time, following similar action by the United States Steel Corporation, the American Can Company and the American Tobacco Company. Other companies to declare extra or increased dividends yesterday were the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, the New Jersey Zinc Company, the Yale & Towne Manufacturing Company, the United States Dairy Products Corporation and the Warren Brothers Company.

The Consolidated Gas Company placed its common stock on a $4 annual basis, against $3 previously paid, by the declaration of a $1 quarterly dividend. The stock was put on a $3 basis when it was split two-for-one last Summer. This was equivalent to a $6 return on the old stock, which had paid $5. The latest increase is equivalent to $8 on the old stock.

Warren Brothers doubled its annual rate by declaring a quarterly of $2, placing its stock on an $8 annual basis. In addition, it declared an extra dividend of $1 a disbursement ordered in the past two years also.

Best & Co. Plan Increase.

P. Le Boutillier, president of Best & Co., said that at their meeting next month the directors would consider increasing the annual dividend rate to $2. He said that rate would be warranted by increased profits and that the company's position was strong, with no bank loans and net quick assets greater than they were a year ago. A $2 basis for the stock would be equal to $4 on the old stock, which paid $3. Stockholders received an additional share for each share held last December.

The Marmon Motor Car Company declared its quarterly dividend of $1 ahead of time, G. M. Williams, president, recommending the action in view of its being scheduled for the next meeting of directors. Mr. Williams said that in view of stock market conditions it was his feeling that corporations in a strong financial position should inspire confidence by evidencing that earning power and net assets of basic securities were fundamentally secure.

The National Public Service Corporation has declared an initial dividend of 75 cents a share on the Class B common stock, payable Nov. 1, 1929, to stock of record Oct. 15. The company announced an intention to pay dividends hereafter at the rate of 25 cents per quarter, the first quarterly dividend to be paid on Feb. 1 to stock of record Jan. 15, 1930, if the intention can be carried out as expected.

Many Other Disbursements.

The United Carbon Company has declared an initial common dividend of 50 cents a share, payable Jan. 1, 1930, to stock of record Dec. 12.

The directors of the F. & W. Grand 5-10-25 Cent Stores, Inc., declared a stock dividend of 5 per cent in common stock on the common stock yesterday.

The Bulova Watch Company has declared an initial quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share on the common stock, placing it on an annual basis of $3 a share.

The directors of the Forhan Company yesterday declared an adjusting dividend of 20 cents a share on the class A stock, payable Nov. 11 to stock of record Nov. 7. Inasmuch as stockholders at a special meeting also voted to dissolve the company, no further dividends will be declared.

The Southern Pipe Line Company has declared a dividend of $10 a share to be made from the capital stock reduction account, payable Dec. 31 to stock of record Dec. 2. The payment is entirely from the proceeds of the sale of plant assets of the company no longer required for its operation.

A special dividend of 2 per cent in stock and between 25 and 45 cents a share in cash has been declared on the common stock of the Claude Neon Electric Products Corporation of Delaware. Special common dividends are in addition to regular common dividends payable on Jan. 1. They result from the absorption of the Electrical Products Corporation of Oregon by the company.

CALLS FOR CONTROL OF COTTON OUTPUT

FEDERAL HELP PROMISED

Durand Says Distribution Survey Will Provide Data Needed by the Industry.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 31.—Close control over production must displace haphazard shutdowns and unnecessary periods of unemployment in the cotton industry, Lincoln Bayles, president of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, said in a speech tonight at the final session of the convention here.

"The manufacturing margin," he said, "has dropped nearly 5 cents a pound during the last two years. During the first eight months of this year production was at the rate of 10½ per cent in excess of normal. There is only one law in the land that forces us to sell our commodities at a loss, and that is the law of supply and demand.

"Mergers, consolidations, group actions, or any other methods of control will be of little lasting benefit until the individuals responsible for the operation and management of the units of our industry learn that careful control of production, based on prevalent market conditions, is the best insurance for the people in our mills."

Representative Scott Leavitt of Montana discussed the possibilities offered by the interchange of products between the New England manufacturer and the Western farmer. He advocated the substitution of mutual understanding for sectionalism.

"As New England is a market for Western products," he said, "the West and Middle West are rich potential markets for New England goods."

He said the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterways project would provide a link between New England and the West.

In a statement preceding his address to the convention, S. R. Glassford, president of the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York, assured the convention that the stability shown by the industry during the stock market crash "is a golden opportunity knocking at our door."

"Cotton has acted wonderfully well during this period of necessity," he said, "and the strength shown in the textile industry is gratifying to individuals. Where it has been a terrible catastrophe for other industries it has proved to the cotton business that there is, after all, sufficient strength to withstand great pressure."

In his address to the convention he dealt with the remedies that might be profitable for the industry and the development of the distribution problem, which he said was the most vital of all phases of the business.

Dr. William Durand, chief of the statistical division of the Department of Commerce, urged the members of the textile industry to cooperate in gathering statistics so that the department, through the Bureau of the Census and other branches, may provide more advanced data. He said a general survey of the textile industry is being planned.

That women everywhere throughout the country will wear the new long skirts and silhouette dresses, was predicted by Mme. Tobe of New York, speaking before the style conference of the association.

The three outstanding fashions that would affect the cotton industry, she said, would be the cotton dress and the new silhouette, the return of the blouse to fashion and the pajama.

Other speakers of prominence in the industry referred to the return of cotton to popularity after several years of neglect. In the intervening years people had turned to other fabrics, they said.

Officers of the association were re-elected as follows:

AMERICAN LOCOMOTIVE GETS DIESEL FACTORY

Purchases McIntosh and Seymour Corporation and Will Operate It as Subsidiary.

William H. Woodin, chairman of the board of the American Locomotive Company, announced yesterday the acquisition by his company of the McIntosh & Seymour Corporation of Auburn, N. Y., manufacturers of Diesel engines for marine, stationary and transporation use. The acquired company was famous years ago for its steam engines, and in 1914 turned its attention to the Diesel engine, of which it is today the largest exclusive maker in this country.

Mr. Woodin said the purchase was in furtherance of the policy of the American Locomotive Company to participate in every development which promised to add to the efficiency of the railroads, and also to meet the growing demand for Diesel engines for rail motor cars, buses and tractors.

The purchase would require no new financing on the part of the American Locomotive Company, Mr. Woodin said. The corporation would continue under the present management, but as a subsidiary of American Locomotive. The two companies collaborated in the design and production of the first oil-electric passenger locomotive to be placed in service by a railroad in the United States.

FORMER LOREE PLAN SEEN REVIVED BY I. C. C.

Southwestern Merger Proponents Believe It Will Be Part of Porter Proposal.

The submission to Congress of the railroad consolidation plan prepared by Claude R. Porter of the Interstate Commerce Commission may result in a revival of L. F. Loree's proposal to link three railroads in the Southwest, it was learned yesterday. This plan was abandoned after the Interstate Commerce Commission had ordered Mr. Loree to resign a directorship in the St. Louis Southwestern and through Clayton anti-trust act proceedings had compelled the Kansas City Southern to divest itself of St. Louis Southwestern stock.

In his first Southwestern merger plan, Mr. Loree proposed putting the Kansas City Southern at the head of a system formed by it and the St. Louis Southwestern and Missouri-Kansas-Texas. The commission denied this petition on the grounds that the Kansas City Southern should not be placed at the head of the system, but its decision declared that the merger of the three roads would be logical. On Wednesday it became known that the Interstate Commerce Commission planned to place its merger scheme before Congress in December. Proponents of the Southwestern merger plan believe that in view of the commission's decision on the Southwestern merger in 1927, Mr. Porter's plan will stipulate for merger of the Kansas City Southern, Cotton Belt and Katy.

Should this expectation be fulfilled, it would devolve on the managements of the three roads to move for their consolidation. The Loree interests, now dominant in the Kansas City Southern, would play an important part in such negotiations, it was said.

I. C. C. DENIES PETITION OF D. & H. FOR HEARING

Loree Line Sought Oral Argument Against B. & O. Plan for Control of B., R. & P.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The petition of the Delaware & Hudson Company, of which L. F. Loree is president, for a special oral argument on its motion to dismiss the application of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad to acquire control of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh Railway was denied today by the Interstate Commerce Commission without reasons for so ruling.

The Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh is considered an important link in various railroad merger plans before the commission, and C. V. Burnside, assistant director of the commission's Bureau of Finance, had recently recommended that the Baltimore & Ohio be permitted conditionally to acquire the road.

The condition set down by Mr. Burnside was that the Baltimore & Ohio hold all stock of the company acquired in obtaining control in such a manner that control could be shifted to another carrier in the event the commission later decided such a shift was in the interest of comprehensive consolidation plans for the entire Eastern territory.

The commission has not formally acted upon the recommendations of Mr. Burnside, and in some quarters the fact that the petition of the Delaware & Hudson for a reopening of the hearing was denied was regarded as indicating that final decision would favor the Baltimore & Ohio. The petition of the Delaware & Hudson was filed prior to the time that Mr. Burnside made his recommendation.

BIG ORDERS BY RAILROADS

The Missouri Pacific Railroad will purchase 61,000 tons of 110-pound and 90-pound rails at a cost of about $6,000,000, including fastenings. The Illinois Steel Company and Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company, subsidiaries of the United States Steel Corporation; the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, the Inland Steel Company and the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company will supply the rails.

The railroad approved also the purchase of five mountain type locomotives and twenty-five freight locomotives to cost about $2,750,000; 1,250 fifty-ton box cars and 1,000 seventy-ton hopper cars at about $5,750,000; ten parlor cars, six diner-parlor cars, three dining-club cars, thirty-five steel-underframe coaches and other equipment to cost about $1,356,250.

The Erie Railroad has received one-half an order for 1,000 hopper cars of the self-clearing type from the Standard Steel Car Company. The Pullman Car and Manufacturing Company has delivered ten express cars to the Erie, bringing its stock of these cars to forty.

The Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad will buy between 100 and 130 locomotives and the Wabash Railway three baggage and mail cars, according to the Iron Age.

Central Vermont Shows Gain.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Oct. 31 (AP).—Net operating income of the Central Vermont Railway for September showed considerable gain over the same month a year ago, despite a decline in operating income from $790,000 in September, 1928, to $761,000 this year. The net was $166,000 for last month, against $106,000 a year ago, it was announced at the railroad's offices today. For the first nine months the net was $1,453,000, contrasted with a deficit of $1,411,000 in 1928.

Railroad Minority to Meet.

A meeting of the New Orleans Great Northern Railroad stockholders who are protesting against an offer of an exchange of stock by the Gulf, Mobile & Northern Railroad will be held Monday in Room 404, 100 East Forty-second Street. The meeting was adjourned from last Monday because the situation in the stock market compelled the absence of persons who had planned to attend.

St. Louis Enlarges Terminal.

The Terminal Railroad Association of St. Louis, which operates a large system of unified passenger and freight terminals, will open a $3,000,000 addition to its passenger terminal that will increase by 60 per cent its capacity for passengers, mail, express and baggage. The association is owned by sixteen railroads.

Lehigh Valley Office for Albany.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad has opened a freight office in the Delaware & Hudson Building in Albany. R. J. Walker, formerly commercial agent in Auburn, will be general agent, assisted by William Remo, formerly with the Delaware & Hudson Company.

20-22 POINT DROP AFTER COTTON RISE

Resales by Professionals and the South Depress Prices Following Buying.

SPOT BUSINESS ENLARGED

After holding above previous closing levels for several hours yesterday, the cotton market came under increased selling pressure and prices declined a quarter cent, ending 20 to 22 points lower than on Wednesday. Throughout the morning sentiment was influenced by the heaviest rainfall of the month in sections where harvesting is still in progress, as well as by the improvement in the stock markets.

Before the close reselling by professional operators and the South brought lowest prices of the day. Spot sales aggregated 43,000 bales, against 33,000 a year ago at a general decline of 19 to 20 points. Middling quotations at most Southern markets were 1 to 1¼ cents lower than a year ago.

Selling started in New Orleans, where a holiday today led to realizing as well as increasing hedging pressure. Cotton was sold here for New Orleans account on differences, and so many scale buying limits had been executed during the forced liquidation earlier in the week that fewer supporting orders were disclosed when December broke below 18 cents. Contracts appeared from several directions in late trading, carrying the near position to 17.90 cents in final dealings.

Port receipts increased to 84,000 yesterday, bringing the total for five days to 451,000 or 19,000 over last week and 10,000 under the corresponding week last year. Exports for the season are now 180,000 behind the corresponding date last year.

Yesterday's quotations here follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Day.
Dec.	18.05	18.17	17.90	17.39	18.13

ADOPTS FINAL DRAFT OF CITY'S 1930 BUDGET

Board of Estimate Sends It to Aldermen, Who Have Five Days for Action.

The Board of Estimate adopted yesterday its final draft of the city's 1930 budget. It carries a total of $564,769,828.23, which is an approximate increase of $26,000,000 over the $538,928,697.14 total of the budget for the current year.

Under the law the budget, as now adopted by the Board of Estimate, must go to the Board of Aldermen within five days. There it may be reduced—though it seldom is—but it may not be increased, and any reductions made by the Aldermen are subject to the veto power of the Mayor. Midnight last night was the final moment, under the terms of the city charter, at which the Board of Estimate could approve the budget as proposed for adoption.

Early in October the tentative budget was submitted by Budget Director Charles L. Kohler. It aggregated $562,078,223. Following the requisite public hearings, that total was increased to $564,773,252, chiefly to meet the cost of providing for 800 additional policemen and other Police Department expansions urged by Commissioner Whalen. As compared with "the budget proposed for adoption," which was the second phase of that instrument, the budget, as actually adopted yesterday, shows a decrease of $3,800. This was explained as due to a mathematical error embodied in the earlier draft.

The 1930 budget is the largest ever adopted by a city administration. Approximately one-tenth of its total will be spent in the maintenance of the Police Department. Former Governor Alfred E. Smith declared in one of his recent addresses that something like $14,000,000 more will be required in the 1931 budget if the electorate votes favorably in the referendum next Tuesday on the proposal to advance the pay of first grade policemen and firemen. Despite that prospect, Mr. Smith declared for the proposed advance.

ANNALIST WEEKLY INDEX.

Wholesale Commodity Prices Sag Only Slightly as Stocks Crash.

The Annalist Weekly Index of Wholesale Commodity Prices stands at 144.0, a decline of 1.5 points from last week (145.5), and compares with 148.8 last year at this time.

Among the many astounding features that accompanied the spectacular decline in stock prices last week, not the least unusual was the relative immunity of commodity prices from sympathetic declines. As a whole, the wholesale price index declined only about 0.1 per cent in the face of stock declines, roughly averaging between 40 and 60 per cent.

Every effort was made by means of the bankers' consortium, the lowering of margin requirements and the reported investment trust buying to buoy the stock market. No such extraordinary measures had to be taken with wholesale commodities.

The declines in grains were no greater than normal and the announcement of the Farm Board that it would make $1,000,000 available for grain cooperative financing only temporarily affected prices. Cotton prices also sagged somewhat but, on the whole, withstood the impact that struck the financial world.

WHEAT LESS ACTIVE; CLOSE IS LOWER

LONGS REDUCE THEIR LINES

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—The action of the wheat market today was not in accord with the ideas of the bulls. While there was some buying by houses with Eastern connections early, it was by no means persistent, and all bulges were taken advantage of by longs to reduce their lines. The feeling prevailed that the upturn of 15½ to 16½ cents, the low of a week ago, had weakened the technical positions. Breaks, however, ran into resting orders to buy.

Toward the last there was a rally on a report from R. O. Cromwell saying black rust in the red stage was found in parts of Southern Cordoba and Santa Fe, Argentina, and the finish was at net losses of ½ to 1 cent, with December leading. Aggregate trade was smaller.

First delivery day on the latter is now only a month away, and with an open interest of over 121,000,000 bushels there is a general feeling that considerable liquidation will be in evidence, and the bulk of the new trade shows a disposition to go into the May delivery, despite the fact that it is selling at a premium of about 11 cents over the near-by future. The foreign demand for cash wheat failed to follow the advance, and sales in all positions were finally estimated at 75,000 bushels Manitobas, although it was intimated that some hard Winters had been put through in addition.

Buenos Aires was strong and closed ¾ to 1¼ cents higher. Liverpool closed 1⅜ to 2 pence higher, with the May delivery there only 5⅝ cents over Chicago at the time it closed, compared with 8⅜ cents a few days ago. Winnipeg was draggy from the start and finished ½ to ⅝ cent lower. There was some selling here by Winnipeg operators.

Primary receipts today, 1,036,000; week ago, 1,325,000; last year, 1,804,000. Shipments, 579,000; week ago, 1,164,000; last year, 2,005,000.

The corn market was dull, and fluctuations were largely a reflection of those in wheat, closing ½ to ⅝ cent lower. Shipping sales aggregated 83,000 bushels, but there was no grain booked to arrive from the country.

Primary receipts today, 348,000; week ago, 558,000 bushels; last year, 1,304,000 bushels. Shipments, 329,000 bushels; week ago, 324,000 bushels; last year, 331,000 bushels.

Oats held within narrow limits. The finish was at net gains of ⅛ cent. Cash demand was fair and the spot basis steady. Rye developed independent weakness due to Northwestern selling, and closed 1⅞ to 2¼ cents lower.

Prices for the principal grains were as follows:

METAL MARKET STEADY.

Prices Unaffected by the Stock Market Decline.

The decline in the stock market has not resulted in any precipitate drop in metal prices, according to The Engineering and Mining Journal, although lead, tin, zinc, silver and quicksilver are slightly lower than in the preceding week. The decline in each instance has been small, the trade organ says, and in the case of lead and zinc has been brought about by weakness abroad, bringing the London price below import parity.

"Copper stands firm," The Journal says. "Metal producers are not expecting much new business until the Wall Street debacle is over. Metal buying in general is for prompt shipment, a fact which adds to the fundamental soundness of the situation."

WEATHER IS LOWER; CLOSE IS LOWER

LONGS REDUCE THEIR LINES

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—The action of the wheat market today was not in accord with the ideas of the bulls. While there was some buying by houses with Eastern connections early, it was by no means persistent, and all bulges were taken advantage of by longs to reduce their lines. The feeling prevailed that the upturn of 15½ to 16½ cents, the low of a week ago, had weakened the technical positions. Breaks, however, ran into resting orders to buy.

Toward the last there was a rally on a report from R. O. Cromwell saying black rust in the red stage was found in parts of Southern Cordoba and Santa Fe, Argentina, and the finish was at net losses of ½ to 1 cent, with December leading. Aggregate trade was smaller.

First delivery day on the latter is now only a month away, and with an open interest of over 121,000,000 bushels there is a general feeling that considerable liquidation will be in evidence, and the bulk of the new trade shows a disposition to go into the May delivery, despite the fact that it is selling at a premium of about 11 cents over the near-by future. The foreign demand for cash wheat failed to follow the advance, and sales in all positions were finally estimated at 75,000 bushels Manitobas, although it was intimated that some hard Winters had been put through in addition.

Buenos Aires was strong and closed ¾ to 1¼ cents higher. Liverpool closed 1⅜ to 2 pence higher, with the May delivery there only 5⅝ cents over Chicago at the time it closed, compared with 8⅜ cents a few days ago. Winnipeg was draggy from the start and finished ½ to ⅝ cent lower. There was some selling here by Winnipeg operators.

Primary receipts today, 1,036,000; week ago, 1,325,000; last year, 1,804,000. Shipments, 579,000; week ago, 1,164,000; last year, 2,005,000.

The corn market was dull, and fluctuations were largely a reflection of those in wheat, closing ½ to ⅝ cent lower. Shipping sales aggregated 83,000 bushels, but there was no grain booked to arrive from the country.

Primary receipts today, 348,000; week ago, 558,000 bushels; last year, 1,304,000 bushels. Shipments, 329,000 bushels; week ago, 324,000 bushels; last year, 331,000 bushels.

Oats held within narrow limits. The finish was at net gains of ⅛ cent. Cash demand was fair and the spot basis steady. Rye developed independent weakness due to Northwestern selling, and closed 1⅞ to 2¼ cents lower.

Prices for the principal grains were as follows:

MEXICO CONSIDERS OUSTING INSURERS

CHECK ON ASSETS PLANNED

Security Deposits to Be Inspected for Values—Delegation to Study Our Methods.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 31.—Nationalization of the insurance business in Mexico is under consideration by the Department of Industry, Commerce and Labor, according to a statement today by Ramon P. de Negri, the head of the Cabinet department.

Also inspection by government officials at an early date of all foreign companies operating here is forecast. This step apparently has been hastened by the hurricane on the New York Stock Exchange, resulting from a desire to know whether securities deposited by foreign companies working in Mexico have depreciated to such an extent as to justify fear regarding their stability.

Insurance men here have little that is good to say of either proposition and feel that the magnitude of the task of nationalizing the republic's insurance business has been underestimated. All ask, "What is behind the move?"

Señor de Negri's statement says:

"One of the greatest duties of our revolutionary government is the safeguarding of the public interest and the investment of Mexican capital. But the government has been so occupied with intricate and complex problems that up to now it has been unable to pay attention to such important matters as the foreign companies doing business here in life, fire and other insurance lines.

Evasion of Law Charged.

"However, the Department of Commerce and Labor, acting in the public interest, has recently suspended business in insurance policies undertaken in many instances fraudulently by companies operating without having met the legal requirements.

"Further, my department has resolved that a committee from the Insurance Department of my Ministry shall leave for the United States and Canada to ascertain the financial condition and integrity of their methods, thus complying with one of the legal precepts of insurance in Mexico. This visit will be the first of its kind in Mexican insurance history and its result will be made public as soon as possible.

"The insurance companies operating in Mexico do not offer even a remote possibility of benefit to the assured, and nothing direct or indirect in the way of benefit to the nation as a whole, for 99 per cent of the insurance companies operating in the Mexican Republic are foreign and so far offer to the Mexican people guarantees that are not worth taking into consideration.

"Through the foreign insurance companies millions of pesos leave the country annually, being withdrawn from local circulation, and they do not return to Mexico in any form whatever.

Seeks Protection of Home Companies.

"In other countries this public activity is nationalized and my department is making a serious study of the question in order to see if such a beneficent policy should be adopted in Mexico by creating an insurance bank, and thereby protecting the national companies—that is to say, those financed by Mexican money. Such a project will, in the near future, be presented to the President for his approval.

"In view of the fact that alarming reports have been received by the holders of insurance policies, due to the recent catastrophe on the New York Stock Exchange, an inspection of securities on deposit in the Banco de Mexico which are held as guarantee for the policies issued by foreign companies operating in Mexico, has been resolved upon by my department. The total value of these securities is 12,827,801 pesos (about $6,400,000), and on some of those securities, it is feared, the crisis referred to has had a grave effect.

"The Ministry of Industry, Commerce and Labor does not wish to cause any alarm by these declarations, but, on the contrary, wishes to calm that fear, which, due to the recent world financial crisis, has seriously affected insurance interests here."

Under Mexican law a foreign company writing fire insurance has to deposit $100,000, and to operate in the marine business another $50,000 is necessary. Those deposits may be in securities approved by the government. Oil stock is among those not acceptable.

An official of one of the greatest foreign companies in Mexico said today that its guarantee deposit was mainly composed of British war loan bonds.

Canada Southern Issue Planned.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (AP).—The Michigan Central Railroad applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission today for permission to guarantee $8,735,000 consolidated guaranteed 5 per cent 50-year gold bonds of the Canada Southern Railway. The latter road, located in Canada, is leased by the applicant.

Will Cut Signal Hill Oil Production.

LONG BEACH, Cal., Oct. 31 (AP).—Oil operators in the Signal Hill Field today announced they had agreed to cut production to 100,000 barrels daily, a reduction of about 60,000 barrels, in an effort to restore the price of crude oil. The curtailment plan will be effected as soon after Nov. 2 as possible.

Piano Company Sells to Railroad.

The Premier Piano Company has sold 510-12 West Twenty-third Street, a plot 60 by 100 feet, to the New York State Realty and Terminal Company, representing the New York Central Railroad. Brown, Wheelock, Harris, Vought & Co. and Dorsehuck & Co. were the brokers.

Furniture Company Changes Hands.

The Simmons Company has acquired the B. E. Huntley Furniture Company and its subsidiaries of Winston-Salem, N. C., it was announced yesterday.

Better Trade Feeling Appears.

Considerable improvement in feeling among both manufacturers and retailers is noted here. The view is gaining ground that the effects upon trade of the crash in stock prices may not be as bad as was indicated at first, unless further adverse elements appear in the situation. While reports of cancellations and delayed buying are current, wholesalers and resident buying representatives said yesterday that they had noted no heavy cancellations, although reorders were somewhat backward. The opinion was almost general, however, that better retail selling weather would help the situation a great deal. Even in semi-luxury and specialty merchandise no measurable reaction has been noted as yet.

Importers for Action on Tariff.

The announcement that President Hoover has urged the Senate to prompt action on the proposed new tariff measure was a source of satisfaction to importers in New York yesterday. Many of these business men are complaining bitterly at the lengthy delay in the tariff revision and claim that any tariff at all would be preferable to the state of uncertainty which has prevailed in their business since last Spring. They point to the fact that their hands are tied in making plans for the new year because they have no knowledge of the new rates or the date upon which the new tariff will go into effect.

Bright Colors for New Carpets.

New carpet patterns in which bright colors will dominate will be one of the features of the Spring floor covering opening next Monday. Carpeting is to be given a prominent place because manufacturers claim to see a definite trend toward that type of floor covering for apartments and private homes. Sales to the latter have been heaviest. Consumers, it is felt, are tiring of the scatter rugs which have been popular for several seasons. Bright colors will be shown in rugs as well as in carpets Monday and will be featured even in the low-end ranges.

Resort Lines Show Few Changes.

No marked change of dress styles will be seen in the Winter resort lines, so far as silhouette is concerned. There will be a notable turning to lighter materials, among them linens and fine dress cottons, and colors will be brighter than those seen in the current lines. So little change in silhouette will be seen, one of the leading manufacturers said yesterday, that some of the important houses are simply going to repeat their late Fall models in high shades. A second reason for this was said to be fear of style pirates, who make a particular point of stealing ideas from Winter resort merchandise for their early Spring lines. This kills the sale of the "stolen" models in the Northern part of the country later.

October Shoe Sales In Drop?

The gains shown in shoe sales by wholesalers in this market in September apparently have not been duplicated during the month just closed, it was learned yesterday. Although it is too early for definite figures, the indications were that business might show a drop in comparison with October of last year. Shipments by one of the leading concerns in the market, while substantially ahead of those of last October were about equal to those of August, 1929, when the Federal Reserve figures showed a decline of 8 per cent in the sales for this area. The inference is that the Reserve's report for October will show a similar drop.

Glove Orders Show Up Well.

Despite some slowness which has developed in other lines of women's accessories, good orders for women's gloves are reported by wholesalers here. Retailers are seeking immediate delivery on both leather and fabric styles, with the novelty cuff slip-on favored in both types of merchandise. The long glove is making good headway for formal wear and promises to be a feature of the resort business. The brown family continues to lead in colors and the sun tan hues will also be outstanding for the Spring.

Credit Men Aid Grocery Analysis.

Experts from the National Association of Credit Men will cooperate with the Associated Grocery Manufacturers of America in a searching credit analysis of the food industry at the grocery manufacturers' convention in Washington next week. Dr. Stephen I. Miller, executive manager of the credit men's association, said yesterday that his association was interested in the matter since the millions of dollars involved in food industry activities constitute a large proportion of commercial credit transactions. The annual business in that trade is placed at $8,000,000,000.

To Report on Silk Weighting.

While the Federal Trade Commission will be represented at the meeting of the joint committee on silk weighting to be held at the Hotel Pennsylvania next Wednesday, the occasion will not be a trade practice conference, it was said yesterday. The gathering will be in the nature of an informal conference to acquaint the commission with what has been done. A summary of the research on weighting done by the joint committee will be presented; most of the major tests, which have extended over a period of many months, having been completed. Mr. Markham Flannery will represent the commission as a guest at the meeting.

Broadcloth Prices Off.

Active buying of high-count carded broadcloths, mostly of Southern construction, was reported here yesterday at a quarter of a cent a yard under the last price at which substantial business was booked. Shirt manufacturers and cutters-up were named as the principal buyers. The constructions traded in most freely were 112-60s at 11¾ cents, 100-60s at 10¾ cents and 80-60s at 9¾ cents. Stocks of these goods have been unwieldy for some time, experienced traders said, due to overproduction on the part of Southern mills. Cleaning out the surpluses at sacrifice prices is apparently now under way.

Gray Goods Trade Improving.

A better feeling was apparent in the local gray goods trade yesterday, with better inquiry and some improvement in buying. Staple printcloths were again bought from first hands on the basis of 9¾ cents for 39-inch 68-72s and 7¾ cents for 39½-inch 64-60s. Second hands let out a few spots of both at an eighth under these figures. Choice makes of 40-inch 5.65-yard sheetings were sold at 11¼ cents, and there was a persistent inquiry for 36-inch 4.00-yard sheetings. Some 39-inch 4.35-yard sateens were sold at 11 cents, and business in 72-80 pajama checks was put through at 9¾ cents. The rest of the market was featureless.

ASKS MORATORIUM ON MORTGAGES

Philadelphia Real Estate Board Head Urges Trust Companies to Halt Calls 6 Months.

SHERIFF'S SALES MOUNTING

Small Home Owner Principal Sufferer—Suspension Is Sought to Aid Real Estate Market.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 31.—Every trust company in Philadelphia today received from Philip N. Arnold, president of the Real Estate Board, a letter requesting its cooperation in the establishment of a six months' moratorium on first mortgages.

Mr. Arnold declared that the suspension of calls for first mortgages or instalments thereof during this period would reduce Sheriff sales of real estate and adjust the real estate market to an extent that would fully justify the action. Small house owners have been the principal sufferers in the increasing number of foreclosures.

The letter followed a meeting of trust company officials held last week at Mr. Arnold's suggestion to discuss the increased number of Sheriff sales, as well as real estate conditions in general. In his communication, he said:

"In line with what appeared to be the general thought at the meeting of trust company officials, held at this board last Friday, we desire to ask your company to fix a definite period, about six months, during which time calls for payment of first mortgages or instalments thereon be suspended except in those cases wherein the circumstances are such as to show that the mortgages are entirely irresponsible—in other words, the establishment of a moratorium. This request is made in consequence of a conference of some of our members and in the belief that such cooperation on the part of your company will react decidedly and favorable to mortgagees, property owners and business generally.

"Immediately upon the receipt of your reply and in accordance with plans we have completed, we will place before every building and loan association in this city the intention of your company to cooperate in this most important matter and to impress upon these associations the necessity for immediate arrangements by them to afford prompt attention to any notices of delinquencies furnished by first mortgagees, pointing out that such cooperation by the associations will be in support of your company's efforts and greatly aid toward relieving the situation without delay.

"Further than this, we plan to take similar action in reference to every real estate broker in the city, irrespective of his membership in this or any board, so that additional cooperation in support of your company's efforts will be extended."

Mr. Arnold revealed that he had sent a communication to building and loan associations and real estate brokers, emphasizing the importance of their cooperation with the trust companies in the matter of first mortgages represented by such companies.

In these letters Mr. Arnold pointed out, according to some of the trust company officials, the failure of building and loan associations and some real estate brokers to heed notices from first mortgages had necessitated action by the trust companies which otherwise they would not have been forced to take.

Leases in Holland Tunnel Zone.

Nathan Pechnick, operating the Irvington Cafeteria chain, has leased 6,000 square feet on the ground floor of the Holland Plaza Building, nearing completion at Canal, Hudson, Varick and Watts Streets, for a restaurant. The lease was arranged for the New York Investing Corporation. Abe N. Adelson president, by Brown, Wheelock: Harris, Vought & Co., Charles F. Noyes Company and Frederick Fox & Co. The total rental is more than $500,000.

To Build on Lexington Av. Corner.

The Premann Corporation, Morris Sapre president, has leased for a long term a plot of about 9,360 square feet at the northwest corner of Lexington Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street for improvement with an office building. The City Real Estate Company has made a loan of $650,000 on the project. The lessor of the site is the Winmore Realty Corporation, representing James T. Lee. Louis Gelarie was the broker.

BUYS HOTEL SITE NEAR TIMES SQUARE

Max J. Kramer Acquires Plot in 47th Street for Building to Cost $6,500,000.

PROPERTY WAS SHUBERTS'

Twenty-two-Story Structure Will Have 1,000 Rooms, With Bus Outlet on 46th Street.

A large plot in the heart of the Times Square theatre district was sold yesterday to Max J. Kramer, builder, as the site for a twenty-two-story hotel to cost $6,500,000. The property is at 228 to 248 West Forty-seventh Street, just west of Broadway and in back of the Globe and Central Theatres, and was sold by J. J. and Lee Shubert.

Included in the site is 235 West Forty-sixth Street, which will be used as an outlet for buses to be operated in connection with a bus terminal in the proposed hotel. The plans announced yesterday provide for 1,000 rooms, with baths, a large ballroom, grill rooms and roof garden.

The hotel is to be modern in every respect, the announcement said, with radio outlets in every room, a large swimming pool and gymnasium for the use of hotel guests.

The site contains one of the largest side street frontages in the Times Square area available for an improvement of this type. It was bought through H. D. Baker & A. Robinson and Henry Baker. It has a frontage of 217 feet on the south side of West Forty-seventh Street, adjoining the Central Hanover Bank building, and runs through the block on its westerly extremity to Forty-sixth Street, where a bus outlet of twenty-five feet is provided. This outlet is adjacent to the home of the National Vaudeville Artists.

Possession of the site was obtained at the time of the purchase and demolition on the Forty-seventh Street side has already been started. Wreckers are razing the old warehouses of Morgan & Bro., who are occupying their new storage warehouse at 510 to 520 West Twenty-first Street, in the old Chelsea section.

The estimated value of the investment includes the cost of land and building, and construction work on the new hotel will be started as soon as the site is cleared. Mr. Kramer has erected several large structures in Manhattan, including the Empire Trust Building, at the northwest corner of Fifth Avenue and West Forty-seventh Street and the Westbury Hotel at 15 East Sixty-ninth Street.

Huge Park Av. Apartment Under New Control Dec. 1.

The twelve-story apartment house occupying the block 200 by 405 feet, bounded by Park and Lexington Avenues and Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth Streets, will on Dec. 1 be taken over by the Cordilleras Realty Corporation, formed last February by Carter, Ledyard & Milburn, attorneys, for interests represented by Brown, Wheelock: Harris, Vought & Co.

The building was erected some years ago by the 277 Park Avenue Corporation, headed by G. Maurice Heckscher, who later encountered financial difficulties. The building company obtained the block under a long lease made with the New York Central Railroad interests.

SECOND AV. REALTY IN ACTIVE DEMAND

DEAL ON LIBERTY STREET

Operators participated in resale deals along Second Avenue in the Forties again yesterday. A corner at Forty-ninth Street, which until its recent purchase by Thomas A. McGrath, lawyer, had not changed hands since 1888, was resold yesterday by Mr. McGrath to Joseph J. Schlesinger and Maurice Epstein, operators.

For the past year the buyers have been assembling 250, 252, 254 and 256 East Forty-ninth Street and 917 and 919 Second Avenue. With their purchase yesterday they now have the southwest corner. The price paid was said to establish a record for square foot values along this stretch of the avenue. Its purchase gives the new owners control of 97 feet on the street, 100 feet in the rear and 70 feet on Second Avenue. Abutting is the highly restricted Turtle Bay Garden development, whose homes and gardens are protected by a twenty-year restriction. The property assembled by Schlesinger & Epstein is improved with four-story dwellings.

On Wednesday Manhattan Properties, Inc., William Backer, president, bought the northwest corner of Second Avenue and Forty-ninth Street. A "key" plot to the southeast corner of Forty-sixth Street was sold last week after a six-year rise in value from $37,000 to $100,000, and the northwest corner of Forty-seventh Street and Second Avenue, an old Morgan family holding, is being held by Harris & Maurice Mendelbaum Inc. operators. Title to a parcel further north on the avenue passed yesterday when Oscar Rosenbaum, operator, acquired 1,846-1,852 Second Avenue, which he bought recently through Butler & Baldwin. The parcel is near the southeast corner of Ninety-sixth Street.

Charles Finkelstein sold his five-story tenement house, 25 by 100 feet, at 330 East Seventy-seventh Street, near Second Avenue, to the Homewood Realty Corporation. Simon & Simon were the brokers.

Operators were active in other sections of Manhattan yesterday, having reported deals from the lower area of the borough and in Harlem. Moe Harris purchased from the Schulte Real Estate Company the four-story structure at the southeast corner of West and Liberty Streets, known as 105 West Street and 103 Liberty Street. The property adjoins the Central Railroad of New Jersey Building and is leased to one tenant for fourteen years. Vincent P. McDonough was the broker.

A. A. Oldham, an operator and president of the Oed Realty Company, bought from Edna M. Gottlieb the five-story flat at 1,463 Fifth Avenue, adjoining the northeast corner of 118th Street. Edward Wolfe, broker, negotiated the deal.

Irving Bachrach and Ira Rosenstock, operators, sold 536-546 East Eighty-second Street and 524 East Eighty-second Street, west of the southwest corner of East End Avenue. The property was bought by George W. Anger through Arthur G. Muhlker, broker.

LEASEHOLD DEALS.

Second Avenue Corner Taken for Six-Story Apartment.

The property at 74 Second Avenue and 93-105 East Fourth Street, surrounding the northeast corner, has been taken under an eighty-four-year net lease by Samuel Lipman for improvement with a six-story elevator apartment house. The lessee has the option of renewing the lease for three terms of twenty-one years each, for which the annual rent shall be 6 per cent of the market value of the land.

The plot contains 20,000 square feet and the proposed apartments are to be ready for occupancy about Nov. 1, 1930. The Fourth Street Operating Company, a holding company for Loew's Theatres, is the lessor. Childs & Humphries, brokers, negotiated the lease.

FORM BODY TO FIGHT JERSEY PORT PLEA

24 Organizations Here Band to Oppose Petition to End Free Lighterage Field With I. C. C.

STATE AID TO BE ASKED

New York Interests Act as Trans-Bay Groups Meet in Newark to Hail Opening of Suit.

Representatives of twenty-four commercial and civic organizations met at the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, 65 Liberty Street, yesterday and took the first definite step to fight the petition of New Jersey to end free freight lighterage from New Jersey rail terminals to the New York side of the port.

It was unanimously decided to form an organization, employ counsel and intervene before the Interstate Commerce Commission to maintain the unity of the port.

While plans were being made to resist New Jersey's petition, another luncheon meeting was in progress at the Robert Treat Hotel in Newark, where speakers declared that every form of transportation and freight rate handicap "that is throttling New Jersey industry and commerce will be attacked before the Interstate Commerce Commission." Announcement was made at the meeting, arranged by the New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce, that the New Jersey Attorney General's complaint had been filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday.

Will Ask State Aid.

At the New York meeting it was planned to enlist the aid of New York State at the next session of the Legislature in the fight. Funds will be raised by the various individual organizations and the aid of commercial associations throughout the State will be enlistid as well as that of Western and Southern fruit growers and others who would be affected by a change in the present rate structure.

Leonor F. Loree, president of the Delaware & Hudson Company, reviewed the various attempts that have been made to obtain preferential freight rates over New York. He said that Philadelphia and Baltimore received a preferential rate in 1877 which is still in force.

Mr. Loree told of the recent New Jersey agitation of the question of a preferential rate where lighterage and cartage to New York was concerned. He explained that Governor Roosevelt had appointed a commission consisting of himself (Loree) and ex-Governors Miller, Smith and Whitman to confer with a similar commission appointed by Governor Larson of New Jersey in the hope that no legal action would be taken. The New Jersey Governor refused to appoint a commission and the Attorney General of that State has now carried the fight to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

J. Barstow Small, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, then took charge of the meeting and presented Parker McCollester, attorney for the Loree Commission. Mr. McCollester said that while the New Jersey action was taken officially by the State, various commercial organizations and business men were behind it in the belief "that they will reap profits from the success of the petition."

Says Jersey Has $300,000 Fund.

Mr. McCollester said the New Jersey interests had formed an efficient organization, had employed traffic men and engineers and were raising $300,000 to fight the case. The complaint, he said, contends that New Jersey real estate values have been injured by free lighterage.

"The aim apparently," he said, "is to boom New Jersey realty values at the expense of New York. Philadelphia and Baltimore are standing by approvingly and are ready to step in, for if New Jersey succeeds, in the end it will not benefit, but the advantage will be gained by Philadelphia and Baltimore."

"We feel that any movement to break up the Port of New York will not only injure New York but will also injure New Jersey," declared Mr. Small.

It was announced that Charles T. Gwynne, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, had been appointed executive secretary of the New York State commission.

At the Newark luncheon, Norman F. Titus, general manager of the New York-New Jersey Business Associates, declared that New Jersey was faced with the problem of whether "she will permit herself to sink with New York, despite her natural advantages over her neighbor State, or whether she will break away and seek to straighten out her own commercial tangle."

Other speakers were J. Spencer Smith, president of the State Board of Commerce and Navigation; Willard I. Hamilton, president of the New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce, and Deputy Attorney General J. Raymond Tiffany.

PROTEST SHIP BOARD PLAN.

The American Steamship Owners' Association has protested to the United States Shipping Board against its proposal to take five small tankers owned by the Navy Department and condition and charter them to private parties, it was learned yesterday.

The association charges that the board is offering unfair competition to private ship owners and that there are many privately owned tankers available to the board if it desires to rent them. The tankers are now laid up at Philadelphia and Newport News. They are the Kaweah, Laramie, Trinity, Mattalie and Tippecanoe.

ROW THIRTY MILES FROM SUNKEN CRAFT

Captain and Helper of Fishing Schooner Reach Provincetown From Race Point.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Oct. 31.—Rowing wearily, two men emerged from out the mist today and pulled in at Matheson's Wharf, where the younger of the two stumped over his oak blade.

They were Captain Aubrey Smith of Gloucester and his crew of one, and they had been rowing for nearly thirty miles after escaping from their schooner the Florence E. Marchant, when she sprang a leak and foundered off Race Point.

The schooner was held up for hours through frantic pumping by the two men, but when they tired and their energies slackened the water got the better of them and the two-masted craft slid beneath the surface.

According to Captain Smith, it was only good fortune that the dory was aboard, as most of the smaller schooners engaged in dragging carry no small boats.

John Matheson, proprietor of the Fishermen's Cold Storage Company, to whose wharf the dory came in, took the men in charge and warmed and fed them. They boarded a bus for Wood's Hole without revealing their destination.

The Florence E. Marchant was formerly owned by Gloucester men but was purchased recently by a New York company. For several days she had been engaged in flounder dragging.

SEE BRIDGE CABLE SPUN.

Electrical Men Inspect Work on New Hudson River Span.

More than 100 members of the New York Electrical Society yesterday inspected the cable spinning operations on the new Hudson River Bridge. They took the day off from work and watched the process from both sides of the river amid rain and fog.

They viewed operations that have been in progress on the bridge since early Summer. Small wires were spun backward and forward across the great span in endless threads which eventually will become sixty-one cables on each side. These cables will be compressed into one mammoth cable three feet in diameter. The electrical men saw the little traveling sheaves leave the anchoring blocks and disappear into the fog. Soon they would see others coming back adding their threads to the growing mass which will contain 106,000 miles of wire when the bridge is finished. They saw the wires fastened to the "shoes" anchored in concrete blocks and were told that when compressed into the two great cables the weight of wire would be more than 24,000 tons and would be capable of sustaining more than the double-decker bridge and its weight-carrying capacity.

FIGHT HELM ORDER CHANGE

British Shipping Men Assail Plan to Stop Using "Port" and "Starboard."

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Feeling is running high among shipping men against any change in the familiar helm orders of port and starboard. A resolution protesting against any change was unanimously adopted at the quarterly meeting of members of the Mercantile Marine Service Association in Liverpool yesterday.

In view of the declaration by the president of the Board of Trade in the House of Commons to the effect that no change is contemplated or desirable and the emphatic opposition of the association and the Imperial Merchant Service Guild, the only recognized representative bodies of British shipmasters and officers, it is considered impossible to recognize a proposal felt to be so diametrically opposed to British interests.

A prominent law firm practicing in the Admiralty Court, when asked its opinion, said:

"We have no hesitation in saying that the feeling in Admiralty Court circles is dead against the proposed change. We have heard it condemned on every side and have no doubt at all about the opinion of practiced mariners."

VIEW WATERFRONTS IN PIER SITE QUEST

1,100-FOOT SPACE NEEDED

Committee Learns City's Growth Has Complicted Situation—Meets Again Nov. 14.

The search for sites for piers capable of berthing the 1,000-foot steamers now under construction or planned for early construction by five transatlantic lines led a group of fifteen representatives of Manhattan, Brooklyn and Staten Island on a tour of the greater city's shore line yesterday.

As guests of the New York Board of Trade, representatives of civic and commercial groups of the three boroughs viewed the piers of their neighbors from the municipal boat Macom, listened to explanations of their features and handicaps and helped to explain pier conditions in their home boroughs. The Board of Trade, which is working through a committee to find the ideal location for piers that must be at least 1,100 feet long, served as the noncommittal agent at yesterday's discussion.

Starting at Pier A, Manhattan, the boat headed up the Hudson River while M. D. Griffith, secretary of the Board of Trade, explained the situation and quoted statistics on the piers and their lessees. He spoke of some conditions in relation to the city's growth that have proved to be handicaps in solving the present pier problem. Piers which serve several lines in the New England trade occupy sites that might be used for longer ships, he said, but the lines have built up their markets on Manhattan and now must retain their piers.

As the textile section of Manhattan was passed and later the fruit and vegetable market centre, with the ship lines which carry those types of freight near by, Mr. Griffith explained that occupants of these piers also were determined to retain their locations.

The committee viewed an example of the danger of long ships extending beyond the end of their piers, as the White Star liner Olympic was docked at Pier 59. Mr. Griffith explained that the rush of ice against ships under such circumstances was dangerous and Captain William Drechsel, marine superintendent of the North German Lloyd Line, emphasized the danger to ships' propellers in such cases.

The Manhattan waterfront from Pier 60 northward, including the stretch from Thirtieth Street to Seventy-second Street, where the city seeks extension of the pierhead line 100 feet into the river, was considered the most important section. Mr. Griffith explained that there was now only 700 feet between bulkhead and pierhead lines and that the city would be obliged to cut back 300 feet into Manhattan to provide the needed piers even if the 100-foot extension were permitted. Some municipal bonds issued to provide funds for construction of municipal piers have not been amortized. He said the question of another investment with this shadow impending created a serious problem for the city.

Controversy developed among the shipping men when the virtues of Governors Island, the Army Basin piers at Brooklyn and the Staten Island piers were considered.

W. J. H. Banham, president of the Board of Trade, said the committee would meet Nov. 14 on the liner Majestic to continue its study of the problem.

ARGENTINE FARMERS URGED TO ORGANIZE

LATIN SUSPICION IS BLAMED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 31.—La Prensa, in a long editorial discussing the formation in the United States of a national wheat growers' corporation under the auspices of the Federal Farm Board, says this is a fine example of governmental cooperation with the farmers which could well be copied in Argentina, where the wheat growers are unorganized and therefore defenseless against organized exporters, who fix the prices they will pay for Argentine wheat.

La Prensa refers to the numerous failures of attempts to organize Argentine farmers and cattle growers for their own defense, the most recent of which was an attempt of the Argentine Rural Society to organize the cooperatives into a national corporation with representatives in the Argentine Rural Society, similar to the plan in the United States of having delegates in the national organization established by the Federal Farm Board.

Latin suspicion and inability to trust each other has made it impossible so far to organize the producers in cooperatives of sufficient size to exercise any weight.

La Prensa again urges the national government to undertake the initiative in building a national system of grain elevators, which, it says, is the country's outstanding need. The present system of packing all cereals in new burlap sacks and piling them at railroad stations causes tremendous losses every year, while the absence of any machinery for financing the farmers by means of warrants or similar documents forces them to sell disadvantageously in order to obtain badly needed cash to meet their constant debts.

La Prensa says that all of these troubles could be abolished and Argentine farmers put on a much more prosperous basis by following the comparative methods which it considers so successful in the United States.

FORD WORKERS STRIKE AT MEXICO CITY PLANT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 31.—A strike broke out at the Ford assembling plant here yesterday, 300 men walking out. The men presented a set of nine conditions which their employers consider unimportant, the crux of the dispute apparently being the question of collective contracts and union recognition. As soon as the men were outside, the doors of the factory were closed and red and black flags were posted on them.

The Ford interests have requested that 400 cars be sent from Houston, Texas, to help them to carry on during the duration of the strike, which is not expected to last more than a few days. They consider that the trouble is due to agitators more than to the men themselves and expect the government's support in obtaining a settlement. They are seeking a poll of the workers, after which, if necessary, arbitration will be attempted. This is the first strike ever reported in any Ford concern.
